RAIN.

We knew it would rain, for the poplars showed

The white of their leaves, the amber grain
Shrunk in the wind,—and the lightning now Is tangled in tremulous skeins of rain.

r. MARY MAPES DODGE—How the Rain Comes. April.

How it pours, pours, pours,

In a never-ending sheet!

How it rumples up the lawn!

How 'twill sigh, and moan, and mutter,

From darkness until dawn.

But at every gust the dead leaves fall,
And the day is dark and dreary.

a. LONGFELLOW—The Rainy Day.

Drip, drip, the rain comes falling,
Rain in the woods, rain on the sea ;

Over her hung a canopy of state,
Not of rich tissue, nor of spangled gold,

Yet of a heavenly and spiritual mould,
That only eyes of spirits might behold.

k. GILES FLETCHER—The Rainbow. L. 33.

O beautiful rainbow ;—all woven of light !
There's not in thy tissue one shadow of night ;
Heaven surely is open when thou dost appear,
And, bending above thee, the angels draw near,

And sing,—“The rainbow ! the rainbow !
The smile of God is here.”

l. MRS. SARAH J. HALE—Poems.

There was an awful rainbow once in heaven ;

Distinct, and low, I can in thine see Him Who looks upon thee from His glorious throne,

And minds the covenant between all and One.

s. VAUGHAN—The Rainbow.

READING.

Reading is to the mind, what exercise is to the body. As by the one, health is preserved, strengthened, and invigorated : by the other, virtue (which is the health of the mind) is kept alive, cherished, and confirmed.

t. ADDISON—The Tatler. No. 147.

Reading maketh a full man.

u. BACON—Of Studies.

We have not read an author till we have seen his object, whatever it may be, as he saw it.

v. CARLYLE—Essays. Goethe's Helena.

The mind, relaxing into needful sport,
Should turn to writers of an abler sort,
Whose wit well managed, and whose classic
style,

Give truth a lustre, and make wisdom smile.

w. COWPER—Retirement. L. 715.

Half the gossip of society would perish if the books that are truly worth reading were but read.

If we encountered a man of rare intellect, we should ask him what books he read.

- c. EMERSON—Letters and Social Aims.
Quotation and Originality.

I like to be beholden to the great metropolitan English speech, the sea which receives tributaries from every region under heaven. I should as soon think of swimming across the Charles river when I wish to go to Boston, as of reading all my books in originals, when I have them rendered for me in my mother tongue.

- d. EMERSON—Essays. Books.

Our high respect for a well-read man is praise enough of literature.

Letter LXXXIII.

A man ought to read just as inclination leads him; for what he reads as a task will do him little good.

- i. SAM'L JOHNSON—Boswell's Life of Johnson. 1763.

What is twice read is commonly better remembered than what is transcribed.

- j. SAM'L JOHNSON—The Idler. No. 74.

In science, read, by preference, the newest works; in literature, the oldest. The classic literature is always modern.

His classical reading is great: he can quote Horace, Juvenal, Ovid, and Martial by rote. He has read Metaphysics * * * Spinoza and Kant;

And Theology too: I have heard him descant Upon Basil and Jerome. Antiquities, art, He is fond of. He knows the old masters by heart,

And his taste is refined.

- m. OWEN MEREDITH (Lord Lytton)—Lucile. Canto II. Pt. IV.

Who reads

Incessantly, and to his reading brings not A spirit and judgment equal or superior, (And what he brings what need he elsewhere seek?)

Uncertain and unsettled still remains, Deep versed in books and shallow in himself, Crude or intoxicate, collecting toys And trifles for choice matters, worth a sponge, As children gathering pebbles on the shore.

- n. MILTON—Paradise Regained. Bk. IV.

He that I am reading seems always to have the most force.

- u. WM. WALKER—Art of Reading.

REASON.

Two angels guide

The path of man, both aged and yet young,
As angels are, ripening through endless years,

On one he leans: some call her Memory,
And some Tradition; and her voice is sweet,
With deep mysterious accords: the other, Floating above, holds down a lamp which streams

A light divine and searching on the earth, Compelling eyes and footsteps. Memory yields,

Yet clings with loving check, and shines anew,

Reflecting all the rays of that bright lamp
Our angel Reason holds. We had not walked But for Tradition; we walk evermore
To higher paths by brightening Reason's lamp.

a. GEORGE ELIOT—Spanish Gypsy.

Bk. II.

You have ravished me away by a Power I you; and even since I have seen you I have endeavored often "to reason against the reasons of my Love."

RELIGION.

Children of men! the unseen Power, whose eye

Forever doth accompany mankind,
Hath look'd on no religion scornfully
That men did ever find.

k. MATTHEW ARNOLD—Progress. St. 10.

When I am here [Milan] I do not fast on Saturday. When at Rome I do fast on Saturday.

l. ST. AUGUSTINE—Ep. XXXVI. To Casulanus.

The greatest vicissitude of things amongst men, is the vicissitude of sects and religions.
m. BACON—Of Vicissitude of Things.

There was never law, or sect, or opinion did so much magnify goodness, as the Christian religion doth.

n. BACON—Essays. Of Goodness, and Goodness of Nature.

It [Calvinism] established a religion without a prelate, a government without a king.

o. GEORGE BANCROFT—History of the United States. Vol. III. Ch. VI.

Persecution is a bad and indirect way to plant religion.

p. SIR THOMAS BROWNE—Religio Medici.
XXV.

Speak low to me, my Saviour, low and sweet
From out the hallelujahs, sweet and low.
Lest I should fear and fall, and miss Thee so Who art not missed by any that entreat.

q. E. B. BROWNING—Comfort.

But the religion most prevalent in our northern colonies is a refinement on the principle of resistance, it is the dissidence of dissent; and the protestantism of the Protestant religion.

r. BURKE—Speech on Conciliation with America.

The body of all true religion consists, to be sure, in obedience to the will of the Sovereign of the world, in a confidence in His declarations, and in imitation of His perfections.

s. BURKE—Reflections on the Revolution in France.

The writers against religion, whilst they oppose every system, are wisely careful never to set up any of their own.

t. BURKE—A Vindication of Natural Society. Preface. Vol. 1. P. 7.

People differ in their discourse and profession about these matters, but men of sense are

G— knows I'm no the thing I should be,
Nor am I even the thing I could be,
But twenty times I rather would be An atheist clean,
Than under gospel colours hid be,
Just for a screen.

For nothing else but to be mended.

c. BUTLER—Hudibras. Pt. I. Canto I.
L. 205.

So, ere the storm of war broke out,
Religion spawn'd a various rout
Of petulant capricious sects,
The maggots of corrupted texts,
That first run all religion down,
And after every swarm its own.

d. BUTLER—Hudibras. Pt. III. Canto II.
L. 7.

Synods are mystical Bear-gardens,
Where Elders, Deputies, Church-wardens,
And other Members of the Court, Manage the Babylonish sport.

e. BUTLER—Hudibras. Pt. I. Canto III.
L. 1,095.

There's naught, no doubt, so much the spirit calms as rum and true religion.

f. BYRON—Don Juan. Canto II. St. 34.

His religion at best is an anxious wish,— like that of Rabelais, a great Perhaps.

g. CARLYLE—Essays. Burns.

On the whole we must repeat the often repeated saying, that it is unworthy a religious man to view an irreligious one either with alarm or aversion; or with any other feeling than regret, and hope, and brotherly com-miseration.

Forth from his dark and lonely hiding place,
(Portentuous sight!) the owl atheism, Sailing on obscene wings athwart the noon, Drops his blue-fring'd lids, and holds them close,

And hooting at the glorious sun in Heaven,
Cries out, "Where is it?"

k. COLERIDGE—Fears in Solitude.

Men will wrangle for religion; write for it;
fight for it; die for it; anything but—live for it.

l. C. C. COLTON—Lacon. Vol. I. XXV.

Pity! Religion has so seldom found
A skilful guide into poetic ground!
The flowers would spring where'er she deign'd

Sacred religion! Mother of Form and Fear!

q. SAM'L DANIEL—Musophilus. St. 47.

I do not find that the age or country makes the least difference; no, nor the language the actors spoke, nor the religion which they professed, whether Arab in the desert or Frenchman in the Academy, I see that sensible men and conscientious men all over the world were of one religion.

r. EMERSON—*Lectures and Biographical Sacrifice is the first element of religion, and resolves itself in theological language into the love of God.

s. FROUDE—Short Stories on Great Subjects. Sea Studies.

There are at bottom but two possible religions—that which rises in the moral nature of man, and which takes shape in moral com-observation of the material energies which operate in the external universe.

t. FROUDE—Short Studies on Great Subjects. Calvinism. P. 20.

But our captain counts the image of God,

u. FULLER—Holy and Profane States.
The Good Sea-Captain. Maxim 5.

Indeed, a little skill in antiquity inclines a

j. MARTIN LUTHER—Parody of First

The Puritan hated bear-baiting, not because pleasure to the spectators.

k. MACAULAY—History of England.
Vol. I. Ch. II.

Life and religion are one, or neither is anything : I will not say neither is growing to be anything. Religion is no way of life, no show of life, no observance of any sort. It is neither the food nor the medicine of being. It is life essential.

That there are fifty roads to town,

And rather more to Heaven.

u. PRAED—Chant of Brazen Head. St. 8.

No one is so much alone in the universe as a denier of God. With an orphaned heart, which has lost the greatest of fathers, he stands mourning by the immeasurable corpse of nature, no longer moved or sustained by the Spirit of the universe, but growing in its grave; and he mourns, until he himself crumbles away from the dead body.

v. RICHTER—Flower, Fruit and Thorn
Pieces. First Flower Piece.

Humanity and Immortality consist neither in reason, nor in love; not in the body, nor in the animation of the heart of it, nor in the thoughts and stirrings of the brain of it;—but in the dedication of them all to Him who will raise them up at the last day.

None but God can satisfy the longings of an immortal soul; that as the heart was made for Him, so He only can fill it.

k. RICHARD CHENEVIX TRENCH—Notes on the Parables. Prodigal Son.

Once I journeyed far from home
To the gate of holy Rome;
There the Pope, for my offence, Bade me straight, in penance, thence Wandering onward, to attain
The wondrous land that height Cokaigine.

l. ROBERT WACE—The Land of Cokaigine.

See the Gospel Church secure,
And founded on a Rock!
All her promises are sure;
Her bulwarks who can shock?
Count her every precious shrine;
Tell, to after-ages tell,
Fortified by power divine,
The Church can never fail.

m. CHARLES WESLEY—Scriptural.
Psalm XLVIII. St. 9.

Who God doth late and early pray
More of his Grace than Gifts to lend;
And entertains the harmless day
With a Religious Book or Friend.

n. SIR HENRY WOTTON—The Character of a Happy Life. St. 5.

But if man loses all, when life is lost,
He lives a coward, or a fool expires.
A daring infidel (and such there are,
From pride, example, lucre, rage, revenge,
Or pure heroic defect of thought),
Of all earth's madmen, most deserves a chain.

To wretched man, the goddess in her left Holds out this world, and, in her right, the

REMORSE.

Cruel Remorse! where Youth and Pleasure sport,
And thoughtless Folly keeps her court,— Crouching 'midst rosy bowers thou lurk'st
unseen;

Slumbering the festal hours away,
While Youth disports in that enchanting scene;

Till on some fated day Thou with a tiger-spring dost leap upon thy prey,

And fear his helpless breast, o'erwhelmed with wild dismay.

q. ANNA LETITIA BARBAULD—Ode to Remorse. St. 6.

Remorse is as the heart in which it grows;
If that be gentle, it drops balmy dews
Of true repentance; but if proud and gloomy,
It is the poison tree, that pierced to the inmost, Weeps only tears of poison.

r. COLERIDGE—Remorse. Act I. Sc. 1.

Motives, that Judas moved, soon spent their force,

When followed an intolerable remorse,
The dream of avarice was at an end,
He had betrayed his living Lord and Friend.

repent.

o. Henry IV. Pt. I. Act III. Sc. 3. L. 5.

What then? what rests?

Try what repentance can: what can it not?

Yet what can it when one cannot repent?

O wretched state! O bosom black as death!

O limed soul, that struggling to be free

Art more engag'd!

Of such enchanting scene!

w. SCOTT—Lord of the Isles. Canto IV.

Our foster-nurse of nature is repose,

The which he lacks; that to provoke in him,

Are many simples operative, whose power

Will close the eye of anguish.

x. King Lear. Act IV. Sc. 4. L. 12.

These should be hours for necessities,

Not for delights; times to repair our nature

With comforting repose, and not for us

To waste these times.

y. Henry VIII. Act V. Sc. 1. L. 3.

The best of men have ever loved repose:

They hate to mingle in the filthy fray;

grows,

Imbitter'd more from peevish day to day.

With patience suffers unexpected rain;
He blesses Heav'n for what its bounty spares,
And sees, resign'd, a crop of blighted grain.
But, spite of sermons, farmers would blaspheme,
If a star fell to set their thatch on flame.

It seem'd so hard at first, mother, to leave the blessed sun,
And now it seems as hard to stay—and yet
His will be done!
But still I think it can't be long before I find release;
And that good man, the clergyman, has told me words of peace.

good or evil, except at the very moment of execution.

"I find thee worthy; do this deed for me?"
t. LOWELL—Epigram.

Tell your master that if there were as many

Grow great by your example and put on The dauntless spirit of resolution.

The vast generations of man are come forth.

REVELATION.

Lochiel, Lochiel! beware of the day;
For, dark and despairing, my sight I may seal
But man cannot cover what God would reveal;
'Tis the sunset of life gives me mystical lore,
And coming events cast their shadows before.

That fools discover it, and stray no more.

d. COWPER—The Task. Bk. II. The Time-Piece. L. 526.

Nature is a revelation of God;
Art a revelation of man.

f. LONGFELLOW—Hyperion. Bk. III.

cast

O'er him and all he lov'd that ruinous blast.
m. MOORE—Lalla Rookh. The Veiled Prophet of Khorassan.

'Tis an old tale, and often told;

Of maiden true betray'd for gold,

That loved, or was avenged, like me!
n. SCOTT—Marmion. Canto II. St. 27.

Vengeance to God alone belongs;
But, when I think of all my wrongs,
My blood is liquid flame!

o. SCOTT—Marmion. Canto VI. St. 7.

Fear him and you have nothing else to fear.

v. FORDYCE—Answer to a Gentleman who Apologized to the Author for Swearing.

What a sweet reverence is that when a young man deems his mistress a little more than mortal and almost chides himself for longing to bring her close to his heart.

w. NATH. HAWTHORNE—The Marble Faun.
Vol. II. Ch. XV.

When once thy foot enters the church, be bare.

RIGHTS.

Among the natural rights of the colonists are these: First a right to life, secondly to liberty, thirdly to property; together with the right to defend them in the best manner they can.

But 'twas a maxim he had often tried,
That right was right, and there he would abide.

f. CRABBE—Tales. Tale XV. The Squire and the Priest.

For right is right, since God is God,
And right the day must win;
To doubt would be disloyalty,
To falter would be sin.

g. F. W. FABER—The Right Must Win.
St. 18.

For the ultimate notion of right is that which tends to the universal good; and when one's acting in a certain manner has this tendency he has a right thus to act.

Moral Philosophy. The General
Notions of Rights and Laws Explained.* Bk. II.

endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights; that among these are Life, Liberty, and the pursuit of happiness.

RIVERS.

And see the rivers how they run
Through woods and meads, in shade and sun, Sometimes swift, sometimes slow,— Wave succeeding wave, they go
A various journey to the deep,
Like human life to endless sleep!

l. JOHN DYER—Grongar Hill. L. 93.

Two ways the rivers
Leap down to different seas, and as they roll
Grow deep and still, and their majestic presence Becomes a benefaction to the towns
They visit, wandering silently among them,
Like patriarchs old among their shining tents.

m. LONGFELLOW—Christus. The Golden Legend. Pt. V.

By shallow rivers, to whose falls
Melodious birds sing madrigals.

n. MARLOWE—The Passionate Shepherd to His Love.

Now scantier limits the proud arch confine,
And scarce are seen the prostrate Nile or

And little eagles wave their wings in gold.

o. POPE—Moral Essays. *Ep. to Mr.
Addison.* L. 27.

I chatter, chatter as I flow
To join the brimming river,
For men may come and men may go,
But I go on forever.

p. TENNYSON—The Brook.

From Stirling Castle we had seen
The mazy Forth unravelled;
Had trod the banks of Clyde and Tay,
And with the Tweed had travelled;
And when we came to Clovenford,
Ther said "my winsome marrow," "Whate'er betide, we'll turn aside,
And see the braes of Yarrow."

q. WORDSWORTH—Yarrow Unvisited.

braes,
Flow gently, I'll sing thee a song in thy praise.

In Xanadu did Kubla Khan
A stately pleasure-dome decree;
Where Alph, the sacred river ran,
Through caverns measureless to man Down to a sunless sea.

b. COLERIDGE—Kubla Khan.

Arno.

At last the Muses rose, * * * And scattered, * * * as they flew,
Their blooming wreaths from fair Valclusa's bowers
To Arno's myrtle border.

Address before the Sons of New Hampshire. 1849.*

Ayr, gurgling, kissed his pebbled shore,

green;

The fragrant birch and hawthorn hoar Twined amorous round the raptured scene.

e. BURNS—To Mary in Heaven.

My peace with these, my love with those.
The bursting tears my heart declare;
Farewell, the bonnie banks of Ayr.

f. BURNS—The Banks of Ayr.

Bronx.

Yet I will look upon thy face again,
My own romantic Bronx, and it will be
A face more pleasant than the face of men.
Thy waves are old companions, I shall see

A well remembered form in each old tree
And hear a voice long loved in' thy wild minstrelsy.

g. JOSEPH RODMAN DRAKE—Bronx.

Cam.

Where stray ye, Muses! in what lawn or grove,
* * * * *
In those fair fields where sacred Isis glides,
Or else where Cam his winding vales divides?

h. POPE—Summer. L. 23.

Chattahoochee.

Out of the hills of Habersham,
Down the valleys of Hall,
I hurry amain to reach the plain;
Run the rapid and leap the fall,
Split at the rock, and together again
Accept my bed, or narrow or wide,
And flee from folly on every side
With a lover's pain to attain the plain,
Far from the hills of Habersham, Far from the valleys of Hall.

i. SIDNEY LANIER—The Song of the Chattahoochee.

Clyde.

How sweet to move at summer's eve
By Clyde's meandering stream,
When Sol in joy is seen to leave
The earth with crimson beam;
When islands that wandered far Above his sea couch lie,
And here and there some gem-like star
Re-opes its sparkling eye.

j. ANDREW PARK—The Banks of Clyde.

Dee.

Flow on, lovely Dee, flow on, thou sweet river, Thy banks' purest stream shall be dear to me ever.

k. JOHN TAIT—The Banks of the Dee.

"O Mary, go and call the cattle home,
And call the cattle home,
And call the cattle home,
Across the sands o' Dee;"
The western wind was wild and dank wi' foam,
And all alone went she.

l. CHARLES KINGSLEY—The Sands o' Dee.

Doon.

Ye banks and braes o' bonny Doon,
How can ye bloom sae fresh and fair;
How can ye chant, ye little birds,
And I sae weary fu' o' care!

m. BURNS—The Banks o' Doon.

Dove.

Oh, my beloved nymph, fair Dove,
Princess of rivers, how I love
Upon thy flowery banks to lie,
And view thy silver stream,
When gilded by a summer's beam!
And in it all thy wanton fry,
Playing at liberty;
And with my angle, upon them
The all of treachery

I ever learned, industriously to try!

L. 34.

Isar.

On Linden, when the sun was low,
All bloodless lay the untrodden snow,
And dark as winter was the flow Of Isar, rolling rapidly.

o. CAMPBELL—Hohenlinden.

Lee.

On this I ponder Where'er I wander,
And thus grow fonder,
Sweet Cork, of thee,—
With thy bells of Shandon, That sound so grand on
The pleasant waters
Of the river Lee.

a. FATHER PROUT (Francis Mahoney)—
The Bells of Shandon.

Leven.

On Leven's banks, while free to rove,
And tune the rural pipe to love,
I envied not the happiest swain
That ever trod the Arcadian plain.
Pure stream! in whose transparent wave
My youthful limbs I wont to lave;
No torrents stain thy limpid source,
No rocks impede thy dimpling course,
That sweetly warbles o'er its bed,
With white, round, polish'd pebbles spread.

b. SMOLLETT—Ode to Leven Water.

Loire.

How often I have led thy sportive choir,
With tuneless pipe, beside the murmuring
Loire!
Where shading elms along the margin grew,
And freshen'd from the wave, the zephyr flew.

c. GOLDSMITH—The Traveller. L. 243.

Merrimack.

Do pilgrims find their way to Indian Ridge,
Or journey onward to the far-off bridge,
And bring to younger ears the story back
Of the broad stream, the mighty Merrimack?

d. O. W. HOLMES—The School Boy. L. 247.

Niagara.

"Niagara! wonder of this western world,
And half the world beside! hail, beauteous queen Of cataracts!" An angel who had been O'er heaven and earth, spoke thus, his bright wings furled,
And knelt to Nature first, on this wild cliff
unseen.

e. MARIA BROOKS—To Niagara.

Flow on, forever, in thy glorious robe
Of terror and of beauty. Yea, flow on Unfathomed and resistless. God hath set His rainbow on thy forehead: and the cloud Mantled around thy feet. And He doth give Thy voice of thunder power to speak of Him
Eternally—bidding the lip of man
Keep silence—and upon thine altar pour Incense of awe-struck praise.

f. LYDIA M. SIGOURNEY—Niagara.

Nile.

It flows through old hushed Egypt and its sands,
Like some grave mighty thought threading a dream.

g. LEIGH HUNT—Sonnet. The Nile.

Son of the old moon-mountains African!
Stream of the Pyramid and Crocodile!
We call thee fruitful, and that very while
A desert fills our seeing's inward span.

h. KEATS—Sonnet. To the Nile.

The Nile, forever new and old,
Among the living and the dead,
Its mighty, mystic stream has rolled.

i. LONGFELLOW—Christus. The Golden Legend. Pt. I.

The higher Nilus swells,
The more it promises; as it ebbs, the seedsman
Upon the slime and ooze scatters his grain,
And shortly comes to harvest.

j. ANTONY AND CLEOPATRA. Act II. Sc. 7.
L. 23.

O'er Egypt's land of memory floods are level,
And they are thine, O Nile! and well thou knowest

That soul-sustaining airs and blasts of evil,
And fruits and poisons spring where'er thou flowest.

k. SHELLEY—Sonnet. To the Nile.
(See Keats' Poems.)

Mysterious Flood,—that through the silent sands

Hast wandered, century on century,
Watering the length of great Egyptian lands,
Which were not, but for thee.

Nith.

Hail, gentle stream! forever dear
The rudest murmurs to mine ear!
Torn from thy banks, though far I rove,
The slave of poverty and love,
Ne'er shall thy bard, where'er he be,
Without a sigh remember thee!

m. JOHN MAYNE—To the River Nith.

Potomac.

And Potomac flowed calmly, scarce heaving her breast,

With her low-lying billows all bright in the west,

For a charm as from God lulled the waters to rest

Of the fair rolling river.

n. PAUL HAMILTON HAYNE—Beyond the Potomac.

Rhine.

The castled crag of Drachenfels,
 Frowns o'er the wide and winding Rhine,
 Whose breast of waters broadly swells
 Between the banks which bear the vine,
 And hills all rich with blossom'd trees,
 And fields which promise corn and wine,
 And scatter'd cities crowning these,
 Whose far white walls along them shine.

a. BYRON—Childe Harold. Canto III.
 St. 55.

The air grows cool and darkles,
 The Rhine flows calmly on;
 The mountain summit sparkles
 In the light of the setting sun.
 b. HEINE—The Lorelei.

Beneath me flows the Rhine, and, like the stream of Time, it flows amid the ruins of the Past.

c. LONGFELLOW—Hyperion. Bk. I.
 Ch. III.

The Rhine! the Rhine! a blessing on the Rhine!

d. LONGFELLOW—Hyperion. Bk. I. Ch. II.

I've seen the Rhine with younger wave,
 O'er every obstacle to rave.
 I see the Rhine in his native wild
 Is still a mighty mountain child.

e. RUSKIN—A Tour on the Continent. Via Mala.

Oh, sweet is thy current by town and by tower,
 The green sunny vale and the dark linden
 bower;

Thy waves as they dimple smile back on the plain,

And Rhine, ancient river, thon'rt German again!

f. HORACE WALLACE—Ode on the Rhine's
Returning into Germany from France.

Rhone.

Is it not better, then, to be alone,
 And love Earth only for its earthly sake?
 By the blue rushing of the arrowy Rhone
 Or the pure bosom of its nursing lake.

g. BYRON—Childe Harold. Canto III.
 St. 71.

Thou Royal River, born of sun and shower
 In chambers purple with the Alpine glow, Wrapped in the spotless ermine of the snow
 And rocked by tempests!

h. LONGFELLOW—To the River Rhone.

Scheld.

Remote, unfriended, melancholy, slow,
 Or by the lazy Scheld or wandering Po!

i. GOLDSMITH—The Traveller. L. 1.

Schuylkill.

Alone by the Schuylkill a wanderer rov'd,
 And bright were its flowery banks to his eye;
 But far, very far, were the friends that he lov'd,
 And he gaz'd on its flowery banks with a sigh.

j. MOORE—Lines Written on Leaving Philadelphia.

St. Lawrence.

The first time I beheld thee, beauteous stream, How pure, how smooth, how broad thy bosom heav'd!

What feelings rush'd upon my heart!—a gleam

As of another life my kindling soul received.

k. MARIA BROOKS—To the River
St. Lawrence. St. 1.

Tagus.

On, on the vessel flies, the land is gone,
 And winds are rude, in Biscay's sleepless bay,

Four days are sped, but with the fifth, anon,
 New shores descried make every bosom gay;

And Cintra's mountain greets them on their way,

And Tagus dashing onward to the deep,
 His fabled golden tribute bent to pay;
 And soon on board the Lusian pilots leap,
 And steer 'twixt fertile shores where yet few rustics reap.

l. BYRON—Childe Harold. Canto I.
 St. 14.

Teviot.

Sweet Teviot! on thy silver tide
 The glaring bale-fires blaze no more;
 No longer steel-clad warriors ride Along thy wild and willow'd shore.

m. SCOTT—Lay of the Last Minstrel.
 Canto IV. St. 1.

Thames.

There is a hill beside the silver Thames, Shady with birch and beech and odorous
 pine;

And brilliant underfoot with thousand gems,
 Steeply the thickets to his floods decline.

n. ROB'T BRIDGES—There is a Hill beside the Silver Thames.

Slow let us trace the matchless vale of Thames;

Fair winding up to where the Muses haunt In Twit'nham bowers, and for their Pope implore.

o. THOMSON—Seasons. Summer. L. 1.425.

Never did sun more beautifully steep
 In his first splendor, valley, rock, or hill;
 Ne'er saw I, never felt, a calm so deep!
 The river glideth at his own sweet will.
 Dear God! the very houses seem asleep;
 And all that mighty heart is lying still!
 a. WORDSWORTH—Sonnet. Composed upon Westminster Bridge.

Tiber.

Thou hast fair forms that move
 With queenly tread;
 Thou hast proud fanes above
 Thy mighty dead.
 Yet wears thy Tiber's shore
 A mournful mien:—
 Rome, Rome, thou art no more As thou hast been.
 b. MRS. HEMANS—Roman Girl's Song.

ROMANCE.

Parent of golden dreams, Romance!
 Auspicious queen of childish joys,
 Who lead'st along, in airy dance,
 Thy votive train of girls and boys.
 f. BYRON—To Romance.

Romances paint at full length people's woo-ings,
 But only give a bust of marriages:
 For no one cares for matrimonial cooings.
 There's nothing wrong in a connubial kiss.
 Think you, if Laura had been Petrarch's wife,
 He would have written sonnets all his life?
 g. BYRON—Don Juan. Canto III. St. 8.

He loved the twilight that surrounds
 The border-land of old romance;
 Where glitter hauberk, helm, and lance,
 And banner waves, and trumpet sounds,
 And ladies ride with hawk on wrist,
 And mighty warriors sweep along,
 Magnified by the purple mist,
 The dusk of centuries and of song.
 h. LONGFELLOW—Prelude to Tales of a Wayside Inn. Pt. V. L. 130.

Romance is the poetry of literature.
 i. MADAME NECKER.

Lady of the Mere,
 Sole-sitting by the shores of old romance.
 j. WORDSWORTH—A Narrow Girdle of Rough Stones and Crags.

ROYALTY.

Ten poor men sleep in peace on one straw
 heap, as Saadi sings,
 But the immensest empire is too narrow for two kings.
 k. W. M. R. ALGER—*Oriental Poetry.
 Elbow Room.*

Those graceful groves that shade the plain,
 Where Tiber rolls majestic to the main,
 And flattens, as he runs, the fair campagne.
 c. OVID—*Metamorphoses. Bk. XIV.
 Æneas Arrives in Italy. L. 8.
 Sir Sam'l Garth's trans.*

Draw them to Tiber banks, and weep your tears
 Into the channel, till the lowest stream Do kiss the most exalted shores of all.
 d. Julius Cæsar. Act I. Sc. 1. L. 63.

Yvette.

O lovely river of Yvette!
 O darling stream! on balanced wings
 The wood-birds sang the chansonnette
 That here a wandering poet sings.
 e. LONGFELLOW—To the River Yvette. St. 5.

Many a crown

Covers bald foreheads.
 l. E. B. BROWNING—*Aurora Leigh.
 Bk. I. L. 754.*

God bless the King—I mean the faith's defender;
 God bless (no harm in blessing) the pre-tender;
 But who the pretender is, or who is King—
 God bless us all—that's quite another thing.
 m. JOHN BYRON—Miscellaneous Pieces.

God save our gracious king!
 Long live our noble king!
 God save the king!
 n. HENRY CAREY—God Save the King.

Every noble crown is, and on Earth will forever be, a crown of thorns.
 o. CARLYLE—*Past and Present. Bk. III.
 Ch. VIII.*

'Tis a very fine thing to be father-in-law
 To a very magnificent three-tailed bashaw.
 p. GEORGE COLMAN (The Younger)—
Blue Beard. Act III. Sc. 4.

Here lies our sovereign lord, the king,
 Whose word no man relies on,
 Who never said a foolish thing,
 And never did a wise one.
 q. *Said by a Courtier of Charles II.
 (ROCHESTER?) To which the King replied, "That is very true, for my words are my own. My actions are my minister's."*

And kind as kings upon their coronation day.
 r. DRYDEN—Fables. The Hind and the Panther. Pt. I. L. 271.

A man's a man,
 But when you see a king, you see the work
 Of many thousand men.
 s. GEORGE ELIOT—Spanish Gypsy. Bk. I.

Bayard Taylor's trans.

As yourselves your empires fall,

In war and one the king.

c. HOMER—Iliad. Bk. II. L. 253.
Bryant's trans.

On the king's gate the moss grew gray;
The king came not. They call'd him dead;
And made his eldest son, one day,
Slave in his father's stead.

d. HELEN HUNT JACKSON—Coronation.

God gives not kings the stile of Gods in vaine,
For on his throne his sceptre do they sway;
And as their subjects ought them to obey,
So kings should feare and serve their God again.

e. KING JAMES—Sonnet Addressed to his son, Prince Henry.

The trappings of a monarchy would set up an ordinary commonwealth.

f. SAM'L JOHNSON—Life of Milton.

A prince without letters is a Pilot without eyes. All his government is groping.

g. BEN JONSON—Discoveries. Illiteratus Princeps.

Princes that would their people should do well
Must at themselves begin, as at the head;
For men, by their example, pattern out
Their imitations, and regard of laws:
A virtuous court a world to virtue draws.

h. BEN JONSON—Cynthia's Revels. Act V.
Sc. 3.

They say Princes learn no art truly, but the art of horsemanship. The reason is, the brave beast is no flatterer. He will throw a Prince as soon as his groom.

i. BEN JONSON—Discoveries. *Illiteratus
Princeps*.

They [Americans] equally detest the pa-gentry of a king and the supercilious hypocrisy of a bishop.

Ah! vainest of all things
Is the gratitude of kings.

k. LONGFELLOW—Belisarius. St. 8.

nights

To him who wears the regal diadem.

L. 458.

His fair large front and eye sublime declared

Clustering, but not beneath his shoulders broad.

m. MILTON—Paradise Lost. Bk. IV.
L. 300.

'Tis so much to be a king, that he only is so by being so.

n. MONTAIGNE—Essays. Of the Inconveniences of Greatness.

A crown! what is it?
It is to bear the miseries of a people!
To hear their murmurs, feel their discontents,
And sink beneath a load of splendid care!

o. HANNAH MORE—Daniel. Pt. VI.

The King of France went up the hill,
With twenty thousand men;
The King of France came down the hill,
And ne'er went up again.

p. OLD TARTON'S Song. In a tract called

Empties itself, as doth an inland brook
Into the main of waters.

Ay, every inch a king.

w. King Lear. Act IV. Sc. 6. L. 109.

x. Henry V. Act IV. Sc. 1. L. 186.

His legs bestrid the ocean; his rear'd arm
Crested the world: his voice was property'd
As all the tun'd spheres, and that to friends;
But when he meant to quail and shake the orb,

He was as rattling thunder.

y. Antony and Cleopatra. Act V. Sc. 2.
L. 28.

Let us sit upon the ground
And tell sad stories of the death of kings:
How some have been depos'd, some slain in war,
Some haunted by the ghosts they have depos'd,
Some poison'd by their wives, some sleeping kill'd,
All murder'd.

a. Richard II. Act III. Sc. 2. L. 155.

O, how wretched
Is that poor man that hangs on princes' favors!

There is, betwixt that smile we would aspire to,

That sweet aspect of princes, and their ruin,
More pangs and fears than wars and women have;

And when he falls, he falls like Lucifer, Never to hope again.

b. Henry VIII. Act III. Sc. 2. L. 366.

She had all the royal makings of a queen;
As holy oil, Edward Confessor's crown,
The rod, and bird of peace, and all such emblems

Laid nobly on her.

The king-becoming graces,
As justice, verity, temperance, stableness,

And so continues till he dies.

The Pope with Saint Peter's key.

Can never unlock the one little heart

That is opened only to me.

For I am the Lord of a Realm,

And I am Pope of a See;

Indeed I'm supreme in the kingdom

That is sitting, just now, on my knee.

p. C. H. WEBB—The King and the Pope.

RUIN.

Should the whole frame of nature round him

Stern Ruin's ploughshare drives elate, Full on thy bloom.

SABBATH.

On Sundays, at the matin-chime,
The Alpine peasants, two and three,

Climb up here to pray;
Burghers and dames, at summer's prime,
Ride out to church from Chamberry,
Dight with mantles gay,

But else it is a lonely time Round the Church of Brou.

i. MATTHEW ARNOLD—The Church of Brou. II. St. 3.

Thou art my single day, God lends to leaven
What were all earth else, with a feel of heaven.

I dearly love but one day,
And that's the day that comes betwixt A Saturday and Monday.

k. HENRY CAREY—Sally in Our Alley.

Mute is the voice of rural labour, hush'd
The ploughboy's whistle, and the milkmaid's song.

l. JAMES GRAHAME—The Sabbath. Song.

Gently on tiptoe Sunday creeps, Cheerfully from the stars he peeps,
Mortals are all asleep below,
None in the village hears him go;
E'en chanticleer keeps very still,
For Sunday whispered, 'twas his will.

m. JOHN PETER HEBEL—Sunday Morning.

RUMOR.

The flying rumours gather'd as they roll'd,
Scarce any tale was sooner heard than told;
And all who told it added something new,
And all who heard it made enlargements too.

e. POPE—Temple of Fame. L. 468.

I cannot tell how the truth may be;

I say the tale as 'twas said to me.

f. SCOTT—Lay of the Last Minstrel.

Rumour doth double, like the voice and echo,
The numbers of the fear'd.

g. HENRY IV. Pt. II. Act III. Sc. 1.
L. 97.

Rumour is a pipe
Blown by surmises, jealousies, conjectures,
And of so easy and so plain a stop
That the blunt monster with uncounted heads,
The still-discordant wavering multitude,
Can play upon it.

h. HENRY IV. Pt. II. Act I. Induction.
L. 15.

S.

Sundaies observe: think when the bells do chime,

'Tis angel's musick; therefore come not late.

n. HERBERT—*The Temple. The Church
Porch*. St. 65.

The Sundaies of man's life,
Thredded together on time's string,

Of the eternal, glorious King.
On Sunday heaven's gates stand ope;
Blessings are plentiful and rife,

More plentiful than hope.

o. HERBERT—The Church. Sunday.

Of putting too much Sabbath into Sunday—
But what is your opinion, Mrs. Grundy?

p. HOOD—An Open Question. St. 1.

O day of rest! How beautiful, how fair,
How welcome to the weary and the old!

care!

Day of the Lord, as all our days should be!

q. LONGFELLOW—Christus. Pt. III.

With Hallelujahs. Thus was Sabbath kept.

L. 632.

For, bless the gude mon, gin he had his ain way,

He'd na let a cat on the Sabbath say
"mew;"

Nae birdie maun whistle, nae lambie maun play,

An' Phœbus himsel' could na travel that day.
As he'd find a new Joshua in Andie Agnew.

thine eyes red with weeping?

e. ANNA LETITIA BARBAULD—Hymns in Prose. XIII.

Of all tales 'tis the saddest—and more sad,
Because it makes us smile.

f. BYRON—Don Juan. Canto XIII.
St. 9.

A feeling of sadness and longing,
That is not akin to pain,
And resembles sorrow only

As the mist resembles the rain.

They praise my rustling show, and never see
My heart is breaking for a little love.

Sorrow so royally in you appears,
That I will deeply put the fashion on.

i. HEYWOOD—Henry IV. Pt. II. Act V. Sc. 2. L. 49.

We look before and after,
And sigh for what is not,

Our sincerest laughter
With some pain is fraught;

Our sweetest songs are those that tell of saddest thought.

Occasioned by the Death of Mr. Pope*.

Cervantes smiled Spain's chivalry away.

m. BYRON—Don Juan. Canto XIII. St. 11.

Why should we fear; and what? The laws?
They all are armed in virtue's cause;
And aiming at the self-same end,
Satire is always virtue's friend.

n. CHURCHILL—Ghost. Bk. III. L. 943.

Unless a love of virtue light the flame,
Satire is, more than those he brands, to blame;
He hides behind a magisterial air
His own offences, and strips others' bare.

o. COWPER—Charity. L. 490.

That fellow would vulgarize the day of judgment.

p. DOUGLAS JERROLD—A Comic Author.

Men are more satirical from vanity than from malice.

q. LA ROCHEFOUCAULD—Maxims. No. 508.

Damn with faint praise, assent with civil leer,
And without sneering, teach the rest to sneer;
Willing to wound, and yet afraid to strike,
Just hint a fault, and hesitate dislike;
Alike reserv'd to blame, or to commend,
A tim'rous foe, and a suspicious friend.

r. POPE—Prologue to Satires. L. 201.

Satire or sense, alas! Can Sporus feel?
Who breaks a butterfly upon a wheel?

s. POPE—Prologue to Satires. L. 307.

Satire's my weapon, but I'm too discreet
To run amuck and tilt at all I meet.

t. POPE—Second Book of Horace.
Satire I. Bk. II. L. 71.

There are, to whom my satire seems too bold;
Scarce to wise Peter complainant enough,
And something said of Chartres much too rough.

u. POPE—Second Book of Horace. Satire I.
L. 2.

It is a pretty mocking of the life.

v. TIMON OF ATHENS. Act I. Sc. 1. L. 35.

The empty vessel makes the greatest sound.

w. HENRY V. Act IV. Sc. 4. L. 73.

The tongues of mocking wenches are as keen

As is the razor's edge invisible,
Cutting a smaller hair than may be seen

Above the sense of sense; so sensible Seemeth their conference; their conceits have wings

Fleeter than arrows, bullets, wind, thought, swifter things.

x. Love's Labour's Lost. Act V. Sc. 2.
L. 256.

SCANDAL.

Dead scandals form good subjects for dissection.

y. BYRON—Don Juan. Canto I. St. 31.

Assail'd by scandal and the tongue of strife,
His only answer was a blameless life;
And he that forged, and he that threw the dart,

Had each a brother's interest in his heart.

a. COWPER—Hope. L. 570.

And though you duck them ne'er so long,
Not one salt drop e'er wets their tongue;
'Tis hence they scandal have at will,
And that this member ne'er lies still.

b. GAY—The Mad Dog.

And there's a lust in man no charm can tame
Of loudly publishing our neighbour's shame;
On eagles' wings immortal scandals fly,
While virtuous actions are but borne to die.

c. JUVENAL—Satires. IX. Harvey's trans.

Praise undeserved is scandal in disguise.

d. POPE—Epistles of Horace. Ep. I.
Bk. II. L. 413.

The mightier man, the mightier is the thing
What makes him honour'd, or begets him hate;

For greatest scandal waits on greatest state.

e. Lucrece. L. 1,004.

He rams his quill with scandal and with scoff,
But 'tis so very foul, it won't go off.

f. YOUNG—Epistles to Pope. Ep. I.
L. 199.

SCIENCE.

'Twas thus by the glare of false science betray'd,

That leads to bewilder, and dazzles to blind.

g. BEATTIE—The Hermit.

O star-eyed Science, hast thou wander'd there,
To waft us home the message of despair?

h. CAMPBELL—Pleasures of Hope. Pt. II.
L. 325.

I value science—none can prize it more,
It gives ten thousand motives to adore:
Be it religious, as it ought to be,
The heart it humbles, and it bows the knee.

i. ABRAHAM COLES—The Microcosm.
Christian Science.

While bright-eyed Science watches round.

j. GRAY—Ode for Music. Chorus. L. 11.

For science is * * * like virtue, its own exceeding great reward.

k. CHAS. KINGSLEY—Health and Education. Science.

One science only will one genius fit,
So vast is art, so narrow human wit.

l. POPE—Essay on Criticism. Pt. I. L. 60.

To the natural philosopher, to whom the whole extent of nature belongs, all the individual branches of science constitute the links of an endless chain, from which not one can be detached without destroying the harmony of the whole.

m. FRIEDRICH SCHOEDLER—Treasury of Science. Astronomy.

Science when well digested is nothing but good sense and reason.

n. STANISLAUS (King of Poland)—Maxims.
No. 43.

SCORN (See CONTEMPT).

SCRIPTURE.

His studie was but litel on the Bible.

o. CHAUCER—Canterbury Tales. Prologue.
L. 4.

A glory gilds the sacred page,
Majestic like the sun,
It gives a light to every age,
It gives, but borrows none.

p. COWPER—Olney Hymns. No. 30.

And that the Scriptures, though not everywhere

Free from corruption, or entire, or clear,
Are uncorrupt, sufficient, clear, entire
In all things which our needful faith require.

q. DRYDEN—Religio Laici. L. 297.

Out from the heart of nature rolled
The burdens of the Bible old.

r. EMERSON—The Problem.

The word unto the prophet spoken
Was writ on tablets yet unbroken;
The word by seers or sybils told,
In groves of oak or fanes of gold,
Still floats upon the morning wind,
Still whispers to the willing mind.

s. EMERSON—The Problem. St. 6.

It was a common saying among the Puritans,
"Brown bread and the Gospel is good fare."

t. MATHEW HENRY—Commentaries.
Isaiah XXX.

Shallows where a lamb could wade and depths where an elephant would drown.

u. MATHEW HENRY—Of Solomon's Song.

Bibles laid open, millions of surprises.

v. HERBERT—The Church. Sin.

Starres are poore books, and oftentimes do misse;

This book of starres lights to eternal blisse.

w. HERBERT—The Church. The Holy Scriptures. Pt. II.

Most wondrous book! bright candle of the Lord!

Star of Eternity! The only star
By which the bark of man could navigate
The sea of life, and gain the coast of bliss Securely.

a. POLLOK—Course of Time. Bk. II.
L. 270.

Within that awful volume lies
The mystery of mysteries!
Happiest they of human race,
To whom God has granted grace
To read, to fear, to hope, to pray,
To lift the latch, and force the way:
And better had they ne'er been born,
Who read to doubt, or read to scorn.

b. SCOTT—Monastery. Ch. XII.

But Thy good word informs my soul
How I may climb to heaven.

c. WATTS—The Excellency of the Bible.

How glad the heathens would have been,
That worship idols, wood and stone,
If they the book of God had seen.

d. WATTS—Praise for the Gospel.

The Bible is a book of faith, and a book of doctrine, and a book of morals, and a book of religion, of especial revelation from God.

e. DANIEL WEBSTER—Completion of Bunker Hill Monument, June 17, 1843.

SCULPTURE (See OCCUPATIONS).

SEASONS (THE).

Our seasons have no fixed returns,
Without our will they come and go;
At noon our sudden summer burns.

Ere sunset all is snow.
f. LOWELL—To —.

Autumn to winter, winter into spring,
Spring into summer, summer into fall,—
So rolls the changing year, and so we change;
Motion so swift, we know not that we move.

g. D. M. MULOCK—Immutable.

January grey is here,
Like a sexton by her grave;

February bears the bier,
March with grief doth howl and rave,
And April weeps—but, O ye hours!
Follow with May's fairest flowers.

h. SHELLEY—Dirge for the Year. St. 4.

Ah! well away!
Seasons flower and fade.

i. TENNYSON—Every Day hath its Night.

Spring.

For one swallow does not make spring, nor yet one fine day.

j. ARISTOTLE—Ethics. I. 6.

Fair Spring! whose simplest promise more delights
Than all their largest wealth, and through the heart

Each joy and new-born hope
With softest influence breathes.

k. ANNA LETITIA BARBAULD—Ode to Spring. St. 13.

But when shall spring visit the mouldering urn!

Oh, when shall it dawn on the night of the grave?

l. BEATTIE—The Hermit.

Fled now the sullen murmurs of the North,
The splendid raiment of the Spring peeps forth.

His universal green and the clear sky Delight still more and more the gazing eye.

m. BLOOMFIELD—The Farmer's Boy.

Now Nature hangs her mantle green
On every blooming tree,
And spreads her sheets o' daisies white
Out o'er the grassy lea.

n. BURNS—Lament of Mary Queen of Scots.

And the spring comes slowly up this way.

o. COLERIDGE—Christabel. Pt. I.

Spring hangs her infant blossoms on the trees,
Rock'd in the cradle of the western breeze.

p. COWPER—Tirocinium. L. 43.

If there comes a little thaw,
Still the air is chill and raw,
Here and there a patch of snow,
Dirtier than the ground below,
Dribbles down a marshy flood;
Ankle-deep you stick in mud
In the meadows while you sing,
"This is Spring."

q. C. P. CRANCH—A Spring Growl.

Starred forget-me-nots smile sweetly,
Ring, blue-bells, ring!
Winning eye and heart completely,
Sing, robin, sing!

All among the reeds and rushes,
Where the brook its music hushes,
Bright the calopogon blushes,—

Laugh, O murmuring Spring!

r. SARAH F. DAVIS—Summer Song.

Daughter of heaven and earth, coy Spring,
With sudden passion languishing,
Teaching barren moors to smile,
Painting pictures mile on mile,
Holds a cup of cowslip wreaths Whence a smokeless incense breathes.

a. EMERSON—May Day. St. 1.

The beauteous eyes of the spring's fair night
With comfort arc downward gazing.

d. HEINE—Book of Songs. New Spring.

The spring's already at the gate
With looks my care beguiling ;
The country round appeareth straight
A flower-garden smiling.

e. HEINE—Book of Songs. Catherine.
No. 6.

I come, I come ! ye have called me long,
I come o'er the mountain with light and
song :

Ye may trace my step o'er the wakening earth,
By the winds which tell of the violet's birth,
By the primrose-stars in the shadowy grass,
By the green leaves, opening as I pass.

f. MRS. HEMANS—Voice of Spring.

Sweet Spring, full of sweet dayes and roses,
A box where sweets compacted lie,
My musick shows ye have your closes,
And all must die.

g. HERBERT—The Church. Vertue. St. 3.

All flowers of Spring are not May's own ;
The crocus cannot often kiss her ;
The snow-drop, ere she comes, has flown ;—
The earliest violets always miss her.

h. LUCY LARCOM—The Sister Months.

And softly came the fair young queen
O'er mountain, dale, and dell ;
And where her golden light was seen
An emerald shadow fell.

The good-wife oped the window wide,
The good-man spanned his plough ;
'Tis time to run, 'tis time to ride,
For Spring is with us now.

i. LELAND—Spring.

Came the Spring with all its splendor,
All its birds and all its blossoms,
All its flowers, and leaves, and grasses.

j. LONGFELLOW—Hiawatha. Pt. XXI.

Dark shadows wove on their aerial looms,
Shot through with golden thread.

k. LONGFELLOW—Hawthorne. St. 2.

Thus came the lovely spring with a rush of blossoms and music, Flooding the earth with flowers, and the air with melodies vernal.

On many a green branch swinging,
Little birdlets singing
Warble sweet notes in the air.

Flowers fair
There I found.

Green spread the meadow all around.

n. NITHART—Trans. in The Minnesinger of Germany. Spring-Song.

Gentle Spring!—in sunshine clad,
Well dost thou thy power display !
For Winter maketh the light heart sad,
And thou,—thou makest the sad heart gay.

o. CHARLES D'ORLÉANS—Spring.
Longfellow's trans.

Hark ! the hours are softly calling Bidding Spring arise,
To listen to the rain-drops falling
From the cloudy skies.

To listen to Earth's weary voices,
Louder every day,
Bidding her no longer linger
On her charm'd way ;
But hasten to her task of beauty Scarcely yet begun.

p. ADELAIDE A. PROCTER—Spring.

I wonder if the sap is stirring yet,
If wintry birds are dreaming of a mate,
If frozen snowdrops feel as yet the sun,
And crocus fires are kindling one by one.

q. CHRISTINA G. ROSSETTI—The First
Spring Day. St. 1.

There is no time like Spring,
When life's alive in everything,
Before new nestlings sing,
Before cleft swallows speed their journey back Along the trackless track.

r. CHRISTINA G. ROSSETTI—Spring. St. 3.

Spring flies, and with it all the train it leads ;
And flowers, in fading, leave us but their seeds.

s. SCHILLER—Farewell to the Reader.

When daisies pied, and violets blue,
And lady-smocks all silver-white,
And cuckoo-buds of yellow hue
Do paint the meadows with delight.

a. Love's Labour's Lost. Act V. Sc. 2.
L. 904.

So forth issew'd the Seasons of the year:
First, lusty Spring, all dight in leaves of flowres

That freshly budded and new bloomes did beare,

In which a thousand birds had built their bowres

That sweetly sung to call forth paramours;
And in his hand a javelin he did beare,
And on his head (as fit for warlike stoures)
A guilt, engraven morion he did weare:
That, as some did him love, so others did him feare.

b. SPENSER—Faerie Queene. Bk. VII.

And two by two in fairyland.

c. ROBT. LOUIS STEVENSON—Underwoods.
It is the Season Now to Go.

O tender time that love thinks long to see,
Sweet foot of Spring that with her footfall sows

Late snow-like flowery leavings of the snows,

Be not too long irresolute to be;
O mother-month, where have they hidden thee?

d. SWINBURNE—A Vision of Spring in Winter.

Dip down upon the Northern shore,
O sweet new year, delaying long;
Thou dost expectant Nature wrong,
Delaying long; delay no more.

e. TENNYSON—Spring.

In the Spring a livelier iris changes on the burnish'd dove;

In the Spring a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love.

f. TENNYSON—Locksley Hall. St. 9.

Once more the Heavenly Power Makes all things new,
And domes the red-plough'd hills
With loving blue;
The blackbirds have their wills,
The throistles too.

g. TENNYSON—Early Spring.

The bee buzz'd up in the heat,
"I am faint for your honey, my sweet."
The flower said, "Take it, my dear,
For now is the Spring of the year.
So come, come!"
"Hum!"

And the bee buzz'd down from the heat.

Fair-handed Spring unbosoms every grace: Throws out the snowdrop and the crocus first.

k. THOMSON—Seasons. Spring. L. 527.

The Clouds consign their treasures to the fields,

And, softly shaking on the dimpled pool,
Prelusive drops, let all their moisture flow
In large effusion, o'er the freshen'd world.

l. THOMSON—Seasons. Spring. L. 173.

'Tis spring-time on the eastern hills!
Like torrents gush the summer rills;
Through winter's moss and dry dead leaves
The bladed grass revives and lives,
Pushes the mouldering waste away,
And glimpses to the April day.

m. WHITTIER—Mogg Megone. Pt. III.

And all the woods are alive with the murmur and sound of spring,
And the rosebud breaks into pink on the climbing briar,

And the crocus bed is a quivering moon of fire

Girdled round with the belt of an amethyst ring.

n. OSCAR WILDE—Magdalen Walks.

The Spring is here—the delicate footed May,
With its slight fingers full of leaves and flowers,

And with it comes a thirst to be away,
In lovelier scenes to pass these sweeter hours.

o. N. P. WILLIS—Spring.

Summer.

In lang, lang days o' simmer,
When the clear and cloudless sky
Refuses ae wee drap o' rain
To Nature parched and dry,
The genial night, wi' balmy breath,
Gars verdure spring anew,
An' ilka blade o' grass
Keps its ain drap o' dew.
p. BALLANTINE—Its Ain Drap o' Dew.

O thou who passeth through our valleys in Thy strength, curb thy fierce steeds, allay the heat
That flames from their large nostrils! Thou,
O Summer,
Oft pitchest here thy golden tent, and oft Beneath our oaks hast slept, while we beheld
With joy thy ruddy limbs and flourishing hair.

q. WM. BLAKE—To Summer.

But how unlike to April's closing days!
High climbs the sun, and darts his powerful rays;
Whitens the fresh drawn mould and pierces through
The cumbrous clods that tumble round the plough.

a. BLOOMFIELD—The Farmer's Boy.
Summer. St. 1.

The sun has drunk
The dew that lay upon the morning grass;
There is no rustling in the lofty elm
That canopies my dwelling, and its shade
Scarce cools me. All is silent save the faint And interrupted murmur of the bee,
Settling on the sick flowers, and then again Instantly on the wing.

b. BRYANT—Summer Wind.

Now simmer blinks on flowery braes,
And o'er the crystal streamlet plays.

c. BURNS—The Birks of Aberfeldy.

The isles of Greece, the isles of Greece!
Where burning Sappho loved and sung,
Where grew the arts of war and peace,—
Where Delos rose, and Phœbus sprung!

Eternal summer gilds them yet,
But all, except their sun, is set.

d. BYRON—Don Juan. Canto III. St. 86.

The Indian Summer, the dead Summer's soul.
e. MARY CLEMMER—Presence. L. 62.

All green and fair the Summer lies,
Just budded from the bud of Spring,
With tender blue of wistful skies,
And winds which softly sing.

f. SUSAN COOLIDGE—Menace.

Dust on thy mantle! dust,
Bright Summer, on thy livery of green!

A tarnish as of rust,
Dims thy late brilliant sheen;
And thy young glories,—leaf and bud and flower,—

Change cometh over them with every hour.

g. WM. D. GALLAGHER—August.

From all the misty morning air, there comes a summer sound,
A murmur as of waters from skies, and trees,
and ground.

The birds they sing upon the wing, the pigeons bill and coo.

h. R. W. GILDER—A Midsummer Song.
St. 2.

Oh, father's gone to market-town, he was up before the day,

And Jamie's after robins, and the man is making hay,

And whistling down the hollow goes the boy
that minds the mill,

While mother from the kitchen door is calling with a will,

"Polly!—Polly!—The cows are in the corn!
Oh, where's Polly?"

i. R. W. GILDER—A Midsummer Song.

Thou'rt bearing hence thy roses,
Glad summer, fare thee well!
Thou'rt singing thy last melodies
In every wood and dell.

Of a summer that lived for us,
Here is a promise Of summer to be.

k. WM. ERNEST HENLEY—Rhymes and Rhythms.

O for a lodge in a garden of cucumbers!
O for an iceberg or two at control!
O for a vale that at midday the dew cumbers!
O for a pleasure trip up to the pole!

l. ROSSITER JOHNSON—Ninety-Nine in the Shade.

O summer day beside the joyous sea!
O summer day so wonderful and white,
So full of gladness and so full of pain!
Forever and forever shalt thou be
To some the gravestone of a dead delight,
To some the landmark of a new domain.

m. LONGFELLOW—A Summer Day by the Sea. L. 9.

That beautiful season
* * * the Summer of All-Saints!
Filled was the air with a dreamy and magical light; and the landscape Lay as if new created in all the freshness of childhood.

n. LONGFELLOW—Evangeline. Pt. I. St. 2.

Very hot and still the air was,
Very smooth the gliding river,
Motionless the sleeping shadows.

o. LONGFELLOW—Hiawatha. Pt. XVIII.
L. 54.

But see, the shepherds shun the noonday heat,
The lowing herds to murmuring brooks retreat,

To closer shades the panting flocks remove;
Ye gods! and is there no relief for love?

p. POPE—Pastorals. Summer.

Before green apples blush,
Before green nuts embrown,
Why, one day in the country
Is worth a month in town.

q. CHRISTINA G. ROSSETTI—Summer.

It's surely summer, for there's a swallow:
Come one swallow, his mate will follow,
The bird race quicken and wheel and thicken.

r. CHRISTINA G. ROSSETTI—A Bird Song.

The summer dawn's reflected hue
To purple changed Loch Katrine blue, Mildly and soft the western breeze
Just kiss'd the lake, just stirr'd the trees,
And the pleased lake, like maiden coy,
Trembled but dimpled not for joy.

Heat, ma'am! it was so dreadful here, that I found there was nothing left for it but to take off my flesh and sit in my bones.

d. SYDNEY SMITH—Lady Holland's Memoir. Vol. I. P. 267.

Then came the jolly sommer, being dight

In a thin silken cassock, coloured greene,

That was unlynd all, to be more light.

e. SPENSER—Faerie Queene. Bk. VII. Canto VII. St. 29.

All-conquering Heat, O, intermit thy wrath!

And on my throbbing temples, potent thou,

Beam not so fierce! incessant still you flow,

And still another fervent flood succeeds,

Pour'd on the head profuse. In vain I sigh,

And restless turn, and look around for night;

Night is far off; and hotter Hours approach.

f. THOMSON—Seasons. Summer. L. 451.

From brightening fields of ether fair-disclosed,

Child of the Sun, refulgent Summer comes,

In pride of youth, and felt through Nature's depth;

He comes, attended by the sultry Hours,

And ever-fanning breezes, on his way.

g. THOMSON—Seasons. Summer. L. 1.

Patient of thirst and toil,

Son of the desert, e'en the Camel feels,

Shot through his wither'd heart, the fiery blast.

h. THOMSON—Seasons. Summer. L. 965.

Autumn.

Now Autumn's fire burns slowly along the woods,

And day by day the dead leaves fall and melt,

And night by night the monitory blast

Wails in the key-hole, telling how it pass'd

O'er empty fields, or upland solitudes,

Or grim wide wave; and now the power is felt

Of melancholy, tenderer in its moods

Than any joy indulgent Summer dealt.

i. WILLIAM ALLINGHAM—Day and Night Songs. Autumnal Sonnet.

O Autumn, laden with fruit, and stained

With the blood of the grape, pass not, but sit

Beneath my shady roof; there thou mayest rest

And tune thy jolly voice to my fresh pipe,

And all the daughters of the year shall dance!

Sing now the lusty song of fruits and flowers.

j. WILLIAM BLAKE—To Autumn. St. 1.

Autumn wins you best by this, its mute

Appeal to sympathy for its decay.

k. ROBERT BROWNING—Paracelsus. Sc. 1.

Glorious are the woods in their latest gold and crimson,

Yet our full-leaved willows are in their freshest green.

Such a kindly autumn, so mercifully dealing

With the growths of summer, I never yet have seen.

l. BRYANT—Third of November.

The melancholy days are come, the saddest of the year,

Of mellowing winds, and naked woods, and meadows brown and sear.

m. BRYANT—The Death of the Flowers.

All-cheering Plenty, with her flowing horn,

Led yellow Autumn, wreath'd with nodding corn.

n. BURNS—Brigs of Ayr. L. 221.

The mellow autumn came, and with it came

The promised party, to enjoy its sweets.

The corn is cut, the manor full of game;

The pointer ranges, and the sportsman beats

In russet jacket;—lynx-like is his aim;

Full grows his bag, and wonderful his feats.

Ah, nutbrown partridges! Ah, brilliant pheasants!

And ah, ye poachers!—'Tis no sport for peasants.

o. BYRON—Don Juan. Canto XIII.

St. 75.

Yellow, mellow, ripened days,

Sheltered in a golden coating;

O'er the dreamy, listless haze,

White and dainty cloudlets floating;

Winking at the blushing trees,

And the sombre, furrowed fallow;

Smiling at the airy ease,

Of the southward flying swallow.

Sweet and smiling are thy ways,

Beauteous, golden Autumn days.

p. WILL CARLETON—Autumn Days.

The summer's throbbing chant is done

And mute the choral antiphon;

The birds have left the shivering pines

To flit among the trellised vines,

Or fan the air with scented plumes

Amid the love-sick orange blooms,

And thou art here alone,—alone,—

Sing, little bird! the rest have flown.

q. O. W. HOLMES—Songs of Many Seasons. An Old-Year Song. St. 4.

I saw old Autumn in the misty morn

Stand shadowless like silence, listening

To silence, for no lonely bird would sing

Into his hollow ear from woods forlorn,

Nor lowly hedge nor solitary thorn;—

Shaking his languid locks all dewy bright

With tangled gossamer that fell by night,

Pearling his coronet of golden corn.

r. HOOD—Ode. Autumn.

The Autumn is old ;
The sere leaves are flying ;
He hath gather'd up gold,
And now he is dying ;—
Old age, begin sighing !
a. HOOD—Autumn.

The year's in the wane ;
There is nothing adorning ;
The night has no eve,
And the day has no morning ;
Cold winter gives warning !
b. HOOD—Autumn.

Season of mists and mellow fruitfulness !
Close bosom-friend of the maturing sun ;
Conspiring with him how to load and bless With fruit the vines that round the thatch-eaves run ;
To bend with apples the moss'd cottage trees,
And fill all fruit with ripeness to the core,
c. KEATS—To Autumn.

Gone are the birds that were our summer guests,
With the last sheaves return the laboring wains !
d. LONGFELLOW—The Harvest Moon. L. 7.

It was Autumn, and incessant
Piped the quails from shocks and sheaves,
And, like living coals, the apples Burned among the withering leaves.
e. LONGFELLOW—Pegasus in Pound.

What visionary tints the year puts on,
When falling leaves falter through motionless air
Or numbly cling and shiver to be gone !
How shimmer the low flats and pastures
bare,
As with her nectar Hebe Autumn fills
The bowl between me and those distant hills,
And smiles and shakes abroad her misty, tremulous hair !
f. LOWELL—An Indian Summer Reverie.

Every season hath its pleasures ;
Spring may boast her flowery prime,
Yet the vineyard's ruby treasures Brighten Autumn's sob'rer time.
g. MOORE—Spring and Autumn.

Autumn
Into earth's lap does throw Brown apples gay in a game of play,
As the equinoctials blow.
h. D. M. MULOCK—October.

Sorrow and the Scarlet leaf,
Sad thoughts and sunny weather ;
Ah me ! this glory and this grief Agree not well together !
i. T. W. PARSONS—A Song for September.

Thus sung the shepherds till th' approach of night,
The skies yet blushing with departing light,
When falling dews with spangles deck'd the glade,
And the low sun had lengthened every shade.
j. POPE—Pastorals. Autumn. Last lines.

Ye flowers that drop, forsaken by the spring,
Ye birds that, left by summer, cease to sing,
Ye trees that fade, when Autumn heats remove,
Say, is not absence death to those who love ?
k. POPE—Autumn. L. 27.

Grieve, O ye Autumn Winds !
Summer lies low ;
The rose's trembling leaves will soon be shed,
For she that loved her so,
Alas ! is dead,
And one by one her loving children go.
l. ADELAIDE A. PROCTER—Lament for the Summer.

Autumn is a weathercock Blown every way.
m. CHRISTINA G. ROSSETTI—Summer.

This sunlight shames November where he grieves
In dead red leaves, and will not let him shun
The day, though bough with bough be overrun.
But with a blessing every glade receives High salutation.
n. DANTE GABRIEL ROSSETTI—Autumn Idleness.

The warm sun is failing, the bleak wind is wailing,
The bare boughs are sighing, the pale flowers are dying ;
And the year
On the earth her deathbed, in a shroud of leaves dead,
Is lying.
Come, months, come away,
From November to May,
In your saddest array ;
Follow the bier
Of the dead cold year,
And like dim shadows watch by her sepulchre.
o. SHELLEY—Autumn. A Dirge.

Divinest Autumn ! who may paint thee best,
Forever changeful o'er the changeful globe ?
Who guess thy certain crown, thy favorite crest,
The fashion of thy many-colored robe ?
p. R. H. STODDARD—Autumn.

Cold autumn, wan with wrath of wind and rain,
Saw pass a soul sweet as the sovereign tune
That death smote silent when he smote again.
q. SWINBURNE—Autumn and Winter. I.

Autumn has come;
Storming now heaveth the deep sea with foam,

Yet would I gratefully lie there,
Willingly die there.

a. ESAIAS TEGNÉR—Fridthjof's Saga.
Ingeborg's Lament.

How are the veins of thee, Autumn, laden?
Umbered juices,
And pulpèd oozes

Pappy out of the cherry-bruises,
Froth the veins of thee, wild, wild maiden!
With hair that musters
In globèd clusters,

In tumbling clusters, like swarthy grapes,
Round thy brow and thine ears o'ershaden;
With the burning darkness of eyes like pansies,
Like velvet pansies
Where through escapes

The splendid might of thy conflagrate fancies;
With robe gold-tawny not hiding the shapes
Of the feet whereunto it falleth down,
Thy naked feet unsandalled;

With robe gold-tawny that does not veil
Feet where the red
Is meshed in the brown,

Like a rubied sun in a Venice-sail.

b. FRANCIS THOMPSON—A Corymbus for Autumn. St. 2.

Crown'd with the sickle and the wheaten sheaf,
While Autumn, nodding o'er the yellow
plain,

Comes jovial on.

c. THOMPSON—Seasons. Autumn. L. 1.

I love to wander through the woodlands hoary

In the soft light of an autumnal day,
When Summer gathers up her robes of glory,
And like a dream of beauty glides away.

d. SARAH HELEN WHITMAN—Still Day in Autumn.

And Autumn, in his leafless bowers,
Is waiting for the Winter's snow.

e. WHITTIER—Autumn Thoughts.

Autumn's earliest frost had given To the woods below

Hues of beauty, such as heaven
Lendeth to its bow;

And the soft breeze from the west Scarcely broke their dreamy rest.

f. WHITTIER—The Fountain. St. 9.

Winter.

These Winter nights against my window-pane Nature with busy pencil draws designs
Of ferns and blossoms and fine spray of pines,
Oak-leaf and acorn and fantastic vines,
Which she will make when summer comes
again—

Quaint arabesques in argent, flat and cold, Like curious Chinese etchings.

g. T. B. ALDRICH—Frost-Work.

O Winter! bar thine adamantine doors:
The north is thine; there hast thou built thy dark,

Deep-founded habitation. Shake not thy roofs,

Nor bend thy pillars with thine iron car.

h. WILLIAM BLAKE—To Winter.

When now, unsparing as the scourge of war,
Blasts follow blasts and groves dismantled roar;

Around their home the storm-pinched cattle
lows,

No nourishment in frozen pasture grows;
Yet frozen pastures every morn resound With fair abundance thund'ring to the ground.

i. BLOOMFIELD—The Farmer's Boy.
Winter. St. 2.

Look! the massy trunks
Are cased in the pure crystal; each light spray,
Nodding and tinkling in the breath of heaven,
Is studded with its trembling water-drops,
That glimmer with an amethystine light.

j. BRYANT—A Winter Piece. L. 66.

Yet all how beautiful! Pillars of pearl Propping the cliffs above, stalactites bright
From the ice roof depending; and beneath, Grottoes and temples with their crystal spires
And gleaming columns radiant in the sun.

k. WM. HENRY BURLEIGH—Winter.

The frost performs its secret ministry,
Unhelped by any wind.

l. COLERIDGE—Frost at Midnight. L. 1.

Every Fern is tucked and set,
'Neath coverlet,

Downy and soft and warm.

m. SUSAN COOLIDGE—Time to Go.

O Winter! ruler of the inverted year,

* * * * *

I crown thee king of intimate delights,
Fireside enjoyments, home-born happiness,
And all the comforts that the lowly roof
Of undisturb'd Retirement, and the hours Of long uninterrupted evening, know.

n. COWPER—The Task. Bk. IV. L. 120.

There's silence in the harvest field:
And blackness in the mountain glen,
And cloud that will not pass away
From the hill-tops for many a day;
And stillness round the homes of men.

o. MARY HOWITT—Winter.

'Tis winter, yet there is no sound
Along the air

Of winds along their battle-ground;
But gently there

The snow is falling,—all around How fair, how fair!

p. RALPH HOYT—Snow. A Winter Sketch.

On a lone winter evening, when the frost
Has wrought a silence.

a. KEATS—On the Grasshopper and Cricket.

His breath like silver arrows pierced the air,
The naked earth crouched shuddering at his feet,

His finger on all flowing waters sweet Forbidding lay—motion nor sound was there:—

Nature was frozen dead,—and still and slow,
A winding sheet fell o'er her body fair,
Flaky and soft, from his wide wings of snow.

b. FRANCES ANNE KEMBLE—Winter. L. 9.

Every winter,

When the great sun has turned his face away,
The earth goes down into a vale of grief,
And fasts, and weeps, and shrouds herself in sables,

Leaving her wedding-garlands to decay—
Then leaps in spring to his returning kisses.

c. CHARLES KINGSLEY—Saint's Tragedy.
Act III. Sc. 1.

Up rose the wild old winter-king,
And shook his beard of snow;

"I hear the first young hare-bell ring,
'Tis time for me to go!

Northward o'er the icy rocks,
Northward o'er the sea,

My daughter comes with sunny locks:
This land's too warm for me!"

d. LELAND—Spring.

Where, twisted round the barren oak,
The summer vine in beauty clung,
And summer winds the stillness broke,
The crystal icicle is hung.

e. LONGFELLOW—Woods in Winter. St. 3.

But see, Orion sheds unwholesome dews;
Arise, the pines a noxious shade diffuse;
Sharp Boreas blows, and nature feels decay,
Time conquers all, and we must time obey.

f. POPE—Ode to Winter. L. 85.

Here feel we but the penalty of Adam,
The seasons' difference, as the icy fang
And churlish chiding of the winter's wind,
Which, when it bites and blows upon my body,
Even till I shrink with cold, I smile and say,
"This is no flattery."

g. As You Like It. Act II. Sc. 1. L. 5.

When icicles hang by the wall,
And Dick, the shepherd, blows his nail,
And Tom bears logs into the hall,
And milk comes frozen home in pail,
When blood is nipp'd and ways be foul,
Then nightly sings the staring owl,

Tu-whit;

Tu-who, a merry note,
While greasy Joan doth keel the pot.

h. Love's Labour's Lost. Act V. Sc. 2.
L. 922.

Winter's not gone yet, if the wild-geese fly that way.

i. King Lear. Act II. Sc. 4. L. 46.

In winter, when the dismal rain
Came down in slanting lines,
And Wind, that grand old harper, smote
His thunder-harp of pines.

j. ALEXANDER SMITH—A Life Drama.
Sc. 2.

Green moss shines there with ice encased;
The long grass bends its spear-like form;
And lovely is the silvery scene
When faint the sun-beams smile.

k. SOUTHEY—Written Dec. 1. St. 9.

Lastly came Winter clothed all in frize, Chattering his teeth for cold that did him
chill;

Whilst on his hoary beard his breath did freeze,
And the dull drops, that from his purpled bill
As from a limebeck did adown distill:

In his right hand a tipped staffe he held,
With which his feeble steps he stayed still;
For he was faint with cold, and weak with eld;

That scarce his loosed limbes he hable was to weld.

l. SPENSER—Faerie Queene. Canto VII.
Legend of Constance. St. 31.

Under the snowdrifts the blossoms are sleeping,

Dreaming their dreams of sunshine and June, Down in the hush of their quiet they're keeping

Trills from the throstle's wild summer-sung tune.

m. HARRIET PRESCOTT SPOFFORD—Under the Snowdrifts.

Dread Winter spreads his latest glooms,
And reigns, tremendous, o'er the conquer'd Year.

How dead the vegetable kingdom lies!
How dumb the tuneful! Horror wide extends His desolate domain.

n. THOMSON—Seasons. Winter. L. 1,024.

See, Winter comes, to rule the varied year,
Sullen and sad, with all his rising train;
Vapors, and Clouds, and Storms.

o. THOMSON—Seasons. Winter. L. 1.

Through the hush'd air the whitening Shower descends,

At first thin wavering; till at last the Flakes Fall broad, and wide, and fast, dimming the day

With a continual flow. The cherished Fields Put on their winter-robe of purest white.
'Tis brightness all; save where the new Snow melts

Along the mazy current.

p. THOMSON—Seasons. Winter. L. 229.

Make we here our camp of winter ;
 And, through sleet and snow,
 Pitchy knot and beechen splinter
 On our hearth shall glow.
 Here, with mirth to lighten-duty,
 We shall lack alone
 Woman's smile and girlhood's beauty, Childhood's lisping tone.
a. WHITTIER—Lumbermen. St. 8.

What miracle of weird transforming
 Is this wild work of frost and light,
 This glimpse of glory infinite ?

Stern Winter loves a dirge-like sound.

SECRECY.

How can we expect another to keep our secret if we cannot keep it ourselves.

 Give it an understanding, but no tongue.
f. Hamlet. Act I. Sc. 2. L. 249.

But that I am forbid,
 To tell the secrets of my prison-house,
 I could a tale unfold whose lightest word
 Would harrow up thy soul.
g. Hamlet. Act I. Sc. 5. L. 13.

If you have hitherto conceal'd this sight,
 Let it be tenable in your silence still.

 L. 144.

SELF-EXAMINATION.

Summe up at night what thou hast done by day ;

And in the morning what thou hast to do.
 Dresse and undresse thy soul ; mark the decay

And growth of it : if, with thy watch, that too Be down, then wind up both ; since we shall be

Most surely judg'd, make thy accounts agree.

k. HERBERT—The Temple. The Church Porch. Next to last stanza.

One self-approving hour whole years outweighs

Of stupid starers and of loud huzzas.

 Knock there, and ask your heart what it doth know.

 L. 136.

Speak no more :

Thou turn'st mine eyes into my very soul ;
 And there I see such black and grained spots
 As will not leave their tinct.

n. Hamlet. Act III. Sc. 4. L. 88.

There is a luxury in self-dispraise ;
 And inward self-disparagement affords
 To meditative spleen a grateful feast.

o. WORDSWORTH—The Excursion. Bk. IV.

'Tis greatly wise to talk with our past hours ;
 And ask them what report they bore to heaven :

And how they might have borne more welcome news.

p. YOUNG—Night Thoughts. Night II.
 L. 376.

SELFISHNESS.

It is difficult to persuade mankind that the love of virtue is the love of themselves.

q. CICERO.

Where all are selfish, the sage is no better than the fool, and only rather more dangerous.

r. FROUDE—Short Studies on Great Subjects. Party Politics.

Despite those titles, power, and pelf,
 The wretch, concentrated all in self,
 Living, shall forfeit fair renown,
 And, doubly dying, shall go down
 To the vile dust from whence he sprung, Unwept, unhonour'd and unsung.

s. SCOTT—Lay of the Last Minstrel.
 Canto VI. St. 1.

What need we any spur but our own cause,
 To prick us to redress ?

t. Julius Cæsar. Act II. Sc. 1. L. 123.

Love took up the harp of Life, and smote on all the chords with might ;
 Smote the chord of Self, that, trembling, pass'd in music out of sight.

u. TENNYSON—Locksley Hall. L. 33.

SELF-LOVE.

Self-love is a principle of action ; but among no class of human beings has nature so profusely distributed this principle of life and action as through the whole sensitive family of genius.

v. ISAAC DISRAELI—Literary Character of Men of Genius. Ch. XV.

A gentleman is one who understands and shows every mark of deference to the claims of self-love in others, and exacts it in return from them.

Self-love is the greatest of all flatterers.

b. LA ROCHEFOUCAULD—Maxims. No. 3.

To observations which ourselves we make, We grow more partial for th' observer's sake.

c. POPE—Moral Essays. Ep. I. L. 11.

I to myself am dearer than a friend.

d. Two Gentlemen of Verona. Act II. Sc. 6. L. 23.

O villainous! I have looked upon the world for four times seven years; and since I could distinguish betwixt a benefit and an injury, I never found man that knew how to love himself.

e. Othello. Act I. Sc. 3. L. 312.

Self-love, my liege, is not so vile a sin As self-neglecting.

f. Henry V. Act II. Sc. 4. L. 74.

This self-love is the instrument of our preservation; it resembles the provision for the perpetuity of mankind:—it is necessary, it is dear to us, it gives us pleasure, and we must conceal it.

'Tis use alone that sanctifies expense

And splendor borrows all her rays from sense.

l. POPE—Moral Essays. Ep. IV. L. 179.

What thin partitions sense from thought divide.

m. POPE—Essay on Man. Ep. I. L. 226.

Sense is our helmet, wit is but the plume; The plume exposes, 'tis our helmet saves. Sense is the diamond, weighty, solid, sound; When cut by wit, it casts a brighter beam; Yet, wit apart, it is a diamond still.

Which, like the needle true,

Turns at the touch of joy or woe,

But turning, trembles too.

q. MRS. GREVILLE—A Prayer for Indifference.

And the heart that is soonest awake to the flowers

Is always the first to be touch'd by the thorns.

r. MOORE—O Think Not My Spirits.

It seem'd as if each thought and look

And motion were that minute chain'd

Fast to the spot such root she took,

And—like a sunflower by a brook,

With face upturn'd—so still remain'd!

s. MOORE—Loves of the Angels. First Angel's Story. L. 33.

Prompt sense of equity! to thee belongs

The swift redress of unexamined wrongs!

Eager to serve, the cause perhaps untried,

But always apt to choose the suffering side!

t. HANNAH MORE—Sensibility. L. 243.

Since trifles make the sum of human things, And half our misery from our foibles springs; Since life's best joys consist in peace and ease, And though but few can serve, yet all may please;

Oh, let th' ungentle spirit learn from hence,

A small unkindness is a great offence.

u. HANNAH MORE—Sensibility.

And the touch'd needle trembles to the pole.

SERVICE.

We are his,

To serve him nobly in the common cause,

True to the death, but not to be his slaves.

w. COWPER—Task. Bk. V. L. 340.

When I have attempted to join myself to others by services, it proved an intellectual trick,—no more. They eat your service like apples, and leave you out. But love them, and they feel you, and delight in you all the time.

I serv'd my king, he would not in mine age
Have left me naked to mine enemies.

e. Henry VIII. Act III. Sc. 2. L. 455.

I am an ass, indeed, you may prove it by my long ears. I have served him from the hour of my nativity to this instant, and have nothing at his hands for my service but blows.
When I am cold, he heats me with beating.

his dirty linen to wash; I will wash yours another time.

i. VOLTAIRE—Reply to General Manstein.

Small service is true service while it lasts:

Of humblest friends, bright Creature! scorn not one;

The Daisy, by the shadow that it casts, Protects the lingering dew drop from the Sun.

p. Titus Andronicus. Act II. Sc. 3. L. 15.

Come like shadows, so depart!

q. Macbeth. Act IV. Sc. 1. L. 111.

Shadows to-night

Have struck more terror to the soul of Richard Than can the substance of ten thousand soldiers

Armed in proof, and led by shallow Richmond.

r. Richard III. Act V. Sc. 3. L. 216.

Some there be that shadows kiss;

Such have but a shadow's bliss.

s. Merchant of Venice. Act II. Sc. 9. L. 66.

SHAKESPEARE.

This was Shakespeare's form;
Who walked in every path of human life,
Felt every passion; and to all mankind
Doth now, will ever, that experience yield Which his own genius only could acquire.

t. AKENSIDE—Inscription. IV.

Others abide our question. Thou art free.
We ask and ask—Thou smilest and art still,
Out-topping knowledge.

u. MATTHEW ARNOLD—Shakespeare.

There, Shakespeare, on whose forehead climb
The crowns o' the world. Oh, eyes sublime With tears and laughter for all time.

v. E. B. BROWNING—A Vision of Poets.

"With this same key Shakespeare unlocked his heart," once more!
Did Shakespeare? If so, the less Shakespeare hel!

w. ROBERT BROWNING—House. X.

If I say that Shakespeare is the greatest of intellects, I have said all concerning him.
But there is more in Shakespeare's intellect than we have yet seen. It is what I call an unconscious intellect; there is more virtue in it than he himself is aware of.

x. CARLYLE—Essays. Characteristics of Shakespeare.

Our myriad-minded Shakespeare.

y. COLERIDGE—Biographia Literaria.
Ch. XV.

When great poets sing,
Into the night new constellations spring,
With music in the air that dulls the craft Of rhetoric. So when Shakespeare sang or laughed

The world with long, sweet Alpine echoes thrilled

Voiceless to scholars' tongues no muse had filled

With melody divine.

z. C. P. CRANCH—Shakespeare.

But Shakespeare's magic could not copied be; Within that circle none durst walk but he.

a. DRYDEN—The Tempest. Prologue.

Nor sequent centuries could hit Orbit and sum of Shakespeare's wit.

b. EMERSON—May Day and Other Pieces.
Solution. L. 39.

The passages of Shakespeare that we most prize were never quoted until within this century.

c. EMERSON—Letters and Social Aims.
Quotation and Originality.

What point of morals, of manners, of economy, of philosophy, of religion, of taste, of the conduct of life, has he not settled? What mystery has he not signified his knowledge of?
What office, or function, or district of man's work, has he not remembered? What king has he not taught state, as Talma taught Napoleon? What maiden has not found him finer than her delicacy? What lover has he not outloved? What sage has he not outseen?
What gentleman has he not instructed in the rudeness of his behavior?

d. EMERSON—Representative Men.
Shakespeare.

When Shakespeare is charged with debts to his authors, Landor replies, "Yet he was more original than his originals. He breathed upon dead bodies and brought them into life."

e. EMERSON—Letters and Social Aims.
Quotation and Originality.

Now you who rhyme, and I who rhyme,
Have not we sworn it, many a time,
That we no more our verse would scrawl,
For Shakespeare he had said it all!

f. R. W. GILDER—The Modern Rhymer.

For a good poet's made, as well as born,
And such wast thou! Look how the father's face

Lives in his issue; even so the race
Of Shakespeare's mind and manners brightly shine

In his well-turned and true-filèd lines;
In each of which he seems to shake a lance,
As brandished at the eyes of ignorance.

g. BEN JONSON—Lines to the Memory of Shakespeare.

He was not of an age, but for all time!
And all the Muses still were in their prime,
When, like Apollo, he came forth to warm
Our ears, or like a Mercury to charm!

h. BEN JONSON—Lines to the Memory of Shakespeare.

I remember, the players have often mentioned it as an honour to Shakespeare, that in his writing (whatsoever he penned) he never blotted out a line. My answer hath been, would he had blotted a thousand.

i. BEN JONSON—Discoveries. De
Shakespeare nostrat.

Nature herself was proud of his designs,
And joyed to wear the dressing of his lines!
Which were so richly spun, and woven so fit,
As since, she will vouchsafe no other wit.

j. BEN JONSON—Lines to the Memory of Shakespeare.

Soul of the Age!

The applause! delight! the wonder of our stage!

My Shakespeare rise! I will not lodge thee by Chaucer, or Spenser, or bid Beaumont lie
A little further off, to make thee room:
Thou art a monument without a tomb,
And art alive still, while thy book doth live
And we have wits to read, and praise to give.

k. BEN JONSON—Lines to the Memory of Shakespeare.

Sweet Swan of Avon! What a sight it were To see thee in our water yet appear.

l. BEN JONSON—Lines to the Memory of Shakespeare.

This figure that thou here seest put,
It was for gentle Shakespeare cut,
Wherein the graver had a strife
With Nature, to outdo the life:
Oh, could he but have drawn his wit
As well in brass, as he has hit
His face, the print would then surpass
All that was ever writ in brass;
But since he cannot, reader, look
Not on his picture, but his book.

m. BEN JONSON—Lines on a Picture of Shakespeare.

* * * Thou hadst small Latin and less Greek.

n. BEN JONSON—Lines to the Memory of Shakespeare.

Shakespeare is not our poet, but the world's,
Therefore on him no speech!

o. WALTER SAVAGE LANDOR—To Robert
Browning. L. 5.

Then to the well-trod stage anon
If Jonson's learned sock be on,
Or sweetest Shakespeare, Fancy's child, Warble his native wood-notes wild.

p. MILTON—L'Allegro. L. 131.

What needs my Shakespeare for his honored bones

The labors of an age in piled stones?
Or that his hallowed reliques should be hid
Under a starry-pointing pyramid?
Dear son of Memory, great heir of fame,
What need'st thou such weak witness of thy name?

Thou in our wonder and astonishment Hath built thyself a living monument.

q. MILTON—An Epitaph.

Shakespeare (whom you and every playhouse billion

Style the divine! the matchless! what you will),

For gain, not glory, wing'd his roving flight,
And grew immortal in his own despite.

a. POPE—Imitations of Horace. Ep. I.
Bk. II. L. 69.

Few of the university pen plaies well, they smell too much of that writer Ovid and that writer Metamorphosis and talk too much of Proserpina and Jupiter. Why, here's our fellow Shakespeare puts them all down. Aye, and Ben Jonson too. O that B. J. is a pestilent fellow, he brought up Horace giving the poets a pill, but our fellow, Shakespeare, hath given him a purge that made him betray his credit.

b. The Return from Parnassus; or, the Scourge of Simony. Act IV. Sc. 3.

Shikspur, Shikspur! Who wrote it?

No, I never read Shikspur.

Then you have an immense pleasure to come.

c. JAMES TOWNLEY—*High Life Below
Stairs*. Act II. Sc. 1.

Scorn not the Sonnet. Critic, you have frowned,

Mindless of its just honours; with this key Shakespeare unlocked his heart.

d. WORDSWORTH—Scorn not the Sonnet.

SHAME.

A nightingale dies for shame if another bird sings better.

e. BURTON—Anatomy of Melancholy.

Pt. I. Sec. II. Memb. 3.
Subsec. VI.

Love taught him shame, and shame, with love
at strife,

Soon taught the sweet civilities of life.

f. DRYDEN—Cymon and Iphigenia.
L. 133.

The only art her guilt to cover,

To hide her shame from every eye,

To give repentance to her lover,

And wring his bosom, is—to die.

g. GOLDSMITH—Vicar of Wakefield.
Ch. XXIV.

If yet not lost to all the sense of shame.

h. HOMER—Iliad. Bk. VI. L. 350.
Pope's trans.

And there's a lust in man no charm can tame
Of loudly publishing our neighbor's shame;
On eagles' wings immortal scandals fly,
While virtuous actions are but born and die.

i. JUVENAL—Satire IX. Harvey's trans.

Here shame dissuades him, there his fear prevails,

And each by turns his aching heart assails.

j. OVID—Metamorphoses. Bk. III.

Transformation of Actæon. L. 73.

Addison's trans.

All is confounded, all!

Reproach and everlasting shame

Sits mocking in our plumes.

k. Henry V. Act IV. Sc. 5. L. 3.

He was not born to shame:

Upon his brow shame was asham'd to sit;

For 'tis a throne where honour may be crown'd

Sole monarch of the universal earth.

L. 91.

O shame! Where is thy blush?

m. Hamlet. Act III. Sc. 4. L. 82.

The most curious offspring of shame is shyness.

n. SYDNEY SMITH—Lecture on the Evil Affections.

She bears her down majestically near,

Speed on her prow, and terror in her tier.

o. BYRON—The Corsair. Canto III.
St. 15.

She walks the waters like a thing of life.

And seems to dare the elements to strife.

p. BYRON—The Corsair. Canto I. St. 3.

The true ship is the ship builder.

q. EMERSON—Essays. Of History.

Ships that sailed for sunny isles,

But never came to shore.

r. THOS. HERVEY—The Devil's Progress.

Being in a ship is being in a jail, with the chance of being drowned.

s. SAM'L JOHNSON—Boswell's Life of Johnson. An. 1759.

And the wind plays on those great sonorous harps, the shrouds and masts of ships.

t. LONGFELLOW—Hyperion. Bk. I.
Ch. VII.

Build me straight, O worthy Master!

Staunch and strong, a goodly vessel

That shall laugh at all disaster,

And with wave and whirlwind wrestle!

u. LONGFELLOW—Building of the Ship.
L. 1.

There's not a ship that sails the ocean,

But every climate, every soil,

Must bring its tribute, great or small,

And help to build the wooden wall!

v. LONGFELLOW—The Building of the Ship.
L. 66.

Like ships that have gone down at sea,

When heaven was all tranquillity.

w. MOORE—Lalla Rookh. The Light of the Harem.

And let our barks across the pathless flood Hold different courses.

a. SCOTT—Kenilworth. Ch. XXIX.
Introductory verses.

The barge she sat in, like a burnish'd throne,
Burn'd on the water: the poop was beaten gold;

Purple the sails, and so perfumed that The winds were love-sick with them: the oars were silver,

Which to the tune of flutes kept stroke, and made

The water which they beat to follow faster,
As amorous of their strokes.

b. Antony and Cleopatra. Act II. Sc. 2.
L. 196.

Ships, dim discover'd, dropping from the clouds.

c. THOMSON—The Seasons. Summer.
L. 946.

SHIPWRECK.

Some hoisted out the boats, and there was one
That begged Pedrillo for an absolution,
Who told him to be damn'd,—in his confusion.

d. BYRON—Don Juan. Canto II. St. 44.

Then rose from sea to sky the wild farewell—Then shriek'd the timid, and stood still the brave,—

Then some leap'd overboard with fearful yell,
As eager to anticipate their grave.

e. BYRON—Don Juan. Canto II. St. 52.

Again she plunges! hark! a second shock
Bilges the splitting vessel on the rock;
Down on the vale of death, with dismal cries,
The fated victims shuddering cast their eyes
In wild despair; while yet another stroke
With strong convulsion rends the solid oak:
Ah Heaven!—behold her crashing ribs divide!
She loosens, parts, and spreads in ruin o'er the tide.

f. FALCONER—Shipwreck. Canto III.
L. 642.

And fast through the midnight dark and drear,
Through the whistling sleet and snow,
Like a sheeted ghost, the vessel swept Towards the reef of Norman's Woe.

g. LONGFELLOW—The Wreck of the Hesperus. St. 15.

But hark! what shriek of death comes in the gale,
And in the distant ray what glimmering sail Bends to the storm?—Now sinks the note of fear!

Ah! wretched mariners!—no more shall day Unclose his cheering eye to light ye on your way!

h. MRS. RADCLIFFE—Mysteries of Udolpho. Shipwreck.

A rotten carcass of a boat, not rigged,
Nor tackle, sail, nor mast; the very rats Instinctively have quit it.

i. Tempest. Act I. Sc. 2. L. 146.

O, I have suffer'd
With those that I saw suffer: a brave vessel,
Who had, no doubt, some noble creature in her,
Dash'd all to pieces. O, the cry did knock Against my very heart! Poor souls, they perished.

j. Tempest. Act I. Sc. 2. L. 5.

False fires, that others may be lost.

And that same eye whose bend doth awe the world

Did lose his lustre.

SLEEP.

What means this heaviness that hangs upon me?

This lethargy that creeps through all my senses?

Nature, oppress'd and harrass'd out with care,
Sinks down to rest.

- j. ADDISON—Cato. Act V. Sc. 1.

What probing deep
Has ever solved the mystery of sleep?

- k. T. B. ALDRICH—Human Ignorance.

How happy he whose toil
Has o'er his languid pow'rless limbs diffus'd
A pleasing lassitude; he not in vain
Invokes the gentle Deity of dreams.
His pow'rs the most voluptuously dissolve
In soft repose; on him the balmy dews
Of Sleep with double nutriment descend.

- l. ARMSTRONG—The Art of Preserving Health. Bk. III. L. 385.

When the sheep are in the fauld, and a' the kye at hame,

And all the weary world to sleep are gane.

By sleeping, what it is to die:

And as gently lay my head

On my grave, as now my bed.

- n. SIR THOMAS BROWNE—Religio Medici. Pt. II. Sec. XII.

How he sleepeth! having drunken Weary childhood's mandragore,
From his pretty eyes have sunken Pleasures to make room for more—Sleeping near the withered nosegaw which he pulled the day before.

- o. E. B. BROWNING—A Child Asleep.

Of all the thoughts of God that are Borne inward unto souls afar,

Along the Psalmist's music deep,

Now tell me if that any is,

For gift or grace, surpassing this—

"He giveth His beloved sleep."

- p. E. B. BROWNING—The Sleep.

Sleep on, Baby, on the floor,

Tired of all the playing,

Sleep with smile the sweeter for

That you dropped away in!

On your curls' full roundness stand

Golden lights serenely—

One cheek, pushed out by the hand,

Folds the dimple inly.

- q. E. B. BROWNING—Sleeping and Watching.

Sleep hath its own world,
A boundary between the things misnamed Death and existence: Sleep hath its own world,

And a wide realm of wild reality,

And dreams in their development have breath,

And tears, and tortures, and the touch of joy.

- r. BYRON—The Dream. St. 1.

Now, blessings light on him that first invented this same sleep! it covers a man all over, thoughts and all, like a cloak; it is meat for the hungry, drink for the thirsty, heat for the cold, and cold for the hot. It is the current coin that purchases all the pleasures of the world cheap; and the balance that sets the king and the shepherd, the fool and the wise man, even. There is only one thing, which somebody once put into my head, that I dislike in sleep; it is, that it resembles death; there is very little difference between a man in his first sleep, and a man in his last sleep.

a. CERVANTES—Don Quixote. Pt. II.
Ch. LXVIII.

O sleep! it is a gentle thing,
Beloved from pole to pole!
To Mary Queen the praise be given!
She sent the gentle sleep from Heaven
That slid into my soul.

b. COLERIDGE—Ancient Mariner. Pt. V.
St. 1.

Visit her, gentle Sleep! with wings of healing,
And may this storm be but a mountain-birth,
May all the stars hang bright above her dwelling,

Silent as though they watched the sleeping Earth!

c. COLERIDGE—Dejection. An Ode. St. 8.

On eyes that watch as well as eyes that weep
Descends the solemn mystery of sleep,
Toiling and climbing to the very close,
The weary Body, longing for repose,
On the gained level of the day's ascent,
Halts for the night and pitches there its tent.

d. ABRAHAM COLES—Man, the Microcosm, and the Cosmos.

Care-charmer Sleep, son of the sable Night,
Brother to Death, in silent darkness born;
Relieve my languish, and restore the light.

e. SAMUEL DANIEL—Sonnet. 51. To Awake thee, my Lady-Love!

Wake thee, and rise!
The sun through the bower peeps
Into thine eyes.

f. GEORGE DARLEY—Waking Song.

Sister Simplicitie!
Sing, sing a song to me,—
Sing me to sleep!
Some legend low and long,
Slow as the summer song
Of the dull Deep.

A perfect form in perfect rest.

* * * * *

Who would in such a gloomy state remain

Longer than Nature craves?

o. THOMSON—Seasons. Summer. L. 71.

Yet never sleep the sun up. Prayer shou'd Dawn with the day. There are set, awful hours

'Twixt heaven and us. The manna was not good

After sun-rising; far day sullies flowres.

Rise to prevent the sun; sleep doth sin glut,

And heaven's gate opens when the world's is shut.

Eternal smiles his emptiness betray,
As shallow streams run dimpling all the way.

m. POPE—Prologue to Satires. L. 315.

With a smile on her lips, and a tear in her eye.
n. SCOTT—Marmion. Canto V. St. 12.

Nobly he yokes
A smiling with a sigh, as if the sigh
Was that it was, for not being such a smile:
The smile mocking the sigh, that it would fly
From so divine a temple, to commix
With winds that sailors rail at.

Those happy smiles,

SNOW.

Lo, sifted through the winds that blow,
Down comes the soft and silent snow,
White petals from the flowers that grow
In the cold atmosphere.

u. GEORGE W. BUNGAY—The Artists of the Air.

Through the sharp air a flaky torrent flies,
Mocks the slow sight, and hides the gloomy skies;

The fleecy clouds their chilly bosoms bare,
And shed their substance on the floating air.

v. CRABBE—Inebriety.

Announced by all the trumpets of the sky,
Arrives the snow, and, driving o'er the fields,
Seems nowhere to alight: the whited air Hides hills and woods, the river, and the heaven,

And veils the farmhouse at the garden's end.
The sled and traveller stopped, the courier's feet

Delayed, all friends shut out, the housemates sit

Around the radiant fire-place, enclosed
In a tumultuous privacy of storm.

w. EMERSON—The Snow-Storm.

Come, see the north-wind's masonry.
 Out of an unseen quarry evermore
 Furnished with tile, the fierce artificer
 Curves his white bastions with projected roof
 Round every windward stake, or tree, or door.
 Speeding, the myriad-handed, his wild work
 So fanciful, so savage, naught cares he For number or proportion.

a. EMERSON—The Snow-Storm.

Out of the bosom of the Air,
 Out of the cloud-folds of her garments shaken,
 Over the woodlands brown and bare,
 Over the harvest-fields forsaken,
 Silent, and soft, and slow Descends the snow.

b. LONGFELLOW—Snow-Flakes.

The cold winds swept the mountain-height,
 And pathless was the dreary wild,
 And 'mid the cheerless hours of night,
 A mother wandered with her child:
 As through the drifting snows she press'd
 The babe was sleeping on her breast.

c. SEBA SMITH—The Snow-Storm.

SOCIETY.

For it is most true that a natural and secret hatred and aversion towards society in any man, hath somewhat of the savage beast.

d. BACON—Essays. Civil and Moral. Of Friendship.

A people is but the attempt of many
 To rise to the completer life of one—
 And those who live as models for the mass

 Till one man's weakness grows the strength of all.

There is
 One great society alone on earth:
 The noble Living and the noble Dead.

x. WORDSWORTH—The Prelude. Bk. XI.

SOLITUDE.

But little do men perceive what solitude is, and how far it extendeth. For a crowd is not company; and faces are but a gallery of pictures; and talk but a tinkling cymbal, where there is no love.

Converse with men makes sharp the glittering wit,

But God to man doth speak in solitude.

With none who bless us, none whom we can bless.

e. BYRON—Childe Harold. Canto II. St. 26.

Might never reach me more!

Prison'd in a parlour snug and small,

Like bottled wasps upon a southern wall.

O Solitude! if I must with thee dwell,
Let it not be among the jumbled heap
Of murky buildings: climb with me the steep,—

Nature's observatory—whence the dell,
In flowery slopes, its river's crystal swell,
May seem a span; let me thy vigils keep 'Mongst boughs pavilion'd, where the deer's swift leap

Startles the wild bee from the foxglove bell.
c. KEATS—*Sonnet. O Solitude! If I Must
With Thee Dwell*.

Why should we faint and fear to live alone,
Since all alone, so Heaven has willed, we die,
Nor even the tenderest heart and next our own Knows half the reasons why we smile and sigh.

'Tis not for golden eloquence I pray,
A godlike tongue to move a stony heart—

Dreaming upon the wonderful sweet face
Of Nature, in a wild and pathless place.

f. Macbeth. Act II. Sc. 3. L. 86.

Hark! from the tombs a doleful sound.

g. ISAAC WATTS—Hymns and Spiritual Songs. Bk. II. Hymn 63.

My eyes are dim with childish tears,
My heart is idly stirred,
For the same sound is in my ears
Which in those days I heard.

h. WORDSWORTH—The Fountain.

SPEECH.

And let him be sure to leave other men their tongues to speak.

i. BACON—*Essays. Civil and Moral.
Of Discourse*. No. 32.

Discretion of speech is more than eloquence;
and to speak agreeably to him with whom we deal is more than to speak in good words or in good order.

j. BACON—Essays. Of Discourse.

For brevity is very good,

Where we are, or are not understood.

k. BUTLER—Hudibras. Pt. I. Canto I.
L. 669.

He who does not make his words rather serve to conceal than discover the sense of his heart deserves to have it pulled out like a traitor's and shown publicly to the rabble.

l. BUTLER—The Modern Politician.

His speech was a fine sample, on the whole,
Of rhetoric, which the learn'd call "rigmarole."

m. BYRON—Don Juan. Canto I. St. 174.

Boys flying kites haul in their white winged birds;
You can't do that way when you're flying words.

"Careful with fire," is good advice we know,
"Careful with words," is ten times doubly so.
Thoughts unexpressed may sometimes fall back dead;

But God Himself can't kill them when they're said.

n. WILL CARLETON—The First Settler's Story. St. 21.

Speak not at all, in any wise, till you have somewhat to speak; care not for the reward of your speaking, but simply and with undivided mind for the truth of your speaking.

o. CARLYLE—Essays. Biography.

He mouths a sentence as curs mouth a bone.

p. CHURCHILL—The Rosiad. L. 322.

Think all you speak; but speak not all you think:

Thoughts are your own; your words are so no more.

Where Wisdom steers, wind cannot make you sink:

Lips never err, when she does keep the door.

q. DELAUNE—Epigram.

As a vessel is known by the sound, whether it be cracked or not; so men are proved, by their speeches, whether they be wise or foolish.

r. DEMOSTHENES.

Abstruse and mystic thoughts you must express

With painful care, but seeming easiness;
For truth shines brightest thro' the plainest dress.

s. WENTWORTH DILLON—Essay on Translated Verse. L. 216.

O that grave speech would cumber our quick souls

Like bells that waste the moments with their loudness.

t. GEORGE ELIOT—The Spanish Gypsy.
Bk. III.

Speech is but broken light upon the depth
Of the unspoken.

u. GEORGE ELIOT—The Spanish Gypsy.
Bk. I.

Speech is better than silence; silence is better than speech.

v. EMERSON—Essay on Nominalist and Realist.

The true use of speech is not so much to express our wants as to conceal them.

w. GOLDSMITH—The Bee. No. 3.

Know when to speake; for many times it brings

Danger to give the best advice to kings.

a. HERRICK—Hesperides. Caution in Councill.

In man speaks God.

b. HESIOD—Works and Days.

The flowering moments of the mind

Drop half their petals in our speech.

c. O. W. HOLMES—To My Readers. St. 11.

And endless are the modes of speech, and far Extends from side to side the field of words.

d. HOMER—Iliad. Bk. XX. L. 315.
Bryant's trans.

Speak gently! 'tis a little thing

Dropp'd in the heart's deep well:

The good, the joy, that it may bring Eternity shall tell.

e. G. W. LANGFORD—Speak Gently.

It is never so difficult to speak as when we are ashamed of our silence.

f. LA ROCHEFOUCAULD—Maxims. No. 178.

Speech was made to open man to man, and not to hide him; to promote commerce, and not to betray it.

g. DAVID LLOYD—State Worthies.

When Adam first of men,
To first of women Eve, thus moving speech,
Turn'd him all ear to hear new utterance flow.

h. MILTON—Paradise Lost. Bk. IV. L. 408.

Speech is like cloth of Arras opened and put abroad, whereby the imagery doth appear in figure; whereas in thoughts they lie but as in packs.

i. PLUTARCH—Life of Themistocles.

Just at the age 'twixt boy and youth,
When thought is speech, and speech is truth.

j. SCOTT—Marmion. Canto II. Introduction.

I had a thing to say,
But I will fit it with some better time.

k. KING JOHN. Act III. Sc. 3. L. 25.

I would be loath to cast away my speech,
for besides that it is excellently well penn'd,
I have taken great pains to con it.

l. Twelfth Night. Act I. Sc. 5. L. 183.

Rude am I in my speech,
And little blessed with the soft phrase of peace;
For since these arms of mine had seven years' pith,

Till now some nine moons wasted, they have us'd

Their dearest action in the tented field,
And little of this great world can I speak,
More than pertains to feats of broil and battle,
And therefore little shall I grace my cause
In speaking for myself.

m. Othello. Act I. Sc. 3. L. 81.

She speaks poniards, and every word stabs.

n. Much Ado About Nothing. Act II: Sc. 1. L. 255.

Your fair discourse hath been as sugar,
Making the hard way sweet and delectable.

o. Richard II. Act II. Sc. 3. L. 6.

Speech was given to the ordinary sort of men, whereby to communicate their mind; but to wise men, whereby to conceal it.

p. BISHOP SOUTH—Sermon. April 30, 1676.

Speech was given to man to disguise his thoughts.

q. Attributed to TALLEYRAND by BARRÈRE in Memoirs.

Doubtless there are men of great parts that are guilty of downright bashfulness, that by a strange hesitation and reluctance to speak murder the finest and most elegant thoughts and render the most lively conceptions flat and heavy.

r. The Tatler. No. 252.

Oh, but the heavenly grammar did I hold
Of that high speech which angels' tongues turn gold!

So should her deathless beauty take no wrong,
Praised in her own great kindred's fit and cognate tongue.

Or if that language yet with us abode
Which Adam in the garden talked with God!
But our untemper'd speech descends—poor heirs!

Grimy and rough-cast still from Babel's bricklayers:

Curse on the brutish jargon we inherit,
Strong but to damn, not memorise, a spirit!
A cheek, a lip, a limb, a bosom, they Move with light ease in speech of working-day;
And women we do use to praise even so.

s. FRANCIS THOMPSON—Her Portrait.

Men use thought only as authority for their injustice and employ speech only to conceal their thoughts.

t. VOLTAIRE—Dialogue XIV. Le Chapon et la Poularde.

Choice word and measured phrase, above the reach

Of ordinary men.

u. WORDSWORTH—Resolution and Independence. St. 14.

SPIRITS.

Aërial spirits, by great Jove design'd
To be on earth the guardians of mankind:
Invisible to mortal eyes they go,
And mark our actions, good or bad, below:
The immortal spies with watchful care preside,
And thrice ten thousand round their charges glide:

They can reward with glory or with gold,
A power they by Divine permission hold.

v. HESIOD—Works and Days. L. 164.

All heart they live, all head, all eye, all ear,
All intellect, all sense, and as they please They limb themselves, and colour, shape, or size

Assume, as likes them best, condense or rare.

a. MILTON—Paradise Lost. Bk. VI.
L. 350.

For spirits when they please

Can either sex assume, or both.

b. MILTON—Paradise Lost. Bk. I. L. 423.

Millions of spiritual creatures walk the earth Unseen, both when we wake, and when we sleep.

c. MILTON—Paradise Lost. Bk. IV.
L. 678.

Of calling shapes, and beck'ning shadows dire,

And airy tongues that syllable men's names.

d. MILTON—Comus. L. 207.

I can call spirits from the vasty deep.

Why, so can I, or so can any man;

But will they come when you do call for them?

L. 52.

Spirits are not finely touched

But to fine issues.

STARS.

The spacious firmament on high,
With all the blue ethereal sky,
And spangled heavens, a shining frame,
Their great Original proclaim.

h. ADDISON—Ode. The Spacious Firmament on High.

Surely the stars are images of love.

i. BAILEY—Festus. Sc. Garden and Bower by the Sea.

The stars,
Which stand as thick as dewdrops on the fields
Of heaven.

j. BAILEY—Festus. Sc. Heaven.

What are ye orbs?

The words of God? the Scriptures of the skies?

k. BAILEY—Festus. Sc. Everywhere.

The sad and solemn night
Hath yet her multitude of cheerful fires;
The glorious host of light

Walk the dark hemisphere till she retires;
All through her silent watches, gliding slow,
Her constellations come, and climb the heavens, and go.

l. BRYANT—Hymn to the North Star.

The number is certainly the cause. The apparent disorder augments the grandeur, for the appearance of care is highly contrary to our ideas of magnificence. Besides, the stars lie in such apparent confusion, as makes it impossible on ordinary occasions to reckon them. This gives them the advantage of a sort of infinity.

m. BURKE—On the Sublime and the Beautiful. Magnificence.

Cry out upon the stars for doing

Ill offices, to cross their wooing.

n. BUTLER—Hudibras. Pt. III.

Sirius appears, and on the horizon black Bids countless stars pursue their mighty track.

w. VICTOR HUGO—The Vanished City.

Just above yon sandy bar,

As the day grows fainter and dimmer,
Lonely and lovely, a single star Lights the air with a dusky glimmer.

a. LONGFELLOW—Chrysaor. St. 1.

Silently, one by one, in the infinite meadows
of heaven,
Blossomed the lovely stars, the forget-me-nots of the angels.

b. LONGFELLOW—Evangeline. Pt. I. St. 3.

The night is calm and cloudless,
And still as still can be,
And the stars come forth to listen
To the music of the sea.
They gather, and gather, and gather,
Until they crowd the sky,
And listen, in breathless silence,
To the solemn litany.

c. LONGFELLOW—Christus. The Golden Legend. Pt. V.

But the cold light of stars;
And the first watch of night is given To the red planet Mars.

Flames in the forehead of the morning sky.

Bright prototypes on high.

Canto III. St. 24.

Look how the floor of heaven
Is thick inlaid with patines of bright gold:
There's not the smallest orb which thou be-hold'st

But in his motion like an angel sings,
Still quiring to the young-ey'd cherubins:
Such harmony is in immortal souls;

But whilst this muddy vesture of decay
Doth grossly close it in, we cannot hear it.

STORM.

Hark, hark! Deep sounds, and deeper still,
Are howling from the mountain's bosom:
There's not a breath of wind upon the hill,
Yet quivers every leaf, and drops each blossom:

Earth groans as if beneath a heavy load.

o. BYRON—Heaven and Earth. Pt. I.
Sc. 3.

The sky is changed!—and such a change! O
night,

And storm, and darkness, ye are wondrous strong.

Yet lovely in your strength, as is the light
Of a dark eye in woman! Far along,
From peak to peak the rattling crags among Leaps the live thunder!

p. BYRON—Childe Harold. Canto III.
St. 92.

Loud roared the dreadful thunder,

The rain a deluge showers.

q. ANDREW CHERRY—The Bay of Biscay.

Bursts as a wave that from the clouds impends,
And swell'd with tempests on the ship descends;

White are the decks with foam; the winds aloud

Howl o'er the masts, and sing through every shroud:

Pale, trembling, tir'd, the sailors freeze with fears;

And instant death on every wave appears.

r. HOMER—Iliad. Bk. XV. L. 752.
Pope's trans.

Roads are wet where'er one wendeth,

And with rain the thistle bendeth,

And the brook cries like a child!

Not a rainbow shines to cheer us;

Ah! the sun comes never near us,

And the heavens look dark and wild.

s. MARY HOWITT—The Wet Summer.

And big waves lash the frightened shores.

t. PRIOR—The Lady's Looking-Glass.

Lightnings, that show the vast and foamy deep,

The rending thunders, as they onward roll,
The loud, loud winds, that o'er the billows sweep—

Shake the firm nerve, appal the bravest soul!

u. MRS. RADCLIFFE—Mysteries of Udolpho.

But never till to-night, never till now,
Did I go through a tempest dropping fire.

d. Julius Cæsar. Act I. Sc. 3. L. 5.

Merciful Heaven,
Thou rather with thy sharp and sulphurous bolt

Split'st the unwedgeable and gnarled oak
Than the soft myrtle.

e. Measure for Measure. Act II. Sc. 2.
L. 114.

At first, heard solemn o'er the verge of Heaven,

The Tempest growls; but as it nearer comes,
And rolls its awful burden on the wind,
The Lightnings flash a larger curve, and more
The Noise astounds; till overhead a sheet
Of livid flame discloses wide, then shuts,
And opens wider; shuts and opens still Expansive, wrapping ether in a blaze.
Follows the loosen'd aggravated Roar,
Enlarging, deepening, mingling, peal on peal, Crush'd, horrible, convulsing Heaven and Earth.

STORY-TELLING.

Dear Ellen, your tales are all plenteously stored,
With the joy of some bride and the wealth of her lord,

Of her chariots and dresses,
And worldly caresses,
And servants that fly when she's waited upon:
But what can she boast if she weds unbelov'd?
Can she e'er feel the joy that one morning I proved.

When I put on my new gown and waited for Canto I.

* * * * *

In that day's feats,

He prov'd best man i' the field, and for his need

Was brow-bound with the oak.

l. Coriolanus. Act II. Sc. 2. L. 99.

O, it is excellent

To use a giant's strength, but it is tyrannous
To use it like a giant.

m. Measure for Measure. Act II. Sc. 2.
L. 107.

The king's name is a tower of strength,
Which they upon the adverse party want.
n. Richard III. Act V. Sc. 3. L. 12.

Atlas, we read in ancient song,
Was so exceeding tall and strong,
He bore the skies upon his back,
Just as the pedler does his pack;
But, as the pedler overpress'd Unloads upon a stall to rest,
Or, when he can no longer stand,
Desires a friend to lend a hand,
So Atlas, lest the ponderous spheres
Should sink, and fall about his ears,
Got Hercules to bear the pile,
That he might sit and rest awhile.

o. SWIFT—Atlas; or, the Minister of State.

So let it be in God's own might
We gird us for the coming fight,
And, strong in Him whose cause is ours
In conflict with unholy powers,
We grasp the weapons he has given,—
The Light, and Truth, and Love of Heaven.

p. WHITTIER—The Moral Warfare.

STUDENTS.

Strange to the world, he wore a bashful look,
The fields his study, nature was his book.

q. BLOOMFIELD—Farmer's Boy. Spring.
L. 31.

The scholar who cherishes the love of comfort, is not fit to be deemed a scholar.

r. CONFUCIUS—Analects. Bk. XIV.
Ch. III.

Who climbs the grammar-tree, distinctly knows

Where noun, and verb, and participle grows.
s. DRYDEN—Sixth Satire of Juvenal.
L. 583.

The studious class are their own victims;
they are thin and pale, their feet are cold, their heads are hot, the night is without sleep, the day a fear of interruption,—pallor, squalor, hunger, and egotism. If you come near them and see what conceits they entertain—they are abstractionists, and spend their days and nights in dreaming some dream; in expecting the homage of society to some precious scheme built on a truth, but destitute of proportion in its presentment, of justness in its application, and of all energy of will in the schemer to embody and vitalize it.

t. EMERSON—Representative Men.
Montaigne.

Ah, pensive scholar, what is fame?
A fitful tongue of leaping flame;
A giddy whirlwind's fickle gust,
That lifts a pinch of mortal dust;
A few swift years, and who can show
Which dust was Bill, and which was Joe?

u. O. W. HOLMES—Poems of the Class of '29. Bill and Joe. St. 7.

The world's great men have not commonly been great scholars, nor its great scholars great men.

a. O. W. HOLMES—The Autocrat of the Breakfast-Table. VI.

Deign on the passing world to turn thine eyes,
And pause awhile from Learning to be wise;
There mark what ills the scholar's life assail,
Toil, envy, want, the patron, and the gaol.
See nations, slowly wise and meanly just,
To buried merit raise the tardy bust.

b. SAM'L JOHNSON—The Vanity of Human Wishes. L. 157.

Night after night,
He sat and bleared his eyes with books.

c. LONGFELLOW—Christus. The Golden Legend. Pt. I.

Where should the scholar live? In solitude, or in society? in the green stillness of the country, where he can hear the heart of Nature beat, or in the dark, gray town where he can hear and feel the throbbing heart of man?

d. LONGFELLOW—Hyperion. Bk. I.
Ch. VIII.

And then the whining schoolboy, with his satchel

And shining morning face, creeping like snail Unwillingly to school.

e. As You Like It. Act II. Sc. 7. L. 145.

He was a scholar, and a ripe and good one;
Exceeding wise, fair-spoken, and persuading;
Lofty and sour to them that lov'd him not;
But to those men that sought him sweet as summer.

f. Henry VIII. Act IV. Sc. 2. L. 51.

And with unwearied fingers drawing out
The lines of life, from living knowledge hid.

g. SPENSER—Faerie Queene. Bk. IV.
Canto II. St. 48.

Up! up! my Friend, and quit your books;
Or surely you'll grow double:

Up! up! my Friend, and clear your looks;
Why all this toil and trouble?

h. WORDSWORTH—The Tables Turned.

STUDY.

Histories make men wise; poets, witty; the mathematics, subtle; natural philosophy, deep; moral, grave; logic and rhetoric, able to contend.

i. BACON—Of Studies.

When night hath set her silver lamp on high,
Then is the time for study.

j. BAILEY—Festus. Sc. A Village Feast.

Exhausting thought,
And hiving wisdom with each studious year.

St. 107.

Whence is thy learning? hath thy toil
O'er books consumed the midnight oil?

l. GAY—The Shepherd and the Philosopher.

As turning the logs will make a dull fire burn, so changes of studies a dull brain.

m. LONGFELLOW—Drift-Wood. Table Talk.

Beholding the bright countenance of truth in the quiet and still air of delightful studies.

n. MILTON—The Reason of Church Government. Introduction. Bk. II.

Studious of ease, and fond of humble things.

o. AMBROSE PHILIPS—Epistles from Holland, to a Friend in England.
L. 21.

I'll talk a word with this same learned Theban.
What is your study?

p. King Lear. Act III. Sc. 4. L. 162.

So study evermore is overshot;
While it doth study to have what it would
It doth forget to do the thing it should,
And when it hath the thing it hunteth most,
'Tis won as towns with fire, so won, so lost.

q. Love's Labour's Lost. Act I. Sc. 1.
L. 143.

Study is like the heaven's glorious sun
That will not be deep-searched with saucy looks;

Small have continual plodders ever won,
Save base authority from others' books.

r. Love's Labour's Lost. Act I. Sc. 1.
L. 84.

What is the end of study? Let me know?
Why, that to know, which else we should not know.

Things hid and barr'd, you mean, from common sense?

Ay, that is study's god-like recompense.

s. Love's Labour's Lost. Act I. Sc. 1.
L. 55.

The more we study, we the more discover our ignorance.

t. SHELLEY—Scenes from the Magic Prodigioso of Calderon. Sc. 1.

One of the best methods of rendering study agreeable is to live with able men, and to suffer all those pangs of inferiority which the want of knowledge always inflicts.

u. SYDNEY SMITH—Second Lecture on the Conduct of the Understanding.

STUPIDITY.

With various readings stored his empty skull,
Learn'd without sense, and venerably dull.

v. CHURCHILL—The Rosciad. L. 591.

The fool of nature stood with stupid eyes
And gaping mouth, that testified surprise.

w. DRYDEN—Cymon and Iphigenia.
L. 107.

He is not only dull himself, but the cause of dulness in others.

With loads of learned lumber in his head.

b. POPE—Essay on Criticism. L. 612.

Against stupidity the very gods Themselves contend in vain.

c. SCHILLER—The Maid of Orleans.
Act III. Sc. 6.

Peter was dull; he was at first

Dull,—Oh, so dull—so very dull!

Whether he talked, wrote, or rehearsed—

Still with this dulness was he cursed—

Dull—beyond all conception—dull.

d. SHELLEY—Peter Bell the Third.
Pt. VII. XI.

STYLE.

A chaste and lucid style is indicative of the same personal traits in the author.

e. HOSEA BALLOU—MS. Sermons.

Style is the dress of thoughts.

f. EARL OF CHESTERFIELD—Letter to his Son. On Education. Nov. 24, 1749.

Style! style! why, all writers will tell you that it is the very thing which can least of all be changed. A man's style is nearly as much a part of him as his physiognomy, his figure, the throbbing of his pulse,—in short, as any part of his being which is at least subjected to the action of the will.

g. FÉNÉLON.

One step from the sublime to the ridiculous.

LONGINUS.

NAPOLEON I. to DE PRADT at Warsaw.

See Histoire de l'Ambassade dans le Grande Duché de Vasovic (1812).

h. THOMAS PAINE—Age of Reason. Pt. II.

Expression is the dress of thought, and still Appears more decent as more suitable;

A vile conceit in pompous words express'd,

Is like a clown in regal purple dress'd.

i. POPE—Essay on Criticism. L. 318.

Such labour'd nothings, in so strange a style,
Amaze th' learn'd, and make the learned smile.

j. POPE—Essay on Criticism. Pt. II.
L. 126.

The flowery style is not unsuitable to public speeches or addresses, which amount only to compliment. The lighter beauties are in their place when there is nothing more solid to say; but the flowery style ought to be banished from a pleading, a sermon, or a didactic work.

k. VOLTAIRE—Philosophical Dictionary.
Style.

SUCCESS.

'Tis not in mortals to command success,
But we'll do more, Semprónius;—
We'll deserve it.

Sc. 1.

naught remain."

Wishes*. L. 201.

When the shore is won at last,
Who will count the billows past?

w. KEBLE—Christian Year. St. John the Evangelist's Day. St. 5.

I have always believed that success would be the inevitable result if the two services, the army and the navy, had fair play, and if we sent the right man to fill the right place.

It is said that God is always on the side of the heaviest battalions.

m. VOLTAIRE—Letter to M. le Riche. Feb. 6, 1770.

SUFFERING.

Knowledge by suffering entereth,
And Life is perfected by Death.

n. E. B. BROWNING—A Vision of Poets. Conclusion.

To each his sufferings; all are men,

Condemn'd alike to groan;

The tender for another's pain,

Th' unfeeling for his own.

Yet ah! why should they know their fate,

Since sorrow never comes too late,

And happiness too swiftly flies?

Thought would destroy their paradise.

Ho! why dost thou shiver and shake, Gaffer Grey?

And why does thy nose look so blue?

For he who much has suffer'd, much will know.

q. HOMER—Odyssey. Bk. XV. L. 434. Pope's trans.

Those who inflict must suffer, for they see

The work of their own hearts, and that must be

Our chastisement or recompense.

u. SHELLEY—Julian and Maddalo. L. 494.

SUICIDE.

Who doubting tyranny, and fainting under

Fortune's false lottery, desperately run

To death, for dread of death; that soul's most stout,

That, bearing all mischance, dares last it out.

v. BEAUMONT AND FLETCHER—The Honest Man's Fortune. Act IV. Sc. 1.

But if there be an hereafter,

And that there is, conscience, uninfluenc'd

And suffer'd to speak out, tells every man,

Then must it be an awful thing to die;

More horrid yet to die by one's own hand.

w. BLAIR—The Grave. L. 398.

Our time is fixed, and all our days are number'd;

How long, how short, we know not:—this we know,

Duty requires we calmly wait the summons,

Nor dare to stir till Heaven shall give permission.

x. BLAIR—The Grave. L. 417.

Fool! I mean not
That poor-souled piece of heroism, self-slaughter;

Oh no! the miserablest day we live
There's many a better thing to do than die!

a. DARLEY—Ethelstan.

Ah yes, the sea is still and deep,

A plunge, a bubble, and no more.

b. LONGFELLOW—Christus. The Golden Legend. Pt. V.

He

That kills himself to avoid misery, fears it,
And, at the best, shows but a bastard valour.
This life's a fort committed to my trust,
Which I must not yield up, till it be forced:
Nor will I. He's not valiant that dares die,
But he that boldly bears calamity.

Failing yet gracious,
Slow pacing, soon homing,
A patriarch that strolls
Through the tents of his children,

His round on the lower Ascents of the blue,
Washes the roofs
And the hillside with clarity.

r. WM. ERNEST HENLEY—Rhymes and Rhythms.

Father of rosy day,
No more thy clouds of incense rise;
But waking flow'rs,
At morning hours,
Give out their sweets to meet thee in the skies.

s. HOOD—Hymn to the Sun. St. 4.

She stood breast-high amid the corn,

Who many a glowing kiss had won.

t. HOOD—Ruth.

The sun shineth upon the dunghill and is not corrupted.

u. LYLLY—Euphues. P. 43.

Whence are thy beams, O sun! thy ever-awful beauty; the stars hide themselves in the sky; the moon, cold and pale, sinks in the western wave. But thou, thyself, movest alone.

And the sun had on a crown
Wrought of gilded thistledown,

Tossed and lost upon the air
Was glossier and flossier
Than any anywhere.

From black to red began to turn.

p. BUTLER—Hudibras. Pt. II. Canto II.
L. 29.

The east is blossoming! Yea, a rose,
Vast as the heavens, soft as a kiss,
Sweet as the presence of woman is,
Rises and reaches, and widens and grows
Large and luminous up from the sea,
And out of the sea, as a blossoming tree,
Richer and richer, so higher and higher,
Deeper and deeper it takes its hue;
Brighter and brighter it reaches through
The space of heaven and the place of stars,
Till all is as rich as a rose can be,
And my rose-leaves fall into billows of fire.

q. JOAQUIN MILLER—Sunrise in Venice.

The whole east was flecked
With flashing streaks and shafts of amethyst,
While a light crimson mist
Went up before the mounting luminary,
And all the strips of cloud began to vary
Their hues, and all the zenith seemed to ope
As if to show a cope beyond the cope!

r. EPES SARGENT—Sunrise at Sea.

As when the golden sun salutes the morn,

Gallops the zodiac in his glistering coach,
And overlooks the highest-peering hills.

 Submissively retire.

 Rejoicing in the East.

c. THOMSON—Seasons. Summer. L. 81.

The rising sun complies with our weak sight,
 First gilds the clouds, then shows his globe of light

At such a distance from our eyes, as though He knew what harm his hasty beams would do.

d. EDMUND WALLER—*To the King upon
 His Majesty's Happy Return*. L. 1.

SUNSET.

Come watch with me the shaft of fire that glows

In yonder West: the fair, frail palaces,

e. T. B. ALDRICH—Sonnet. Miracles.

The death-bed of a day, how beautiful!

f. BAILEY—Festus. Sc. A Library and Balcony.

It was the cooling hour, just when the rounded

Red sun sinks down behind the azure hill, Which then seems as if the whole earth is bounded,

Circling all nature, hush'd, and dim, and still,

With the far mountain-crescent half surrounded

On one side, and the deep sea calm and chill
 Upon the other, and the rosy sky

With one star sparkling through it like an eye.
 g. BYRON—Don Juan. Canto II. St. 183.

See! he sinks
 Without a word; and his ensanguined bier
 Is vacant in the west, while far and near Behold! each coward shadow eastward shrinks,

Thou dost not strive, O sun, nor dost thou cry
 Amid thy cloud-built streets.

h. FABER—The Rosary and Other Poems.
On the Ramparts at Angoulême.

The sacred lamp of day

Now dipt in western clouds his parting ray.

i. FALCONER—The Shipwreck. Canto II.
 L. 27.

Of! did I wonder why the setting sun
 Should look upon us with a blushing face:
 Is't not for shame of what he hath seen done,
 Whilst in our hemisphere he ran his race?

j. HEATH—First Century. *On the Setting
 Sun*.

Purple, violet, gold and white,
 Royal clouds are they;
 Catching the spear-like rays in the west—
 Lining therewith each downy nest,
 At the close of Summer day.

Forming and breaking in the sky,
 I fancy all shapes are there;
 Temple, mountain, monument, spire;
 Ships rigged out with sails of fire,
 And blown by the evening air.

k. J. K. HOYT—A Summer Sunset.

After a day of cloud and wind and rain
 Sometimes the setting sun breaks out again,
 And, touching all the darksome woods with light,

Smiles on the fields until they laugh and sing,
 Then like a ruby from the horizon's ring,
 Drops down into the night.

l. LONGFELLOW—The Hanging of the Crane. Pt. VII.

Down sank the great red sun, and in golden, glimmering vapors
 Veiled the light of his face, like the Prophet descending from Sinai.

m. LONGFELLOW—Evangeline. Pt. I.
 Sec. IV.

Softly the evening came. The sun from the western horizon

Like a magician extended his golden wand o'er the landscape;

Twinkling vapors arose; and sky and water and forest

Seemed all on fire at the touch, and melted and mingled together.

n. LONGFELLOW—Evangeline. Pt. II.
 Sec. II.

And the gilded car of day,
 His glowing axle doth allay
 In the steep Atlantic stream.

o. MILTON—Comus. L. 95.

Now in his Palace of the West,
 Sinking to slumber, the bright Day,
 Like a tired monarch fann'd to rest,
 'Mid the cool airs of Evening lay;
 While round his couch's golden rim
 The gaudy clouds, like courtiers, crept—
 Struggling each other's light to dim,
 And catch his last smile e'er he slept.

p. MOORE—The Summer Fête. St. 22.

Long on the wave reflected lustres play.

q. SAM'L ROGERS—The Pleasures of Memory: Pt. I. L. 94.

Methought little space 'tween those hills intervened,
 But nearer,—more lofty,—more shaggy they seemed.
 The clouds o'er their summits they calmly did
 rest,
 And hung on the ether's invisible breast;
 Than the vapours of earth they seemed purer,
 more bright,—
 Oh! could they be clouds? 'Twas the necklace of night.

a. RUSKIN—The Ileriad. Sunset at Low-Wood.

The setting sun, and music at the close,
 As the last taste of sweets, is sweetest last.

b. Richard II. Act II. Sc. 1. L. 12.

When the sun sets, who doth not look for night?

c. Richard III. Act II. Sc. 3. L. 34.

The sun was down,
 And all the west was paved with sullen fire.
 I cried, "Behold! the barren beach of hell
 At ebb of tide."

d. ALEXANDER SMITH—A Life Drama.
 Sc. 4.

How fine has the day been! how bright was the sun,
 How lovely and joyful the course that he run!
 Though he rose in a mist when his race he begun,

And there followed some droppings of rain:
 But now the fair traveller's come to the west,
 His rays are all gold, and his beauties are best;
 He paints the skies gay as he sinks to his rest,
 And foretells a bright rising again.

 Evening.*

SUPERSTITION.

Foul Superstition! howso'er disguised,
 Idol, saint, virgin, prophet, crescent, cross,
 For whatsoever symbol thou art prized,
 Thou sacerdotal gain, but general loss!
 Who from true worship's gold can separate thy dross?

f. BYRON—Childe Harold. Canto II.

Superstition is a senseless fear of God.

g. CICERO.

h. DRYDEN—Paraphrase of Amaryllis.

Alas! you know the cause too well;
 The salt is spilt, to me it fell.
 Then to contribute to my loss,
 My knife and fork were laid across;
 On Friday, too! the day I dread;
 Would I were safe at home, in bed!
 Last night (I vow to Heaven 'tis true)
 Bounce from the fire a coffin flew.

Next post some fatal news shall tell:
 God send my Cornish friends be well!

i. GAY—Fables. Pt. I. Fable 37.

Why is it that we entertain the belief that for every purpose odd numbers are the most effectual?

j. PLINY—Natural History.
 Bk. XXVIII. Ch. 5.

Midnight hags,
 By force of potent spells, of bloody characters,
 And conjurations horrible to hear,
 Call fiends and spectres from the yawning
 deep,
 And set the ministers of hell at work.

k. NICHOLAS ROWE—Jane Shore. Act IV.
 Sc. 1. L. 240.

Superstition is related to this life, religion to the next; superstition is allied to fatality, religion to virtue; it is by the vivacity of earthly desires that we become superstitious; it is, on the contrary, by the sacrifice of these desires that we become religious.

SUSPICION.

Quoth Sidrophel, If you suppose,
 Sir Knight, that I am one of those,
 I might suspect, and take th' alarm,
 Your bus'ness is but to inform;
 But if it be, 'tis ne'er the near,
 You have a wrong sow by the ear.

 So soon as that spare Cassius.

external forms in which the spiritual may be clothed and manifested.

f. NATH. HAWTHORNE—The Marble Faun.

Of Nature have their image in the mind,
As flowers and fruits and falling of the leaves.
g. LONGFELLOW—The Harvest Moon.

If he be not in love with some woman, there is no believing old signs: a' brushes his hat o' mornings; what should that bode?

h. Much Ado About Nothing. Act III.
Sc. 2. L. 40.

Sometime we see a cloud that's dragonish;
A vapour sometime like a bear or lion,
A tower'd citadel, a pendant rock,
A forked mountain, or blue promontory
With trees upon 't, that nod unto the world,
And mock our eyes with air: thou hast seen these signs;

They are black vesper's pageants.
i. Antony and Cleopatra. Act IV. St. 14.

Bk. VI. L. 73.

But there is one thing which we are responsible for, and that is for our sympathies, for the manner in which we regard it, and for the tone in which we discuss it. What shall we say, then, with regard to it? On which side shall we stand?

m. JOHN BRIGHT—Speech on Slavery and Secession. Feb. 3, 1863.

I live not in myself, but I become

Of human cities torture.

n. BYRON—Childe Harold. Canto III.

Poep's trans.

A man may be buoyed up by the efflation of his wild desires to brave any imaginable peril; but he cannot calmly see one he loves braving the same peril; simply because he cannot feel within him that which prompts another. He sees the danger, and feels not the power that is to overcome it.

Say, "Not a tear must o'er her fall;

He giveth His beloved sleep."

Soon in long rivers down the lifted face,
And leave the vision clear for stars and sun.

d. E. B. BROWNING—Tears.

On the blue flow'r, which—Bramins say—Blooms nowhere but in Paradise.

Him for whom my heart is longing—

For I know not where my weary fingers stray.

i. SAPPHO—Fragment. J. S. Easby-Smith's trans.

At Learning's fountain it is sweet to drink,
But 'tis a nobler privilege to think.

Still are the thoughts to memory dear,
k. SCOTT—Rokeby. Canto I. St. 33.

A maiden hath no tongue but thought.

l. Merchant of Venice. Act III. Sc. 2.
L. 8.

But now behold,

In the quick forge and working-house of thought,

How London doth pour out her citizens!

m. Henry V. Act V. Prologue. L. 22.

My thoughts are whirled like a potter's wheel.

n. Henry VI. Pt. I. Act I. Sc. 5. L. 19.

The incessant care and labour of his mind Hath wrought the mure that should confine it in

So thin that life looks through and will break out.

o. Henry IV. Pt. II. Act IV. Sc. 4.
L. 118.

A thought by thought is piled, till some great truth

Is loosened, and the nations echo round, Shaken to their roots, as do the mountains
now.

p. SHELLEY—Prometheus Unbound.
Act II. Sc. 3.

Come near me! I do weave

A chain I cannot break—I am possessed With thoughts too swift and strong for one lone human breast.

q. SHELLEY—Revolt of Islam. Canto IX.
St. 33.

Strange thoughts beget strange deeds.

r. SHELLEY—The Cenci. Act IV. Sc. 4.

If I could think how these my thoughts to leave,
Or thinking still, my thoughts might have good end:

If rebel sense would reason's law receive;
Or reason foil'd would not in vain contend:
Then might I think what thoughts were best to think:

Then might I wisely swim, or gladly sink.

s. SIR PHILIP SIDNEY—Sonnet.

They are never alone that are accompanied with noble thoughts.

t. SIR PHILIP SIDNEY—The Arcadia.

naught.

that he does after his departure from the world when he becomes a spirit.

x. SWEDENBORG—Divine Providence. 101.

Though man a thinking being is defined,
Few use the grand prerogative of mind.
How few think justly of the thinking few!
How many never think, who think they do.

y. JANE TAYLOR—Essays in Rhyme.
On Morals and Manners. Prejudice.
Essay I. St. 45.

And Thought leapt out to wed with Thought,
Ere Thought could wed itself with Speech.

a. TENNYSON—In Memoriam. Pt. XXIII.
St. 4.

Large elements in order brought,
And tracts of calm from tempest made,
And world-wide fluctuation sway'd,
In vassal tides that follow'd thought.

b. TENNYSON—In Memoriam. CXII.
St. 4.

Yet I doubt not thro' the ages one increasing purpose runs,
And the thoughts of men are widened with the process of the suns.

c. TENNYSON—Locksley Hall. St. 69.

And yet, as angels in some brighter dreams
Call to the soul when man doth sleep,
So some strange thoughts transcend our wonted themes,

And into glory peep.

d. HENRY VAUGHAN—They are all gone into the World of Light. St. 7.

But hushed be every thought that springs
From out the bitterness of things.

e. WORDSWORTH—Elegiac Stanzas.
Addressed to Sir G. H. B.

Like thoughts whose very sweetness yieldeth proof

That they were born for immortality.

f. WORDSWORTH—Sonnet. On King's College Chapel, Cambridge.

Yet, sometimes, when the secret cup
Of still and serious thought went round,
It seemed as if he drank it up.

He felt with spirit so profound.

g. WORDSWORTH—Matthew.

Knocks at our hearts, and finds our thoughts at home.

h. YOUNG—Love of Fame. Satire I. L. 99.

THUNDER.

Far along,
From peak to peak the rattling crags among,
Leaps the live thunder.

i. BYRON—Childe Harold. Canto III.
St. 92.

Thy thunder, conscious of the new command,
Rumbles reluctant o'er our fallen house.

j. KEATS—Hyperion. L. 60.

As a storm-cloud lurid with lightning
And a cry of lamentation,
Repeated and again repeated,
Deep and loud

As the reverberation
Of cloud answering unto cloud,
Swells and rolls away in the distance,

As if the sheeted
Lightning retreated,
Baffled and thwarted by the wind's resistance.

k. LONGFELLOW—Christus. The Golden Legend. Epilogue. L. 62.

The thunder,
Wing'd with red lightning and impetuous rage,
Perhaps hath spent his shafts, and ceases
now

To bellow through the vast and boundless deep.

l. MILTON—Paradise Lost. Bk. I.

Are there no stones in heaven
But what serve for the thunder?

The name of Prosper; it did bass my trespass.

n. Tempest. Act III. Sc. 3. L. 97.

To stand against the deep, dread-bolted
thunder?

In the most terrible and nimble stroke
Of quick, cross lightning?

o. King Lear. Act IV. Sc. 7. L. 33.

TIDES.

All night the thirsty beach has listening lain
With patience dumb,
Counting the slow, sad moments of her pain;

Now morn has come,
And with the morn the punctual tide again.

p. SUSAN COOLIDGE—Flood-Tide.

The punctual tide draws up the bay,
With ripple of wave and hiss of spray.

q. SUSAN COOLIDGE—On the Shore.

Love has a tide!

r. HELEN HUNT JACKSON—Verses. Tides.

The western tide crept up along the sand,
And o'er and o'er the sand,

And round and round the sand,
As far as eye could see
The rolling mist came down and hid the land:
And never home came she.

s. CHARLES KINGSLEY—The Sands o' Dec.
St. 2.

I saw the long line of the vacant shore,
The sea-weed and the shells upon the sand,
And the brown rocks left bare on every hand,
As if the ebbing tide would flow no more.

t. LONGFELLOW—The Tides.

The tide rises, the tide falls,
The twilight darkens, the curlew calls;

* * * * *
The little waves, with their soft, white hands,
Efface the footprints in the sands,
And the tide rises, the tide falls.

u. LONGFELLOW—The Tide Rises, the Tide Falls.

Tide flowing is feared, for many a thing,
Great danger to such as be sick, it doth bring;
Sea ebb, by long ebbing, some respite doth give,
And sendeth good comfort, to such as shall live.

a. TUSSER—Five Hundred Points of Good Husbandrie. Ch. XIV. St. 5.

TIME.

Backward, turn backward, O Time in your flight!

Make me a child again, just for to-night!

b. ELIZABETH AKERS ALLEN—Rock Me to Sleep.

Who well lives, long lives: for this age of ours Should not be numbered by years, daies, and hours.

c. DU BARTAS—Divine Weekes and Workes.
Second Week. Fourth Day. Bk. II.

Think not thy time short in this world, since the world itself is not long. The created world is but a small parenthesis in eternity, and a short interposition, for a time, between such a state of duration as was before it and may be after it.

d. SIR THOMAS BROWNE—Christian Morals. Pt. III. XXIX.

Time, which strengthens Friendship, weakens Love.

e. DE LA BRUYÈRE—The Characters or Manners of the Present Age. Ch. IV.

Nae man can tether time or tide.

f. BURNS—Tam o' Shanter.

Some wee short hour ayont the twal.

g. BURNS—Death and Dr. Hornbook.

How slowly time creeps till my Phœbe returns!

While amidst the soft zephyr's cool breezes I burn.

Methinks if I knew whereabouts he would tread

I could breathe on his wings and 'twould melt down the lead.

Fly swifter, ye minutes, bring hither my dear,
And rest so much longer for 't when she is here.

h. JOHN BYRON—A Pastoral.

O Time! the beautifier of the dead,
Adorner of the ruin, comforter
And only healer when the heart hath bled—
Time! the corrector where our judgments err,
The test of truth, love,—sole philosopher,
For all besides are sophists, from thy thrift
Which never loses though it doth defer—
Time, the avenger! unto thee I lift
My hands, and eyes, and heart, and crave of thee a gift.

i. BYRON—Childe Harold. Canto IV.
St. 130.

Out upon Time! it will leave no more
Of the things to come than the things before!
Out upon Time! who forever will leave But enough of the past for the future to grieve.

j. BYRON—Siege of Corinth. St. 18.

Think'st thou existence doth depend on time?
It doth; but actions are our epochs; mine
Have made my days and nights imperishable, Endless, and all alike.

k. BYRON—Manfred. Act II. Sc. 1.

Time writes no wrinkle on thy azure brow—
Such as creation's dawn beheld, thou rollest
now.

l. BYRON—Childe Harold. Canto IV.
St. 182.

When Youth and Pleasure meet
To chase the glowing Hours with flying feet.

m. BYRON—Childe Harold. Canto III.
St. 22.

Yet Time, who changes all, had altered him
In soul and aspect as in age, years steal
Fire from the mind as vigour from the limb:
And life's enchanted cup but sparkles near the brim.

n. BYRON—Childe Harold. Canto III.
St. 8.

The more we live, more brief appear

Our life's succeeding stages;
A day to childhood seems a year,
And years like passing ages.

o. CAMPBELL—A Thought Suggested by the New Year.

That great mystery of TIME, were there no other; the illimitable, silent, never-resting thing called Time, rolling, rushing on, swift, silent, like an all-embracing ocean tide, on which we and all the Universe swim like exhalations, like apparitions which are, and then are not: this is forever very literally a miracle; a thing to strike us dumb,—for we have no word to speak about it.

p. CARLYLE—Heroes and Hero Worship.
Lecture I.

Know the true value of time; snatch, seize,
and enjoy every moment of it. No idleness, no laziness, no procrastination: never put off till to-morrow what you can do to-day.

q. EARL OF CHESTERFIELD—Letters to his Son. Dec. 26, 1749.

No! no arresting the vast wheel of time,
That round and round still turns with onward might,
Stern, dragging thousands to the dreaded
night

Of an unknown hereafter.

r. CHARLES COWDEN CLARKE—Sonnet.
The Course of Time.

* * * So often do the spirits
Of great events stride on before the events,
And in to-day already walks to-morrow.

Swift speedy Time, feathered with flying
hours,

But what minutes! Count them by sensation, and not by calendars, and each moment is a day and the race a life.

h. BENJ. DISRAELI—Sybil. Bk. I. Ch. II.

Time, to the nation as to the individual, is nothing absolute; its duration depends on the rate of thought and feeling.

i. DRAPER—History of the Intellectual Development of Europe. Vol. I. Ch. I.

Write it on your heart that every day is the best day in the year. No man has learned anything rightly, until he knows that every day is Doomsday.

j. EMERSON—Society and Solitude. Work and Days.

I count my time by times that I meet thee;
These are my yesterdays, my morrows, noons,
And nights, these are my old moons and my new moons.

Slow fly the hours, fast the hours flee,

If thou art far from or art near to me:

If thou art far, the bird's tunes are no tunes;

If thou art near, the wintry days are Junes.

k. R. W. GILDER—The New Day. Pt. IV.
Sonnet VI.

Rich with the spoils of time.

l. GRAY—Elegy in a Country Churchyard.

I made a posy while the day ran by;
Here will I smell my remnant out, and tie
My life within this band.

But time did beckon to the flowers, and they
By noon most cunningly did steal away,
And wither'd in my hand.

m. HERBERT—The Temple. Life.

Old Time, in whose banks we deposit our

By lending them minutes and charging them
years.

n. O. W. HOLMES—*Poems of the Class of Alas! it is not till Time, with reckless hand, number.

a. LONGFELLOW—A Psalm of Life. St. 4.

c. LONGFELLOW—Hyperion. Bk. II.

Time is a feathered thing,

The sparkling of thy looks, and call them
rays,

Takes wing,
Leaving behind him as he flies
An unperceiv'd dimness in thine eyes.

d. JASPER MAYNE—Time.

Passing away whatever the pastime,
And, whether we use him well or ill,
Some day he gives us the slip for the last time.

E'en such is time ! which takes in trust
Our youth, our joys, and all we have ;

The Lord will raise me up, I trust.

What is 't o'clock?

Upon the stroke of four.

i. Richard III. Act III. Sc. 2. L. 4.

Yet, do thy worst, old Time; despite thy wrong,

My love shall in my verse ever live young.

j. Sonnet XIX.

The flood of time is rolling on;

We stand upon its brink, whilst they are gone
To glide in peace down death's mysterious stream,

Have ye done well?

k. SHELLEY—Revolt of Islam. Canto XII.
St. 27.

Unfathomable Sea! whose waves are years,
Ocean of Time, whose waters of deep woe
Are brackish with the salt of human tears!
Thou shoreless flood, which in thy ebb and flow
Claspest the limits of mortality!

And sick of prey, yet howling on for more,
Vomitest thy wrecks on its inhospitable shore,

Treacherous in calm, and terrible in storm,
Who shall put forth on thee, Unfathomable sea?

l. SHELLEY—Time.

For the next inn he spurs amain,
In haste alights, and skuds away,
But time and tide for no man stay.

m. W. C. SOMERVILLE—The Sweet-Scented Miser. L. 98.

Time wears all his locks before,
Take thou hold upon his forehead;

When he flies he turns no more,
And behind his scalp is naked.

Works adjourn'd have many stays,
Long demurs breed new delays.

n. ROB'T SOUTHWELL—Loss in Delay.

Goe to my Love where she is carelesse layd

Yet in her winter's bowere not well awake;

Tell her the joyous time will not be staid

Unlesse she doe him by the forelock take.

o. SPENSER—Amoretti. LXX.

Too late I stayed,—forgive the crime;

Unheeded flew the hours,

How noiseless falls the foot of time

That only treads on flowers!

p. SPENSER—Lines to Lady A. Hamilton.

I see that time divided is never long, and that regularity abridges all things.

q. ABEL STEVENS—Life of Madame de Staël. Ch. XXXVIII.

Ever eating, never cloying,

All-devouring, all-destroying,

Never finding full repast,

Till I eat the world at last.

r. SWIFT—On Time.

A wonderful stream is the River Time,

As it runs through the realms of Tears,

With a faultless rhythm, and a musical rhyme,

And a broader sweep, and a surge sublime

As it blends with the ocean of Years.

s. BENJAMIN F. TAYLOR—The Long Ago.

He that lacks time to mourn, lacks time to mend:

Eternity mourns that. 'Tis an ill cure

For life's worst ills to have no time to feel them.

t. SIR HENRY TAYLOR—Philip Van Artevelde. Act I. Sc. 5.

Come, Time, and teach me many years,

I do not suffer in dream;

For now so strange do these things seem,

Mine eyes have leisure for their tears.

u. TENNYSON—In Memoriam. Pt. XIII.

Six hours in Sleep, in law's grave study six,

Four spend in prayer, the rest on Nature fix.

And turn the key of time.

a. HENRY KIRK WHITE—Time. L. 249.

In records that defy the tooth of time.

b. YOUNG—The Statesman's Creed.

Nought treads so silent as the foot of Time;
Hence we mistake our autumn for our prime.

c. YOUNG—Love of Fame. Satire V.
L. 497.

Procrastination is the thief of time:
Year after year it steals, till all are fled,
And to the mercies of a moment leaves
The vast concerns of an eternal scene.

d. YOUNG—Night Thoughts. Night I.
L. 390.

The bell strikes one. We take no note of time

But from its loss: to give it then a tongue
Is wise in man.

e. YOUNG—Night Thoughts. Night I.
L. 55.

Time is eternity;

Pregnant with all eternity can give;

Pregnant with all that makes archangels smile.

Who murders Time, he crushes in the birth
A power ethereal, only not adorn'd.

f. YOUNG—Night Thoughts. Night II.
L. 107.

Time wasted is existence, used is life.

g. YOUNG—Night Thoughts. Night II.

How few themselves in that just mirror see!

i. YOUNG—Night Thoughts. Night V.

While man is growing, life is in decrease,
And cradles rock us nearer to the tomb;
Our birth is nothing but our death begun.

j. YOUNG—Night Thoughts. Night V.
L. 717.

TOASTS.

My boat is on the shore,
And my bark is on the sea:

But, before I go, Tom Moore,
Here's a double health to thee!

k. BYRON—To Thomas Moore.

Were 't the last drop in the well,
As I gasp'd upon the brink,

Ere my fainting spirit fell,
'Tis to thee that I would drink.

l. BYRON—To Thomas Moore. St. 4.

Ho! stand to your glasses steady!

'Tis all we have left to prize.

A cup to the dead already,— Hurrah for the next that dies.

m. BARTHOLOMEW DOWLING—Revelry in India.

And he that will this health deny,
Down among the dead men let him lie.

n. DYER—Published in the early part of the reign of George I.

Drink to me only with thine eyes,
And I will pledge with mine;

o. BEN JONSON—The Forest. To Celia.
Drink to Me Only with Thine Eyes.

To the old, long life and treasure;
To the young, all health and pleasure.

p. BEN JONSON—Metamorphosed Gipsies.

earth,

"Now the king drinks to Hamlet."

q. Hamlet. Act V. Sc. 2. L. 238.

Here's to the maiden of bashful fifteen;

Here's to the widow of fifty;

Here's to the flaunting, extravagant quean;

And here's to the housewife that's thrifty.

Chorus: Let the toast pass,—

Drink to the lass,

I'll warrant she'll prove an excuse for the glass.

r. R. B. SHERIDAN—School for Scandal.
Act III. Sc. 3. Song.

First pledge our Queen this solemn night,

Then drink to England, every guest;

That man's the best Cosmopolite

Who loves his native country best.

s. TENNYSON—Hands All Round.

Here's a health to the lass with the merry black eyes!

Here's a health to the lad with the blue ones!

t. WM. WINTER—Blue and Black.

TOBACCONISTS (See OCCUPATIONS).

TO-DAY.

Out of Eternity
The new Day is born;

Into Eternity

At night will return.

u. CARLYLE—To-Day.

To-day is ours; what do we fear?

To-day is ours; we have it here.

Let's treat it kindly, that it may Wish, at least, with us to stay.

Let's banish business, banish sorrow;

To the gods belongs to-morrow.

v. ABRAHAM COWLEY—Anacreontique.
The Epicure. L. 7.

Days that need borrow
No part of their good morrow,
From a fore-spent night of sorrow.

a. RICHARD CRASHAW—Wishes to his (Supposed) Mistress. St. 27.

What dost thou bring to me, O fair To-day,
That comest o'er the mountains with swift
feet?

b. JULIA C. R. DORR—To-Day.

Happy the man, and happy he alone,
He, who can call to-day his own:
He who, secure within, can say,
To-morrow, do thy worst, for I have liv'd
to-day.

c. DRYDEN—Imitation of Horace. Bk. III.
Ode XXIX. L. 65.

Nothing that is can pause or stay;
The moon will wax, the moon will wane,
The mist and cloud will turn to rain,
The rain to mist and cloud again,
To-morrow be to-day.

d. LONGFELLOW—Kéramos. L. 34.

TO-MORROW.

Dreaming of a to-morrow, which to-morrow
Will be as distant then as 'tis to-day.

e. TOME BURGUILLOS—To-Morrow, and To-Morrow. John Bowring's
trans.

How oft my guardian angel gently cried,
"Soul, from thy casement look, and thou shalt see

How he persists to knock and wait for thee!"
And, O! how often to that voice of sorrow,
"To-morrow we will open," I replied,

And when the morrow came I answered still,
"To-morrow."

f. TOME BURGUILLOS—To-Morrow.
Longfellow's trans. L. 9.

A shining isle in a stormy sea,
We seek it ever with smiles and sighs;
To-day is sad. In the bland To-be, Serene and lovely To-morrow lies.

g. MARY CLEMMER—To-Morrow.

Defer not till to-morrow to be wise,
To-morrow's Sun to thee may never rise;
Or should to-morrow chance to cheer thy sight

With her enlivening and unlook'd for light
How grateful will appear her dawning rays!
As favours unexpected doubly please.

h. CONGREVE—Letter to Cobham. L. 61.

To-morrow's fate, though thou be wise,
Thou canst not tell nor yet surmise;
Pass, therefore, not to-day in vain,
For it will never come again.

i. OMAR KHAYYÁM. Bodenstedt's trans.

Far off I hear the crowing of the cocks,
And through the opening door that time unlocks

Feel the fresh breathing of To-morrow creep.
j. LONGFELLOW—To-Morrow.

To-morrow you will live, you always cry;
In what fair country does this morrow lie,
That 'tis so mighty long ere it arrive?
Beyond the Indies does this morrow live?
'Tis so far-fetched, this morrow, that I fear
'Twill be both very old and very dear.
"To-morrow I will live," the fool does say:
To-day itself's too late;—the wise lived yesterday.

k. MARTIAL—Epigrams. Bk. V.
Ep. LVIII.

To-morrow the dreams and flowers will fade.
l. MOORE—Lalla Rookh. The Light of the Harem. Song.

To-morrow is, ah, whose?

m. D. M. MULLOCK—Between Two Worlds.

To-morrow, what delight is in to-morrow!
What laughter and what music, breathing joy, Float from the woods and pastures, wavering
down,

Dropping like echoes through the long to-day,
Where childhood waits with weary expectation.

n. T. B. READ—The New Pastoral.
Bk. VI. L. 163.

To-morrow, and to-morrow, and to-morrow,
Creeps in this petty pace from day to day
To the last syllable of recorded time,
And all our yesterdays have lighted fools
The way to dusty death.

o. Macbeth. Act V. Sc. 5. L. 19.

Where art thou, beloved To-morrow?
When young and old, and strong and weak,
Rich and poor, through joy and sorrow,
Thy sweet smiles we ever seek,—
In thy place—ah! well-a-day!

We find the thing we fled—To-day!

p. SHELLEY—To-Morrow.

To-morrow yet would reap to-day,
As we bear blossoms of the dead;
Earn well the thrifty months, nor wed
Raw Haste, half-sister to Delay.

q. TENNYSON—Love Thou the Land. St. 24.

In human hearts what bolder thoughts can rise,
Than man's presumption on to-morrow's dawn!

Where is to-morrow?

r. YOUNG—Night Thoughts. Night I.
L. 374.

To-morrow is a satire on to-day,
And shows its weakness.

s. YOUNG—The Old Man's Relapse. L. 6.

Some say "to-morrow" never comes,
 A saying oft thought right;
 But if to-morrow never came,
 No end were of "to-night."
 The fact is this, time flies so fast,
 That e'er we've time to say
 "To-morrow's come," presto! behold!
 "To-morrow" proves "To-day."

 undoing.

My tongue, though not my heart, shall have his will.
 g. *Comedy of Errors. Act IV. Sc. 2.
 L. 18.*

So on the tip of his subduing tongue
 All kind of arguments and question deep,
 All replication prompt, and reason strong,
 For his advantage still did wake and sleep;
 To make the weeper laugh, the laughter weep,
 He had the dialect and different skill, Catching all passions in his craft of will.
 h. Lover's Complaint. L. 120.

The heart hath treble wrong
 When it is barr'd the aidance of the tongue.
 i. Venus and Adonis. L. 329.

 That shall civil sayings show.

 And think with wagging of your tongue to win me.
 k. Henry VIII. Act V. Sc. 3. L. 126.

 That runs for ages without winding up?

TONSORIAL (See OCCUPATIONS).

TRAVELLING.

The travelled mind is the catholic mind educated from exclusiveness and egotism.
 m. AMOS BRONSON ALCOTT—*Table-Talk.
 Travelling.*

Travelling is no fool's errand to him who carries his eyes and itinerary along with him.
 n. AMOS BRONSON ALCOTT—*Table-Talk.
 Travelling.*

Travel, in the younger sort, is a part of education; in the elder, a part of experience.
 He that travelleth into a country before he hath some entrance into the language, goeth to school, and not to travel.
 o. BACON—Of Travel.

Go far—too far you cannot, still the farther
 The more experience finds you: And go sparing;—
 One meal a week will serve you, and one suit,
 Through all your travels; for you'll find it certain,
 The poorer and the baser you appear,
 The more you look through still.
 p. BEAUMONT AND FLETCHER—*The Woman's Prize. Act IV. Sc. 5.
 L. 199.*
 I depart,

Whither I know not; but the hour's gone by When Albion's lessening shores could give or glad mine eye.
 q. BYRON—*Childe Harold. Canto III.
 St. 1.*

You sun that sets upon the sea
 We follow in his flight;
 Farewell awhile to him and thee,
 My native Land—Good-night!
 r. BYRON—*Childe Harold. Canto I.
 St. 13. Song.*

He travels safest in the dark night who travels lightest.
 s. FERNANDO CORTEZ—See PRESCOTT'S
Conquest of Mexico. Bk. V. Ch. III.

In travelling
 I shape myself betimes to idleness
 And take fools' pleasure.
 t. GEORGE ELIOT—*The Spanish Gypsy.
 Bk. I.*

Know most of the rooms of thy native country before thou goest over the threshold thereof.
 u. FULLER—*The Holy and Profane States.
 Of Travelling. Maxim IV.*

One who journeying
 Along a way he knows not, having crossed
 A place of drear extent, before him sees
 A river rushing swiftly toward the deep,
 And all its tossing current white with foam,
 And stops and turns, and measures back his way.
 v. HOMER—Iliad. Bk. V. L. 749.
 Bryant's trans.

As the Spanish proverb says, "He who would bring home the wealth of the Indies must carry the wealth of the Indies with him." So it is in travelling: a man must carry knowledge with him, if he would bring home knowledge.

a. SAM'L JOHNSON—Boswell's Life of Johnson. 1778.

Let him go abroad to a distant country; let him go to some place where he is not known. Don't let him go to the devil where he is known.

b. SAM'L JOHNSON—Boswell's Life of Johnson. 1778.

The use of travelling is to regulate imagination by reality, and, instead of thinking how things may be, to see them as they are.

c. SAM'L JOHNSON—Piozzi's Johnsoniana. 154.

Much have I travell'd in the realms of gold,
And many goodly states and kingdoms seen;
Round many western islands have I been,
Which bards in fealty to Apollo hold.

d. KEATS—On First Looking into Chapman's Homer.

The marquise has a disagreeable day for her journey.

e. LOUIS XV.—While Looking at Mme. de Pompadour's Funeral.

Better sit still where born, I say,
Wed one sweet woman and love her well,
Love and be loved in the old East way,
Drink sweet waters, and dream in a spell,
Than to wander in search of the Blessed Isles,
And to sail the thousands of watery miles
In search of love, and find you at last
On the edge of the world, and a curs'd out-cast.

f. JOAQUIN MILLER—Pace Implora.

Does the road wind up-hill all the way?

Yes, to the very end.

Will the day's journey take the whole long day?

From morn to night, my friend.

g. CHRISTINA ROSSETTI—Up-Hill.

Farewell, Monsieur Traveller: look you lisp and wear strange suits, disable all the benefits of your own country.

h. As You Like It. Act IV. Sc. 1. L. 33.

I'll put a girdle round about the earth
In forty minutes.

i. Midsummer-Night's Dream. Act II.

Sc. 1. L. 175.

I spake of most disastr'us chances,
* * * * *
Of being taken by the insolent foe
And sold to slavery, of my redemption thence
And portance in my travels' history:
Wherein of antres vast and deserts idle, Rough quarries, rocks and hills whose heads touch heaven,
It was my hint to speak—such was the process;
And of the cannibals that each other eat.

j. Othello. Act I. Sc. 3. L. 134.

* * * the sundry contemplation of my travels, in which my often rumination wraps me in a most humorous sadness.

l. Henry VIII. Act I. Sc. 3. L. 19.

When I was at home, I was in a better place; but travellers must be content.

m. As You Like It. Act II. Sc. 4. L. 17.

I pity the man who can travel from Dan to Beersheba and cry, "'Tis all barren!"

n. STERNE—Sentimental Journey. In the Street. Calais.

I always love to begin a journey on Sundays, because I shall have the prayers of the church to preserve all that travel by land or by water.

o. SWIFT—Polite Conversation.

q. J. T. TROWBRIDGE—The Vagabonds.

TREASON.

Is there not some chosen curse,
Some hidden thunder in the stores of heaven,
Red with uncommon wrath, to blast the man Who owes his greatness to his country's ruin?

r. ADDISON—Cato. Act I. Sc. 1.

This principle is old, but true as fate,
Kings may love treason, but the traitor hate.

s. THOMAS DEKKER—The Honest Whore. Pt. I. Act IV. Sc. 4.

Treason is not own'd when 'tis descried;
Successful crimes alone are justified.

t. DRYDEN—Medals. L. 207.

O that a soldier so glorious, ever victorious in fight,

Passed from a daylight of honor into the terrible night;

Fell as the mighty archangel, ere the earth glowed in space, fell—

Fell from the patriot's heaven down to the loyalist's hell!

a. THOS. DUNN ENGLISH—Arnold at Stillwater.

With evil omens from the harbour sails
The ill-fated ship that worthless Arnold bears;

God of the southern winds, call up thy gales,
And whistle in rude fury round his ears.

b. PHILIP FRENEAU—Arnold's Departure.

Rebellion must be managed with many swords;
treason to his prince's person may be with one knife.

c. FULLER—The Holy and Profane States. The Traitor.

Treason doth never prosper: what's the reason?

Why if it prosper, none dare call it treason.

d. SIR JOHN HARRINGTON—Epigrams. Bk. IV. Ep. V.

The man who pauses on the paths of treason,
Halts on a quicksand, the first step engulfs him.

e. AARON HILL—Henry V. Act I. Sc. 1.

For while the treason I detest,
The traitor still I love.

f. HOOLE—Metastasio. Romulus and Hersilia. Act I. Sc. 5.

The traitor to Humanity is the traitor most accursed;

Man is more than Constitutions; better rot beneath the sod,

Than be true to Church and State while we are doubly false to God.

g. LOWELL—On the Capture of Certain Fugitive Slaves near Washington.

Hast thou betrayed my credulous innocence
With vizzor'd falsehood and base forgery?

h. MILTON—Comus. L. 697.

Oh, colder than the wind that freezes
Founts, that but now in sunshine play'd,
Is that congealing pang which seizes

The trusting bosom, when betray'd.
i. MOORE—Lalla Rookh. The Fire Worshippers.

Oh, for a tongue to curse the slave
Whose treason, like a deadly blight,

Comes o'er the councils of the brave,
And blasts them in their hour of might!

j. MOORE—Lalla Rookh. The Fire-Worshippers.

He [Cæsar] loved the treason, but hated the traitor.

Smooth runs the water where the brook is deep;

And in his simple show he harbours treason.

Treason's true bed and yielder up of breath.

q. Henry IV. Pt. II. Act IV. Sc. 2. L. 122.

Tellest thou me of "ifs"? Thou art a traitor:
Off with his head!

r. Richard III. Act III. Sc. 4. L. 77

The man was noble,

But with his last attempt he wiped it out:
Destroy'd his country, and his name remains
To the ensuing age abhorr'd.

s. Coriolanus. Act V. Sc. 3. L. 145.

Though those that are betray'd
Do feel the treason sharply, yet the traitor

And cried "all hail!" whereas he meant all harm.

u. Henry VI. Pt. III. Act V. Sc. 7. L. 33.

Treason and murder ever kept together,
As two yoke-devils sworn to either's purpose,
Working so grossly in a natural cause,
That admiration did not hoop at them.

v. Henry V. Act II. Sc. 2. L. 105.

Treason is but trusted like the fox
Who, ne'er so tame, so cherish'd and locked up,

Will have a wild trick of his ancestors.

TREES AND PLANTS.

Part I.—Unclassified Arbora.

The place is all awave with trees,
Limes, myrtles, purple-beaded,
Acacias having drunk the lees
Of the night-dew, faint headed,
And wan, grey olive-woods, which seem
The fittest foliage for a dream.

a. E. B. BROWNING—An Island.

Stranger, if thou hast learned a truth which needs

No school of long experience, that the world
Is full of guilt and misery, and hast seen Enough of all its sorrows, crimes and cares,
To tire thee of it, enter this wild wood And view the haunts of Nature. The calm shade
Shall bring a kindred calm, and the sweet breeze

That makes the green leaves dance, shall waft a balm

To thy sick heart.

b. BRYANT—Inscription for the Entrance to a Wood.

The groves were God's first temples. Ere man learned

To hew the shaft, and lay the architrave, And spread the roof above them,—ere he framed

The lofty vault, to gather and roll back
The sound of anthems; in the darkling wood,
Amidst the cool and silence, he knelt down
And offered to the Mightiest solemn thanks And supplication.

c. BRYANT—A Forest Hymn.

The shad-bush, white with flowers,
Brightened the glens; the new leaved butternut

And quivering poplar to the roving breeze Gave a balsamic fragrance.

d. BRYANT—The Old Man's Counsel. L. 28.

No tree in all the grove but has its charms,
Though each its hue peculiar.

e. COWPER—The Task. Bk. I. L. 307.

Where is the pride of Summer,—the green prime,—

The many, many leaves all twinkling?—three
On the mossed elm; three on the naked lime

Trembling,—and one upon the old oak tree!
Where is the Dryad's immortality?

f. HOOD—Ode. Autumn.

It was the noise
Of ancient trees falling while all was still Before the storm, in the long interval Between the gathering clouds and that light breeze

Which Germans call the Wind's bride.

g. LELAND—The Fall of the Trees.

This is the forest primeval.

h. LONGFELLOW—Evangeline. Introduction.

Oh! proudly then the forest kings
Their banners lift o'er vale and mount;
And cool and fresh the wild grass springs,
By lonely path, by sylvan fount;
There, o'er the fair leaf-laden rill,
The laurel sheds her cluster'd bloom,
And throned upon the rock-wreathed hill
The rowan waves his scarlet plume.

i. EDITH MAY—A Forest Scene.

And all amid them stood the Tree of Life,
High eminent, blooming ambrosial fruit
Of vegetable gold.

j. MILTON—Paradise Lost. Bk. IV. L. 218.

Cedar, and pine, and fir, and branching palm,
A sylvan scene, and as the ranks ascend Shade above shade, a woody theatre Of stateliest view.

k. MILTON—Paradise Lost. Bk. IV. L. 139.

Woodman, spare that tree!
Touch not a single bough!

In youth it sheltered me,
And I'll protect it now.

l. GEORGE P. MORRIS—Woodman, Spare That Tree.

When the sappy boughs
Attire themselves with blooms, sweet rudiments
Of future harvest.

m. JOHN PHILLIPS—Cider. Bk. II. L. 437.

Grove nods at grove.

n. POPE—Moral Essays. Ep. IV. L. 117.

The highest and most lofty trees have the most reason to dread the thunder.

o. ROLLIN—Ancient History. Bk. VI. Ch. II. Sec. I.

So bright in death I used to say,
So beautiful through frost and cold!
A lovelier thing I know to-day,
The leaf is growing old,
And wears in grace of duty done,
The gold and scarlet of the sun.

p. MARGARET E. SANGSTER—A Maple Leaf.

A barren detested vale, you see it is;
The trees, though summer, yet forlorn and lean,

O'ercome with moss and baleful mistletoe.
a. Titus Andronicus. Act II. Sc. 3. L. 93.

But, poor old man, thou prunest a rotten tree,
That cannot so much as a blossom yield
In lieu of all thy pains and husbandry.

b. As You Like It. Act II. Sc. 3. L. 63.

Hath not old custom made this life more sweet

Than that of painted pomp? Are not these woods

More free from peril than the envious court?
c. As You Like It. Act II. Sc. 1. L. 2.

Under the greenwood tree

Who loves to lie with me,

And tune his merry note

Unto the sweet bird's throat,

Come hither, come hither, come hither:

No enemy here shall he see,

But winter and rough weather.

d. As You Like It. Act II. Sc. 5. L. 1.

Who am no more but as the tops of trees,
Which fence the roots they grow by and defend them.

e. Pericles. Act I. Sc. 2. L. 29.

Now all the tree-tops lay asleep,

Like green waves on the sea,

As still as in the silent deep

The ocean-woods may be.

f. SHELLEY—The Recollection. II.

The trees were gazing up into the sky,
Their bare arms stretched in prayer for the snows.

g. ALEX. SMITH—A Life-Drama. Sc. 2.

The laurell, meed of mightie conquerours

And poets sage; the firre that weepeth still;

The willow, worne of forlorne paramours;

The eugh, obedient to the bender's will;

The birch, for shafts; the sallow for the mill;

The mirrhe sweete-bleeding in the bitter wound;

*The warlike beech; the ash for nothing ill;

The fruitfull olive; and the platane round;

The carver holme; the maple seldom inward sound.

h. SPENSER—Faerie Queene. Bk. I.
Canto I. St. 8.

The woods appear

With crimson blotches deeply dashed and crossed,—

Sign of the fatal pestilence of Frost.

i. BAYARD TAYLOR—Mon-Da-Min. St. 38.

Now rings the woodland loud and long,

The distance takes a lovelier hue,

And drowned in yonder living blue

The lark becomes a sightless song.

j. TENNYSON—In Memoriam. Pt. CXV.

O Love, what hours were thine and mine,
In lands of palm and southern pine;

In lands of palm, of orange-blossom,

Of olive, aloe, and maize, and vine.

k. TENNYSON—The Daisy. St. 1.

The linden broke her ranks and rent

The woodbine wreaths that bind her,

And down the middle buzz! she went

With all her bees behind her!

The poplars, in long order due,

With cypress promenaded,

The shock-head willows two and two

By rivers galloped.

l. TENNYSON—Amphion. St. 5.

The woods are hush'd, their music is no more;

The leaf is dead, the yearning past away;

New leaf, new life—the days of frost are o'er;

New life, new love, to suit the newer day:

New loves are sweet as those that went before:

Free love—free field—we love but while we may.

m. TENNYSON—Idylls of the King. The Last Tournament. L. 276.

But see the fading many-coloured Woods, Shade deep'n'ing over shade, the country round

Imbrown; crowded umbrage, dusk and dun,

Of every hue from wan declining green

To sooty dark.

n. THOMSON—Seasons. Autumn. L. 950.

Some to the holly hedge

Nestling repair; and to the thicket some;

Some to the rude protection of the thorn.

o. THOMSON—Seasons. Spring. L. 634.

Welcome, ye shades! ye bowery thickets hail!

Ye lofty Pines! ye venerable Oaks!

Ye Ashes wild, resounding o'er the steep!

Delicious is your shelter to the soul.

p. THOMSON—Seasons. Summer. L. 469.

Sure thou did'st flourish once! and many springs,

Many bright mornings, much dew, many showers,

Passed o'er thy head; many light hearts and
wings,

Which now are dead, lodg'd in thy living
bowers.

And still a new succession sings and flies;

Fresh groves grow up, and their green branches shoot

Towards the old and still-enduring skies;

While the low violet thrives at their root.

q. VAUGHAN—The Timber.

A brotherhood of venerable Trees.

r. WORDSWORTH—Sonnet composed at Castle —.

Part II.—Classified Arbora.

Acacia.Acacia.*

A great acacia, with its slender trunk
And overpoise of multitudinous leaves, (In which a hundred fields might spill their dew

And intense verdure, yet find room enough)
Stood reconciling all the place with green.

a. E. B. BROWNING—Aurora Leigh. Bk. VI.

The lawn,

Which, after sweeping broadly round the house,

Went trickling through the shrubberies in a stream

Of tender turf, and wore and lost itself
Among the acacias, over which you saw

The irregular line of elms by the deep lane Which stopped the grounds and dammed the overflow

Of arbutus and laurel.

b. E. B. BROWNING—Aurora Leigh. Bk. I.

Pluck the acacia's golden balls,
And mark where the red pomegranate falls.

c. JULIA C. R. DORR—Under the Palm-Trees.

Light-leaved acacias, by the door,

Stood up in balmy air,
Clusters of blossomed moonlight bore,
And breathed a perfume rare.

d. GEORGE MACDONALD—Song of the Spring Nights. Pt. I.

Our rocks are rough, but smiling there

Th' acacia waves her yellow hair,
Lonely and sweet, nor loved the less

For flow'ring in a wilderness.

e. MOORE—Lalla Rookh. Light of the Harem. Song.

The slender acacia would not shake

One long milk-bloom on the tree;
The white lake-blossom fell into the lake
As the pimpernel dozed on the lea;

But the rose was awake all night for your sake,

Knowing your promise to me;
The lilies and roses were all awake,
They sighed for the dawn and thee.

f. TENNYSON—Maud. Pt. XXII. St. 8.

Almond.Amygdalus communis.*

Almond blossom, sent to teach us
That the spring days soon will reach us.

g. EDWIN ARNOLD—Almond Blossoms.

Blossom of the almond trees,
April's gift to April's bees.

h. EDWIN ARNOLD—Almond Blossoms.

With a bee in every bell,
Almond bloom, we greet thee well.

i. EDWIN ARNOLD—Almond Blossoms.

White as the blossoms which the almond tree,
Above its bald and leafless branches bears.

j. MARGARET J. PRESTON—The Royal Preacher. St. 5.

Like to an almond tree ymounted hye
On top of greene Selinis all alone,
With blossoms brave bedecked daintily;
Whose tender locks do tremble every one,
At everie little breath, that under heaven is blowne.

k. SPENSER—Faerie Queen. Bk. I.
Canto VII. St. 32.

Apple.Pyrus Malus.*

What plant we in this apple tree?
Sweets for a hundred flowery springs
To load the May-wind's restless wings,
When, from the orchard-row, he pours
Its fragrance through our open doors;

A world of blossoms for the bee,
Flowers for the sick girl's silent room,
For the glad infant sprigs of bloom,
We plant with the apple tree.

l. BRYANT—The Planting of the Apple Tree.

And what is more melancholy than the old apple-trees that linger about the spot where once stood a homestead, but where there is now only a ruined chimney rising out of a grassy and weed-grown cellar? They offer their fruit to every wayfarer—apples that are bitter-sweet with the moral of time's vicissitude.

m. NATH. HAWTHORNE—Mosses from an Old Manse. The Old Manse.

The blossoms and leaves in plenty
From the apple tree fall each day;
The merry breezes approach them,
And with them merrily play.

n. HEINE—Book of Songs. Lyrical Interlude. No. 63.

Fragrant blossoms fringe the apple boughs.

o. AMELIA B. WELBY—Hopeless Love.

Ash.Frazinus.*

The ash her purple drops forgivingly
 And sadly, breaking not the general hush ;
 The maple swamps glow like a sunset sea,
 Each leaf a ripple with its separate flush ;
 All round the wood's edge creeps the skirting blaze,
 Of bushes low, as when, on cloudy days,
 Ere the rain falls, the cautious farmer burns his brush.

a. LOWELL—An Indian-Summer Reverie.
 St. 11.

Aspen.Populus Tremuloides.*

What whispers so strange at the hour of midnight,

From the aspen leaves trembling so wildly?
 Why in the lone wood sings it sad, when the bright

Full moon beams upon it so mildly?

b. INGEMANN—The Aspen.

At that awful hour of the Passion, when the Saviour of the world felt deserted in His agony, when—

“The sympathizing sun his light withdrew,
 And wonder'd how the stars their dying Lord could view”—

when earth, shaking with horror, rung the passing bell for Deity, and universal nature groaned, then from the loftiest tree to the lowliest flower all felt a sudden thrill, and trembling, bowed their heads, all save the proud and obdurate aspen, which said, “Why should we weep and tremble? we trees, and plants, and flowers are pure and never sinned!”
 Ere it ceased to speak, an involuntary trembling seized its every leaf, and the word went forth that it should never rest, but tremble on until the day of judgment.

c. Legend. From Notes and Queries.
 First Series. Vol. VI. No. 161.

Beneath a shivering canopy reclined,
 Of aspen leaves that wave without a wind,
 I love to lie, when lulling breezes stir
 The spiry cones that tremble on the fir.

d. JOHN LEYDEN—Noontide.

And the wind, full of wantonness, woos like a lover
 The young aspen-trees till they tremble all over.

 Harem.*

Beech.Fagus.*

Oh, leave this barren spot to me!
 Spare, woodman, spare the beechen tree!

f. CAMPBELL—The Beech-Tree's Petition.

Birch.Betula.*

Rippling through thy branches goes the sunshine,
 Among thy leaves that palpitae forever,
 And in thee, a pining nymph had prisoned
 The soul, once of some tremulous inland river,
 Quivering to tell her woe, but ah! dumb, dumb forever.

g. LOWELL—The Birch Tree.

Cedar.Cedrus.*

O'er yon bare knoll the pointed cedar shadows
 Drowse on the crisp, gray moss.

h. LOWELL—An Indian-Summer Reverie.

Thus yields the cedar to the axe's edge,
 Whose arms gave shelter to the princely eagle.

i. Henry VI. Pt. III. Act V. Sc. 2.
 L. 11.

High on a hill a goodly Cedar grewe,
 Of wond'rous length and streight proportion,
 That farre abroad her daintie odours threwe;
 'Mongst all the daughters of proud Libanon,
 Her match in beautie was not anie one.

j. SPENSER—Visions of the World's Vanitie.
 St. 7.

Cherry.Cerasus.*

Sweet is the air with the budding haws, and the valley stretching for miles below Is white with blossoming cherry-trees, as if just covered with lightest snow.

k. LONGFELLOW—Christus. Golden Legend. Pt. IV.

And in the warm hedge grew lush eglantine,
 Green cowbind and the moonlight-colored
 May,

And cherry blossoms, and white cups whose wine
 Was the bright dew yet drained not by the day.

l. SHELLEY—The Question. St. 3.

Chestnut.Castanea Vesca.*

When I see the chestnut letting
 All her lovely blossoms falter down, I think, “Alas the day!”

m. JEAN INGELOW—The Warbling of Blackbirds.

The chestnuts, lavish of their long-hid gold,
 To the faint Summer, beggared now and old,
 Pour back the sunshine hoarded 'neath her favoring eye.

n. LOWELL—An Indian-Summer Reverie.
 St. 10.

Citron.

Citrus Medica.

Awake! the morning shines, and the fresh field
Calls us; we lose the prime, to mark how spring
Our tended plants, how blows the citron grove,
What drops the myrrh, and what the balmy reed.
How nature paints her colours, how the bee Sits on the bloom, extracting liquid sweet.

a. MILTON—Paradise Lost. Bk. V. L. 20.

Cocoanut.

Cocos Nucifera.

Oh, the green and the graceful—the cocoanut tree!

The lone and the lofty—it loves like me
The flash, the foam of the heaving sea,
And the sound of the surging waves
In the shore's unfathomed caves.

With its stately shaft and its verdant crown,
And its fruit in clusters drooping down.

b. FRANCES S. OSGOOD—The Cocoanut Tree.

Cypress.

Cupressus.

Dark tree! still sad when other's grief is fled,
The only constant mourner o'er the dead.

c. BYRON—Giaour. L. 286.

Elder.

Sambucus.

O leave the elder-bloom, fair maids!
And listen to my lay.

d. COLERIDGE—Introduction to the Tale of the Dark Ladie.

Elm.

Ulmus.

Under the cooling shadow of a stately Elm,
Close sate I by a goodly River's side,
Where gliding streams the rocks did overwhelm;

A lonely place, with pleasure dignified,
I once that loved the shady woods so well,
Now thought the rivers did the trees excel,
And if the sun would ever shine, there would I dwell.

e. ANNE BRADSTREET—Contemplations. St. 21.

And the great elms o'erhead
Dark shadows wove on their aerial looms,
Shot through with golden thread.

f. LONGFELLOW—Hawthorne. St. 2.

In crystal vapour everywhere
Blue isles of heaven laughed between,
And far, in forest-deeps unseen,
The topmost elm-tree gather'd green
From draughts of balmy air.

g. TENNYSON—Sir Launcelot and Queen Guinevere.

Fig.

Ficus.

Close by a rock, of less enormous height,
Breaks the wild waves, and forms a dangerous strait;

Full on its crown, a fig's green branches rise,
And shoot a leafy forest to the skies.

h. HOMER—Odyssey. Bk. XII. L. 125.
Pope's trans.

So counsel'd he, and both together went Into the thickest wood; there soon they chose
The fig-tree, not that kind for fruit renowned,
But such as at this day to Indians known
In Malabar or Decan spreads her arms,
Branching so broad and long, that in the ground

The bended twigs take root, and daughters grow

About the mother tree, a pillar'd shade High overarch'd, and echoing walks between.

i. MILTON—Paradise Lost. Bk. IX. L. 1,099.

Fir.

Abies.

A lonely fir-tree is standing
On a northern barren height;

It sleeps, and the ice and snow-drift
Cast round it a garment of white.

j. HEINE—Book of Songs. Lyrical Interlude. No. 34.

I remember, I remember
The fir-trees dark and high;
I used to think their slender tops
Were close against the sky.

k. HOOD—I Remember, I Remember.

In a drear-nighted December,
Too happy, happy tree,
Thy branches ne'er remember Their green felicity.

l. KEATS—Stanzas.

Kindles the gummy bark of fir or pine,
And sends a comfortable heat from far,
Which might supply the sun.

m. MILTON—Paradise Lost. Bk. X. L. 1,076.

Hawthorn.

Crataegus Oxyacanthus.

The hawthorn I will pu' wi' its lock o' siller gray,
Where, like an aged man, it stands at break o' day.

n. BURNS—O Luve Will Venture In.

The hawthorn-trees blow in the dew of the morning.

o. BURNS—The Chevalier's Lament.

Yet, all beneath the unrivall'd rose,
The lowly daisy sweetly blows ;
Tho' large the forest's monarch throws
His army shade,
Yet green the juicy hawthorn grows,
Adown the glade.
a. BURNS—The Vision. Duan II. St. 21.

Yet walk with me where hawthorns hide
The wonders of the lane.
b. EBENEZER ELLIOTT—The Wonders of the Lane. L. 3.

The hawthorn-bush, with seats beneath the shade
For talking age and whispering lovers made!
c. GOLDSMITH—The Deserted Village.
L. 13.

And every shepherd tells his tale
Under the hawthorn in the dale.
d. MILTON—L' Allegro. L. 67.

Then sing by turns, by turns the Muses sing ;
Now hawthorns blossom.
e. POPE—Spring. L. 41.

Gives not the hawthorn-bush a sweeter shade
To shepherds looking on their silly sheep
Than doth a rich embroider'd canopy
To kings that fear their subjects' treachery ?
f. Henry VI. Pt. III. Act II. Sc. 5.
L. 42.

The Hawthorn whitens ; and the juicy Groves
Put forth their buds, unfolding by degrees,
Till the whole leafy Forest stands displayed,
In full luxuriance, to the sighing gales.
g. THOMSON—Seasons. Spring. L. 90.

Hemlock.

Tsuga Canadensis.

O hemlock-tree ! O hemlock-tree ! how faithful are thy branches !
Green not alone in summer time,
But in the winter's frost and rime !
O hemlock-tree ! O hemlock-tree ! how faithful are thy branches !
h. LONGFELLOW—The Hemlock-Tree.

Hickory.

Carya.

Under the hickory-tree, Ben Bolt,
Which stood at the foot of the hill,
Together we've lain in the noonday shade,
And listened to Appleton's mill.
The mill-wheel has fallen to pieces, Ben Bolt,
The rafters have tumbled in,
And a quiet which crawls round the walls as you gaze
Has followed the olden din.
i. THOS. DUNN ENGLISH—Ben Bolt.

Holly.

Ilex.

Green, slender, leaf-clad holly-boughs
Were twisted gracefu' round her brows,
I took her for some Scottish Muse,
By that same token,
An' come to stop those reckless vows,
Would soon be broken.
j. BURNS—The Vision. Duan I. St. 9.

Those hollies of themselves a shape
As of an arbor took.
k. COLERIDGE—The Three Graves. Pt. IV.
St. 24.

All green was vanished save of pine and yew,
That still displayed their melancholy hue ;
Save the green holly with its berries red,
And the green moss that o'er the gravel spread.
l. CRABBE—Tales of the Hall.

And as, when all the summer trees are seen
So bright and green,
The Holly leaves a sober hue display Less bright than they,
But when the bare and wintry woods we see,
What then so cheerful as the Holly-tree ?
m. SOUTHEY—The Holly-Tree.

O Reader ! hast thou ever stood to see The Holly-tree ?
The eye that contemplates it well perceives
Its glossy leaves
Ordered by an Intelligence so wise
As might confound the Atheist's sophistries.
n. SOUTHEY—The Holly-Tree. St. 1.

Larch.

Larix.

I have look'd o'er the hills of the stormy north,
And the larch has hung all his tassels forth.
o. MRS. HEMANS—The Voice of Spring.

Laurel.

Laurus Nobilis.

The laurel-tree grew large and strong,
Its roots went searching deeply down ;
It split the marble walls of Wrong,
And blossomed o'er the Despot's crown.
p. RICHARD HENGIST HORNE—The Laurel Seed.

Lilac.

Syringa Vulgaris.

The lilac spread Odorous essence.
q. JEAN INGELOW—Laurance. Pt. III.
I am thinking of the lilac-trees,
That shook their purple plumes,
And when the sash was open,
Shed fragrance through the room.
r. MRS. ANNA S. STEPHENS—The Old Apple-Tree.
The purple clusters load the lilac-bushes.
s. AMELIA B. WELBY—Hopeless Love.

The linden in the fervors of July Hums with a louder concert.

a. BRYANT—Among the Trees.

If thou lookest on the lime-leaf,
Thou a heart's form will discover;
Therefore are the lindens ever Chosen seats of each fond lover.

b. HEINE—Book of Songs. New Spring.
No. 31. St. 3.

Lotus.Zizyphus Lotus.*

Where drooping lotos-flowers, distilling balm, Dream by the drowsy streamlets sleep hath
crown'd,

While Care forgets to sigh, and Peace hath balsamed Pain.

c. PAUL H. HAYNE—Sonnet. Pent in this Common Sphere.

Oh! what are the brightest that e'er have blown

To the lote-tree, springing by Alla's throne, Whose flowers have a soul in every leaf.

d. MOORE—Lalla Rookh. Paradise and
the Peri.

They wove the lotus band to deck
And fan with pensile wreath their neck.

e. MOORE—Odes of Anacreon. Ode LXX.

A spring there is, whose silver waters show
Clear as a glass the shining sands below:
A flowering lotos spreads its arms above,
Shades all the banks, and seems itself a grove.

f. POPE—Sappho to Phaon. L. 177.

The lotos bowed above the tide and dreamed.

g. MARGARET J. PRESTON—Rhodope's Sandal.

Magnolia.Magnolia.*

Fragrant o'er all the western groves
The tall magnolia towers unshaded.

h. MARIA BROOKS—Written on Seeing Pharamond.

A languid magnolia showers
From its shivering leaflets the dew;
'Tis lonely and bare of its flowers,
That decked once its branches with blue.

i. THEUDOBACH—The Transplanted Magnolia.

Mahogany.Swietenia Mahogoni.*

Christmas is here:
Winds whistle shrill,
Icy and chill,
Little care we:
Little we fear Weather without,
Sheltered about
The Mahogany-Tree.

j. THACKERAY—The Mahogany-Tree.

Maple.Acer.*

That was a day of delight and wonder.
While lying the shade of the maple trees under—

He felt the soft breeze at its frolicksome play;

He smelled the sweet odor of newly mown hay.

k. THOS. DUNN ENGLISH—Under the Trees.

MulberryMorus.*

O, the mulberry-tree is of trees the queen!
Bare long after the rest are green;
But as time steals onwards, while none perceives

Slowly she clothes herself with leaves—
Hides her fruit under them, hard to find.

* * * * *

But by and by, when the flowers grow few
And the fruits are dwindling and small to view—

Out she comes in her matron grace
With the purple myriads of her race;
Full of plenty from root to crown,
Showering plenty her feet adown.

While far over head hang gorgeously
Large luscious berries of sanguine dye,
For the best grows highest, always highest,

Upon the mulberry-tree.

l. D. M. MULOCK—The Mulberry-Tree.

Oak.Quercus.*

Young Oak! when I planted thee deep in the ground,

I hoped that thy days would be longer than mine;

That thy dark-waving branches would flourish around,

And ivy thy trunk with its mantle entwine.
m. BYRON—To an Oak at Newstead.

A song to the oak, the brave old oak,
Who hath ruled in the greenwood long;
Here's health and renown to his broad green crown,

And his fifty arms so strong.
There's fear in his frown when the Sun goes down,

And the fire in the West fades out;
And heshoweth his might on a wild midnight,
When the storms through his branches shout.

n. H. F. CHORLEY—The Brave Old Oak.

The oak, when living, monarch of the wood;
The English oak, which, dead, commands the flood.

o. CHURCHILL—Gotham. I. 303.

Old noted oak! I saw thee in a mood
Of vague indifference; and yet with me
Thy memory, like thy fate, hath lingering stood

For years, thou hermit, in the lonely sea
Of grass that waves around thee!

a. JOHN CLARE—The Rural Muse.
Burthorp Oak.

The monarch oak, the patriarch of the trees,
Shoots rising up, and spreads by slow degrees.
Three centuries he grows, and three he stays
Supreme in state; and in three more decays.

b. DRYDEN—Palamon and Arcite.
Bk. III. L. 1,058.

The oaks with solemnity shook their heads;
The twigs of the birch-trees, in token
Of warning, nodded,—and I exclaim'd:

“Dear Monarch, forgive what I’ve spoken!”
c. HEINE—Songs. Germany.
Caput XVII.

Those green-robed senators of mighty woods,
Tall oaks, branch-charmed by the earnest
stars,

Dream, and so dream all night without a stir.

d. KEATS—Hyperion. Bk. I. L. 73.

The proud tree low bendeth its vigorous form,
Whose freshness and strength have braved many a storm;

And the sturdy oak shakes that ne’er trembled before

Though the years of its glory outnumber three-score.

e. ELIZABETH C. KINNEY—The Woodman.

The tall Oak, towering to the skies,
The fury of the wind defies,

From age to age, in virtue strong.
Inured to stand, and suffer wrong.

f. MONTGOMERY—The Oak.

Hail, hidden to the knees in fern,
Broad Oak of Sumner-chace,

Whose topmost branches can discern
The roofs of Sumner-place!

g. TENNYSON—The Talking Oak. St. 8.

There grewe an aged tree on the greene;
A goodly Oake sometime had it bene,
With armes full strong and largely displayd,
But of their leaves they were disarayde:

The bodie bigge, and mightely pight,
Thoroughly rooted, and of wond’rous hight;
Whilome had bene the king of the field,
And mochell mast to the husband did yielde,
And with his nuts larded many swine:

But now the gray mosse marred ljis rine;
His bared boughes were beaten with stormes,
His toppe was bald, and wasted with wormes,
His honour decayed, his branches sere.

h. SPENSER—Shepherd’s Callender.
Februarie.

Olive.

Olea Europæa.

See there the olive grove of Academe,
Plato’s retirement, where the Attic bird Trills her thick-warbled notes the summer long.

i. MILTON—Paradise Regained. Bk. IV.
L. 244.

Orange.

Citrus Aurantium.

Yes, sing the song of the orange-tree,
With its leaves of velvet green:
With its luscious fruit of sunset hue,
The fairest that ever were seen;
The grape may have its bacchanal verse,
To praise the fig we are free;
But homage I pay to the queen of all,
The glorious orange-tree.

j. J. K. HOYT—The Orange-Tree.

The orange with the lime-tree vies
In shedding rich perfume.

k. MARIA JAMES—Ode for the Fourth of July.

Beneath some orange-trees,
Whose fruit and blossoms in the breeze
Were wantoning together free,
Like age at play with infancy.

l. MOORE—*Lalla Rookh. Paradise and
the Peri*.

If I were yonder orange-tree
And thou the blossom blooming there,
I would not yield a breath of thee
To scent the most imploring air!

m. MOORE—If I Were Yonder Wave, My Dear.

’Twas noon; and every orange bud
Hung languid o’er the crystal flood,
Faint as the lids of maiden eyes.
Beneath a lover’s burning sighs!

n. MOORE—I Stole Along the Flowery Bank.

Palm.

Phoenix Dactylifera.

As the palm-tree standeth so straight and so tall,

The more the hail beats, and the more the rains fall.

o. LONGFELLOW—Annie of Tharaw.
Trans. from the German of Simon Dach. L. 11.

First the high palme-trees, with branches
faire,

Out of the lowly vallies did arise,
And high shoote up their heads into theskyes.

p. SPENSER—Virgils Gnat. L. 191.

Next to thee, O fair gazelle,
O Beddowee girl, beloved so well;
Next to the fearless Nedjidee,
Whose fleetness shall bear me again to thee;
Next to ye both I love the Palm,
With his leaves of beauty, his fruit of balm;
Next to ye both I love the Tree Whose fluttering shadow wraps us three With love, and silence, and mystery!

a. BAYARD TAYLOR—The Arab to the Palm.

Of threads of palm was the carpet spun
Whereon he kneels when the day is done,
And the foreheads of Islam are bowed as one!

To him the palm is a gift divine,
Wherein all uses of man combine,—
House and raiment and food and wine!

And, in the hour of his great release,
His need of the palm shall only cease
With the shroud wherein he lieth in peace.

"Allah il Allah!" he sings his psalm,
On the Indian Sea, by the isles of balm;
"Thanks to Allah, who gives the palm!"

b. WHITTIER—The Palm-Tree.

Pear.

Pyrus Communis.

I ask in vain
Who planted on the slope this lofty group
Of ancient pear-trees that with spring-time burst

Into such breadth of bloom.

c. BRYANT—Among the Trees.

The great white pear-tree dropped with dew from leaves

And blossom, under heavens of happy blue.

d. JEAN INGELOW—Songs with Preludes.
Wedlock.

A pear-tree planted nigh:

'Twas charg'd with fruit that made a goodly show,

And hung with dangling pears was every bough.

e. POPE—January and May. L. 602.

Pine.

Pinus.

Shaggy shade

Of desert-loving pine, whose emerald scalp
Nods to the storm.

f. BYRON—The Prophecy of Dante.
Canto II. L. 63.

Risest from forth thy silent sea of pines.
g. COLERIDGE—Hymn Before Sunrise in the Vale of Chamouni.

'Twas on the inner bark, stripped from the pine,

Our father pencilled this epistle rare;
Two blazing pine knots did his torches shine,
Two braided pallets formed his desk and chair.

h. DURFEE—What-Cheer. Canto II.

As sunbeams stream through liberal space
And nothing jostle or displace,
So waved the pine-tree through my thought
And fanned the dreams it never brought.

i. EMERSON—Woodnotes. II.

'Tis night upon the lake. Our bed of boughs Is built where—high above—the pine-tree soughs.

'Tis still,—and yet what woody noises loom Against the background of the silent gloom!
One well might hear the opening of a flower
If day were hushed as this.

j. R. W. GILDER—The Voice of the Pine.

The pines grow gray
A little, in the biting wind.

k. HELEN HUNT JACKSON—March.

Like two cathedral towers these stately pines Uplift their fretted summits tipped with cones;

The arch beneath them is not built with stones,

Not Art but Nature traced these lovely lines,

And carved this graceful arabesque of vines;
No organ but the wind here sighs and moans,

No sepulchre conceals a martyr's bones,
No marble bishop on his tomb reclines.

Enter! the pavement, carpeted with leaves,
Gives back a softened echo to thy tread!

Listen! the choir is singing; all the birds,
In leafy galleries beneath the eaves,

Are singing! listen, ere the sound be fled,

And learn there may be worship without words.

l. LONGFELLOW—Sonnets. My Cathedral.

The pine is the mother of legends.

m. LOWELL—The Growth of a Legend.

Under the yaller pines I house,
When sunshine makes 'em all sweet-scented,
An' hear among their furry boughs

The baskin' west-wind purr contented.

n. LOWELL—The Biglow Papers. Second Series. No. 10.

To archèd walks of twilight groves,
And shadows brown that Sylvan loves,
Of pine.

o. MILTON—Il Penseroso. L. 133.

Here also grew the rougher rinded pine,
The great Argoan ship's brave ornament.

p. SPENSER—Virgils Gnat. L. 209.

Ancient Pines,
Ye bear no record of the years of man.
Spring is your sole historian.

q. BAYARD TAYLOR—The Pine Forest of Monterey.

Stately Pines,
But few more years around the promontory
Your chant will meet the thunders of the sea.

a. BAYARD TAYLOR—The Pine Forest of Monterey.

Poplar.

Populus Fastigiata.

Trees that, like the poplar, lift upward all their boughs, give no shade and no shelter, whatever their height. Trees the most lovingly shelter and shade us, when, like the willow, the higher soar their summits, the lowlier droop their boughs.

b. BULWER-LYTTON—What Will He Do With It? Bk. XI. Ch. X.
Introductory lines.

Sloe.

Prunus Spinosa.

From the white-blossomed sloe, my dear
Chloe requested,

A sprig her fair breast to adorn.
No! by Heav'n, I exclaim'd, may I perish,
If ever I plant in that bosom a thorn.

c. JOHN O'KEEFE—The Thorn.

In the hedge the frosted berries glow,
The scarlet holly and the purple sloe.

d. SARAH HELEN WHITMAN—A Day of the Indian Summer.

Spice.

Umbellularia Californica.

The Spice-Tree lives in the garden green,
Beside it the fountain flows;
And a fair Bird sits the boughs between,
And sings his melodious woes.

* * * * *

That out-bound stem has branches three;
On each a thousand blossoms grow;
And old as aught of time can be,
The root stands fast in the rocks below.

e. JOHN STERLING—The Spice-Tree.
Sts. 1 and 3.

Sycamore.

Acer Pseudo-Platanus.

Yon night moths that hover where honey brims over
From sycamore blossoms.

f. JEAN INGELOW—Songs of Seven. Seven Times Three.

Beneath the milk-white thorn that scents the evening gale.

g. BURNS—The Cotter's Saturday Night.
St. 9.

Liriodendron Tulipifera.

Heed not the night; a summer lodge amid the wild is mine—
'Tis shadowed by the tulip-tree, 'tis mantled by the vine.

h. BRYANT—A Strange Lady. St. 6.

The tulip-tree, high up,
Opened, in airs of June, her multitude
Of golden chalices to humming birds
And silken-winged insects of the sky.

i. BRYANT—The Fountain. St. 3.

Willow.

Salix.

Willow, in thy breezy moan,
I can hear a deeper tone;
Through thy leaves come whispering low,
Faint sweet sounds of long ago—
Willow, sighing willow!

j. MRS. HEMANS—Willow Song.

All a green willow, willow,
All a green willow is my garland.

k. JOHN HEYWOOD—The Green Willow.

A subtle red
Of life is kindling every twig and stalk
Of lowly meadow growths; the willows wrap Their stems in furry white.

l. HELEN HUNT JACKSON—March.

The willow hangs with sheltering grace
And benediction o'er their sod,
And Nature, hushed, assures the soul
They rest in God.

m. CRAMMOND KENNEDY—Greenwood Cemetery.

Near the lake where drooped the willow,
Long time ago.

n. GEORGE P. MORRIS—Near the Lake.

Know ye the willow-tree,
Whose grey leaves quiver, Whispering gloomily
To yon pale river?

Lady, at even-tide
Wander not near it:
They say its branches hide
A sad, lost spirit!

o. THACKERAY—The Willow-Tree.

Yew.

Taxus.

Careless, unsocial plant! that loves to dwell 'Midst skulls and coffins, epitaphs and worms:

Where light-heel'd ghosts and visionary shades,

Beneath the wan, cold Moon (as Fame reports)

Embodied, thick, perform their mystic rounds.

No other merriment, dull tree! is thine.

p. BLAIR—The Grave. L. 22.

For there no yew nor cypress spread their gloom

But roses blossom'd by each rustic tomb.

Slips of yew
Sliver'd in the moon's eclipse.
a. Macbeth. Act IV. Sc. 1. L. 27.

Of vast circumference and gloom profound,
This solitary Tree! A living thing Produced too slowly ever to decay;
Of form and aspect too magnificent
To be destroyed.
b. WORDSWORTH—Yew-Trees.

There is a Yew-tree, pride of Lorton Vale,
Which to this day stands single, in the midst
Of its own darkness, as it stood of yore.
c. WORDSWORTH—Yew-Trees.

This lonely Yew-tree stands Far from all human dwelling.
d. WORDSWORTH—Lines left upon a Seat in a Yew-tree.

TRIALS.

Pray, pray, thou who also weepst,—
And the drops will slacken so;
Weep, weep—and the watch thou keepest,
With a quicker count will go.
Think,—the shadow on the dial
For the nature most undone,
Marks the passing of the trial,
Proves the presence of the sun.
e. E. B. BROWNING—Fourfold Aspect.

The child of trial, to mortality
And all its changeful influences given;
On the green earth decreed to move and die,
And yet by such a fate prepared for heaven.
f. SIR HUMPHREY DAVY—Written after Recovery from a Dangerous Illness.

But noble souls, through dust and heat,
Rise from disaster and defeat
The stronger.

furnace, He will be in the furnace with them.

Sheaves. Privileges of Trial*.

There are no crown-wearers in heaven who were not cross-bearers here below.
l. SPURGEON—Gleanings among the Sheaves. Cross-Bearers.

Trials teach us what we are; they dig up the soil, and let us see what we are made of;
they just turn up some of the ill weeds on to the surface.
m. SPURGEON—Gleanings among the Sheaves. The Use of Trial.

TRIFLES.

Seeks painted trifles and fantastic toys,

Trifles, light as air.
t. Othello. Act III. Sc. 3. L. 322.

A trifle makes a dream, a trifle breaks.
u. TENNYSON—Sea Dreams. L. 140.

Think nought a trifle, though it small appear;
Small sands the mountain, moments make the year.
v. YOUNG—Love of Fame. Satire VI.
L. 205.

TRUST.

The greatest trust between man and man is the trust of giving counsel.
w. BACON—Essays. Of Counsel.

Dear, I trusted you
As holy men trust God. You could do naught That was not pure and loving,—though the deed Might pierce me unto death.
x. GEORGE ELIOT—The Spanish Gypsy.

Youth, health, and hope may fade, but there is left

A soul that trusts in Heaven, though thus of all bereft.

I should not alter in my faith of him.

d. BEN JONSON—The Devil Is an Ass.

Had blessed one's life with true believing.

Like the beloved John

To lay his head upon the Saviour's breast,

TRUST (PUBLIC).

All persons possessing any portion of power ought to be strongly and awfully impressed with an idea that they act in trust, and that they are to account for their conduct in that trust to the one great Master, Author, and Founder of society.

n. BURKE—Reflections on the Revolution in France.

To execute laws is a royal office; to execute orders is not to be a king. However, a political executive magistracy, though merely such, is a great trust.

o. BURKE—Reflections on the Revolution in France.

Public officers are the servants and agents of the people, to execute laws which the people have made and within the limits of a constitution which they have established.

p. GROVER CLEVELAND—Letter of Acceptance as Candidate for Governor. Oct. 7, 1882.

that we are accountable for its exercise.

q. BENJ. DISRAELI—Virian Grey.
Bk. VI. Ch. VII.

Public office is a public trust, the authority and opportunities of which must be used as absolutely as the public moneys for the public benefit, and not for the purposes of any individual or party.

r. DORMAN B. EATON—The "Spoils" System and Civil-Service Reform.
Ch. III. The Merit System.

are to be entrusted with.

For truth is precious and divine ;
Too rich a pearl for carnal swine.

g. BUTLER—Hudibras. Pt. II. Canto II.
L. 257.

More proselytes and converts use t' accrue
To false persuasions than the right and true ;

True as the dial to the sun,
Although it be not shin'd upon.

But now being lifted into high society,
And having pick'd up several odds and ends

Of free thoughts in his travels for variety,
He deem'd, being in a lone isle, among friends,

That without any danger of a riot, he Might for long lying make himself amends ;
And singing as he sung in his warm youth,
Agree to a short armistice with truth.

We have oftener than once endeavoured to attach some meaning to that aphorism, vulgarly imputed to Shaftesbury, which however we can find nowhere in his works, that "ridicule is the test of truth."

n. CARLYLE—Essays. Voltaire.

When fiction rises pleasing to the eye,
Men will believe, because they love the lie ;
But truth herself, if clouded with a frown,
Must have some solemn proof to pass her down.

L. 291.

O, Truth is easy, and the light shines clear
In hearts kept open, honest and sincere.

p. ABRAHAM COLES—The Evangel. P. 183.

The power to bind and loose to Truth is given :

The mouth that speaks it is the mouth of Heaven.

The power, which in a sense belongs to none,
Thus understood belongs to every one.

q. ABRAHAM COLES—The Evangel. P. 181.

But truths on which depends our main concern,

Though love repine and reason chafe,

There came a voice without reply,

“Tis man’s perdition to be safe,
When for the truth he ought to die.”

Then to side with Truth is noble when we share her wretched crust,

Ere her cause bring fame and profit, and ’tis

Doubting in his abject spirit, till his Lord is assail’d.

Seemed melted in the evening hue.

With magic tints to harmonize the scene.

Stilled is the hum that through the hamlet broke

When round the ruins of their ancient oak
The peasants flocked to hear the minstrel
play,

And games and carols closed the busy day.

TYRANNY.

A king ruleth as he ought, a tyrant as he lists, a king to the profit of all, a tyrant only to please a few.

q. ARISTOTLE.

The tyrant now

Trusts not to men: nightly within his chamber

The watch-dog guards his couch, the only friend

He now dare trust.

r. JOANNA BAILLIE—Ethwald. Pt. II.

Act V. Sc. 3.

Th' oppressive, sturdy, man-destroying villains,

Who ravag'd kingdoms, and laid empires waste,

And in a cruel wantonness of power,

Thinn'd states of half their people, and gave up

To want the rest.

s. BLAIR—The Grave. L. 9.

Tyranny

Absolves all faith; and who invades our rights,

Howe'er his own commence, can never be
But an usurper.

t. HENRY BROOKE—Gustavus Vasa.

Act IV. Sc. 1.

Think'st thou there is no tyranny but that Of blood and chains? The despotism of vice—

The weakness and the wickedness of luxury—
The negligence—the apathy—the evils Of sensual sloth—produce ten thousand tyrants,

Whose delegated cruelty surpasses
The worst acts of one energetic master,
However harsh and hard in his own bearing.

a. BYRON—Sardanapalus. Act I. Sc. 2.
Tyranny

Is far the worst of treasons. Dost thou deem None rebels except subjects? The prince who

Neglects or violates his trust is more
A brigand than the robber-chief.

b. BYRON—The Two Foscari. Act II.
Sc. 1.

There is nothing more hostile to a city than a tyrant, under whom in the first and chiefest place, there are not laws in common, but one man, keeping the law himself to himself, has the sway, and this is no longer equal.

c. EURIPIDES—Suppliants. 429. Oxford

'Twi'x kings and tyrants there's this difference known:

Kings seek their subjects' good, tyrants their owne.

d. HERRICK—Kings and Tyrants.

Men are still men. The despot's wickedness Comes of ill teaching, and of power's excess,— Comes of the purple he from childhood wears, Slaves would be tyrants if the chance were theirs.

e. VICTOR HUGO—The Vanished City.

Bleed, bleed, poor country!
Great Tyranny! lay thou thy basis sure,
For goodness dares not check thee!

f. Macbeth. Act IV. Sc. 3. L. 31.

For how can tyrants safely govern home,
Unless abroad they purchase great alliance?
g. Henry VI. Pt. III. Act III. Sc. 3.
L. 69.

For what is he they follow? truly, gentlemen,
A bloody tyrant, and a homicide:

One rais'd in blood, and one in blood estab-
lish'd;

One that made means to come by what he hath,

And slaughter'd those that were the means to help him;

A base foul stone, made precious by the foil
Of England's chair, where he is falsely set;
One that hath ever been God's enemy.

h. Richard III. Act V. Sc. 3. L. 245.

I knew him tyrannous, and tyrants' fears
Decrease not, but grow faster than the years.

O nation miserable,
With an untitled tyrant bloody-scepter'd

VALENTINE'S DAY.

On paper curiously shaped Scribblers to-day of every sort,
 In verses Valentines yclep'd,
 To Venus chime their annual court.
 I too will swell the motley throng,
 And greet the all auspicious day,
 Whose privilege permits my song
 My love thus secret to convey.

a. HENRY G. BOHN—MS. Dictionary of Poetical Quotations. Valentines.

Oft have I heard both youths and virgins say, Birds chuse their mates and couple too this
 day :

But by their flight I never can devine
 When I shall couple with my valentine.

b. HERBICK—To his Valentine, on St. Valentine's Day.

No popular respect will I omit
 To do the honour on this happy day,
 When every loyal lover tasks his wit His simple truth in studious rhymes to pay,

And to his mistress dear his hopes convey.
 Rather thou knowest I would still outrun
 All calendars with Love's whose date alway Thy bright eyes govern better than the Sun,—

For with thy favour was my life begun,
 And still I reckon on from smiles to smiles,
 And not by summers, for I thrive on none
 But those thy cheerful countenance compiles;
 Oh! if it be to choose and call thee mine,
 Love, thou art every day my Valentine!

c. HOOD—Sonnet. For the 14th of February.

Oh, cruel heart! ere these posthumous papers Have met thine eyes, I shall be out of breath;

Those cruel eyes, like two funereal tapers,
 Have only lighted me the way to death.
 Perchance thou wilt extinguish them in vapours,

 It will not bring the vital spark again.

Apollo has peeped through the shutter,
 And awaken'd the witty and fair;

"What writest thou?" The Vision raised its head,

And, with a look made all of sweet accord, Answered, "The names of those who love the Lord."

f. LEIGH HUNT—About Ben Adhem and the Angel.

It is a dream, sweet child! a waking dream,
A blissful certainty, a vision bright,
Of that rare happiness, which even on earth
Heaven gives to those it loves.

g. LONGFELLOW—The Spanish Student.
Act III. Sc. 5.

An angel stood and met my gaze,
Through the low doorway of my tent;
The tent is struck, the vision stays;
I only know she came and went.

Gorgons, and Hydras, and Chimæras dire.

Liv'd ignorant of future, so had borne
My part of evil only.

j. MILTON—Paradise Lost. Bk. XI.
L. 763.

My thoughts by night are often filled
With visions false as fair:
For in the past alone, I build
My castles in the air.

k. THOS. LOVE PEACOCK—Castles in the Air. St. 1.

Hence the fool's paradise, the statesman's scheme,

The air-built castle, and the golden dream,
The maid's romantic wish, the chemist's flame,

And poet's vision of eternal fame.
l. POPE—Dunciad. Bk. III. L. 9.

Our revels now are ended. These, our actors,
As I foretold you, were all spirits, and
Are melted into air, into thin air;

And, like the baseless fabric of this vision,
The cloud-capped towers, the gorgeous palaces,
The solemn temples, the great globe itself,

Yea, all which it inherit, shall dissolve,
And, like this insubstantial pageant faded,
Leave not a rack behind.

m. Tempest. Act IV. Sc. 1. L. 148.

But shapes that come not at an earthly call,
Will not depart when mortal voices bid.

words.

p. ROBERT BROWNING—Flight of the Duchess. St. 15.

The devil hath not, in all his quiver's choice,
An arrow for the heart like a sweet voice.

q. BYRON—Don Juan. Canto XV. St. 13.

His voice no touch of harmony admits,

s. HESIOD—Works and Days. 763.

As some soft chime had stroked the air;
And though the sound had parted thence,
Still left an echo in the sense.

t. BEN JONSON—Eupheme. IV.

Her silver voice
Is the rich music of a summer bird, Heard in the still night, with its passionate cadence.

Oh, there is something in that voice that reaches

The innermost recesses of my spirit!

Thy voice
Is a celestial melody.

It ravishes all senses.
b. MASSINGER—The Old Law. Act IV.
Sc. 2. L. 34.
The Angel ended, and in Adam's ear
So charming left his voice, that he awhile Thought him still speaking, still stood fix'd to hear.
c. MILTON—Paradise Lost. Bk. VIII.

The people's voice is odd,
It is, and it is not, the voice of God.

Had when they sang together.
e. DANTE GABRIEL ROSSETTI—The Blessed Damsel. St. 10.
A sweet voice, a little indistinct and muffled, which caresses and does not thrill; an utterance which glides on without emphasis, and lays stress only on what is deeply felt.
f. GEORGES SAND—Handsome Laurence.
Ch. III.
Her voice was ever soft,
Gentle and low, an excellent thing in woman.
g. King Lear. Act V. Sc. 3. L. 272.
Two voices are there; one is of the sea,
One of the mountains: each a mighty Voice.

O great corrector of enormous times,
Shaker of o'er-rank states, thou grand decider

The earth when it is sick, and curest the world
O' the pleurisy of people.

Noble Kinsmen*. Act V. Sc. 1.

L. 354.
Lay down the axe; fling by the spade;
Leave in its track the toiling plough;
The rifle and the bayonet-blade
For arms like yours were fitter now;
And let the hands that ply the pen
Quit the light task, and learn to wield
The horseman's crooked brand, and rein
The charger on the battle-field.
p. BRYANT—Our Country's Call.
Scots, wha hae wi' Wallace bled;
Scots, wham Bruce has aften led,

In all the trade of war, no feat
Is nobler than a brave retreat.
u. BUTLER—Hudibras. Pt. I. Canto III.
L. 607.

And there was mounting in hot haste : the steed.

The mustering squadron, and the clattering car,

Went pouring forward with impetuous speed,
And swiftly forming in the ranks of war ;
And the deep thunder peal on peal, afar
And near ; the beat of the alarming drum
Roused up the soldier ere the morning star ;
While throng'd the citizens with terror dumb,
Or whispering with white lips—"The foe!
they come! they come!"

Battle's magnificently stern array !

b. BYRON—Childe Harold. Canto III.

Hand to hand, and foot to foot :
Nothing there, save death, was mute ;
Stroke, and thrust, and flash, and cry
For quarter or for victory,
Mingle there with the volleying thunder.

c. BYRON—Siege of Corinth. St. 24.

Like the leaves of the forest when summer is
green,

That host with their banners at sunset were seen ;

hath blown,

That host on the morrow lay wither'd and strown !

Throw the earth over him !

l. HENRY AUSTIN DOBSON—Before Sedan.

Thunder to thunder.

With that same weak wind which enkindled it.

g. King John. Act V. Sc. 2. L. 83.

Then more fierce
The conflict grew; the din of arms, the yell

The groan of death, conmingled in one sound

Of undistinguish'd horrors.

h. SOUTHEY—Madoc. Pt. II. XV.

But, Virginians, don't do it, for I tell you that the flagon,

Filled with blood of Old Brown's offspring, was first poured by Southern hands;

And each drop from Old Brown's life-veins,
like the red gore of the Dragon,

May spring up a vengeful Fury, hissing through your slave-worn lands:

And Old Brown,
Osawatomie Brown,

May trouble you worse than ever, when you've nailed his coffin down.

worth ;
If you had been in Turkey or in Spain,

Or in the desert heard the camel's bell,
You'd wish yourself where Truth is—in a well.

deeds;

Lilies that fester smell far worse than weeds.

Light household duties, ever more inwrought

With placid fancies of one trusting heart
That lives but in her smile, and turns
From life's cold seeming and the busy mart,
With tenderness, that heavenward ever
years

To be refreshed where one pure altar burns.
Shut out from hence the mockery of life;
Thus liveth she content, the meek, fond,
trusting wife.

Right to the heart and brain, tho' undescribed,
Winning its way with extreme gentleness
Thro' all the outworks of suspicious pride;

Crown'd Isabel, thro' all her placid life,

WIND.

Blow, Boreas, foe to human kind!
Blow, blustering, freezing, piercing wind!
Blow, that thy force I may rehearse,
While all my thoughts congeal to verse!

r. JOHN BANCKS—To Boreas.

There is strange music in the stirring wind!

s. REV. WM. L. BOWLES—Sonnets and Other Poems. November.

A breeze came wandering from the sky,

Light as the whispers of a dream;
He put the o'erhanging grasses by,
And softly stooped to kiss the stream,
The pretty stream, the flattered stream,
The shy, yet unreluctant stream.

t. BRYANT—The Wind and Stream.

The faint old man shall lean his silver head
To feel thee; thou shalt kiss the child asleep,

And dry the moistened curls that overspread
His temples, while his breathing grows more deep.

u. BRYANT—The Evening Wind. St. 4.

Where hast thou wandered, gentle gale, to find

The perfumes thou dost bring?

v. BRYANT—May Evening. St. 2.

Wind of the sunny south! oh, still delay
 In the gay woods and in the golden air,
 Like to a good old age released from care,
 Journeying, in long serenity, away.
 In such a bright, late quiet, would that I Might wear out life like thee, mid bowers and brooks,
 And, dearer yet, the sunshine of kind
 looks,
 And music of kind voices ever nigh;
 And when my last sand twinkled in the glass,
 Pass silently from men as thou dost pass.
 a. BRYANT—October. L. 5.

The winds that never moderation knew,
 Afraid to blow too much, too faintly blew;
 Or out of breath with joy, could not enlarge Their straighten'd lungs or conscious of their charge.
 h. DRYDEN—Astræa Redux. L. 242.

Perhaps the wind
 Wails so in winter for the summer's dead,
 And all sad sounds are nature's funeral cries
 For what has been and is not.

 Of the golden summer eves—Whence is the thrilling magic

 Or is it from the hollow rocks
 Through which its breathings pass?

O wild West Wind, thou breath of Autumn's being,
Thou, from whose unseen presence the leaves

Are driven, like ghosts from an enchanter fleeing,

b. SHELLEY—Ode to the West Wind. Pt. V.

i. BURNS—John Barleycorn. St. 13

So Noah, when he anchor'd safe on
The mountain's top, his lofty haven,
And all the passengers he bore
Were on the new world set ashore,
He made it next his chief design
To plant and propagate a vine,
Which since has overwhelm'd and drown'd
Far greater numbers, on dry ground,
Of wretched mankind, one by one,
Than all the flood before had done.

j. BUTLER—Satire upon Drunkenness.

L. 105.

Few things surpass old wine; and they may

Who please, the more because they preach in

k. BYRON—Don Juan. Canto II. St. 178.

Sweet is old wine in bottles, ale in barrels.

l. BYRON—Sweet Things. St. 5.

The young, makes Weariness forget his toil,
And Fear her danger; opens a new world
When this, the present, palls.

m. BYRON—Sardanapalus. Act I. Sc. 1.

Alcohol is not wine but an atrocious usurper of its name and rights. The wine of the cluster is the pure blood of the grape. Death follows life, and corruption death, and there results a deadly something, which men call wine, but wrongly for it is no longer vinous.
The wine disowns it. It is a corpse, not a living thing.

n. ABRAHAM COLES—The Evangel. P. 230.

Taking our stand on the immovable rock of Christ's character we risk nothing in saying, that the wine of miracle answered to the wine of nature, and was not intoxicating. No counter proof can equal the force of that drawn from His attributes. It is an indecency and a calumny to impute to Christ conduct which requires apology.

A roamer is she

O'er wall and tree

And sometimes very good company.

Wisdom sits alone,

Topmost in heaven:—she is its light—its God;

Though grovelling eyes forget her oftentimes,

Seeing but this world's idols. The pure mind

WISHES.

" Man wants but little here below Nor wants that little long,"
 'Tis not with me exactly so ;

Who was the cause of a long ten years' war,
And laid at last old Troy in ashes? Woman;
Destructive, damnable, deceitful woman!

a. THOMAS OTWAY—The Orphan. Act III. Sc. 1.

Who can describe
Women's hypocrisies! their subtle wiles,
Betraying smiles, feign'd tears, inconstancies!

Still an angel appear to each lover beside,
But still be a woman to you.

c. PARNELL—When thy Beauty Appears.

To chase the clouds of life's tempestuous hours,

To strew its short but weary way with flow'rs,

For this to man was lovely woman giv'n,
The last, best work, the noblest gift of Heav'n.

She who ne'er answers till a husband cools,
Or, if she rules him, never shows she rules.

Our grandsire, Adam, ere of Eve possess'd,
Alone, and e'en in Paradise unblest,

They cannot seek his hand.

t. BRYANT—*Song. Trans. from the

Some are soon bagg'd but some reject three

u. MOORE—How Shall I Woo?

'Tis sweet to think that where'er we rove love,

We've but to make love to the lips we are near.

a. MOORE—'Tis Sweet to Think.

but now a velvet gown, a chain of pearl, or a coach with four horses will scarcely serve the turn.

By the way,
The works of women are symbolical.
We sew, sew, prick our fingers, dull our sight,
Producing what? A pair of slippers, sir,
To put on when you're weary—or a stool
To tumble over and vex you * * * curse that stool!

Or else at best, a cushion where you lean
And sleep, and dream of something we are not,

But would be for your sake. Alas, alas!
This hurts most, this * * * that, after all,
we are paid

The worth of our work, perhaps.

Our spirits from their urns.

burst forth into a flame.

Youth dreams a bliss on this side death.

It dreams a rest, if not more deep,

well.

'Tis all perhaps which man acquires,
But 'tis not what our youth desires.

s. BEATTIE—The Minstrel. Bk. I. St. 11.

The sail he spreads for Heav'n with blasts from hell!

Fairies.

What joy have I in June's return?

l. PLAUTUS—Captivi. II. 2. 63.

Deum non immolationibus et sanguine multo colendum: quæ enim ex trucidatione immerentium voluptas est? sed mente pura, bono honestoque proposito. Non templa illi, congestis in altitudinem saxis, struenda sunt; in suo cuique consecrandus est pectore.

God is not to be worshiped with sacrifices and blood; for what pleasure can He have in the slaughter of the innocent? but with a pure mind, a good and honest purpose. Temples are not to be built for Him with stones piled on high; God is to be consecrated in the breast of each.

Cana cadens violat; semper sine nubibus æther

Integer, et large diffuso lumine ridet.

The gods and their tranquil abodes appear,

hominem esse se meminit: invidet nemini, neminem miratur, neminem despicit, ac ne sermonibus quidem malignis aut attendit, aut alitur.

When a man is laboring under the pain of any distemper, it is then that he recollects there are gods, and that he himself is but a man; no mortal is then the object of his envy, his admiration, or his contempt, and having no malice to gratify, the tales of slander excite not his attention.

Aurum per medios ire satellites

Auro pulsa fides, auro venalia jura,
Aurum lex sequitur, mox sine lege pudor.

By gold all good faith has been banished;

itself is influenced by gold, and soon there will be an end of every modest restraint.

j. PROPERTIVS—Elegiæ. III. 13. 48.

Quid non mortalia pectora cogis,
Auri sacra fames?

Accursed thirst for gold! what dost thou not compel mortals to do?

Amerino*. XXX.

Ergo hoc proprium est animi bene constituti, et lætari bonis rebus, et dolere contrariis.

This is a proof of a well-trained mind, to rejoice in what is good and to grieve at the opposite.

tatis non est bonum.

Si versi magna paratur

Fama bonis, et si successu nuda remoto.

Inspicitur virtus, quicquid laudamus in ullo Majorum, fortuna fuit.

b. LUCAN—Pharsalia. IX. 593.

Bono ingenio me esse ornatam, quam auro multo mavolo.

Aurum fortuna invenitur, natura ingenium bonum.

Qui imperium credit gravius esse aut stabilius,

Tribus tantis illi minus reddit, quam obseveris.

Heu! istic oportet obseri mores malos,
Si in obserendo possint interfieri.

Besides that, when elsewhere the harvest of wheat is most abundant, there it comes up less by one-fourth than what you have sowed. There, methinks, it were a proper place for men to sow their wild oats, where they would not spring up.

CONCORDANCE TO QUOTATIONS.

INDEXES.

I certainly think that the best book in the world would owe the most to a good index, and the worst book, if it had but a single good thought in it, might be kept alive by it.

a. HORACE BINNEY—To S. Austin

Allibone.

An index is a necessary implement. * * * Without this, a large author is but a labyrinth without a clue to direct the readers within.

b. FULLER—Worthies of England.

How index-learning turns no student pale,
Yet holds the eel of science by the tail.

c. POPE—The Dunciad. Bk. I. L. 279.

Those authors, whose subjects require them to be voluminous, would do well, if they would be remembered as long as possible, not to omit a duty which authors, in general, but especially modern authors are too apt to neglect—that of appending to their works a good index.

d. HENRY ROGERS—The Vanity and Glory of Literature.
